Union Drive To Increase Pay Ceilings In Full Swing

Rail Labor Rejects Sliding Scale Plan; All CIO to Seek Raises, Murray Hints

Ben W. Gilbert

A drive by organized labor to raise present wage ceilings was in full swing yesterday as:

1. Spokesmen for nonoperation railroad unions, 1,100,000 strong, rejected a proposed sliding scale wage compromise which would give a 10-cents-an-hour increase to workers receiving the 46-cents-an-hour rail minimum, tapered downward to the higher brackets, giving those receiving 97 cents an hour and more a 4-cent boost.

2. The CIO United Steel Workers Union announced its intention of reopening 1300 steel wage contracts to secure an increase over present levels which were determined in July, 1942, when the "Little Steel" wage yardstick was used initially.

3. Philip Murray, who heads both the CIO and the Steel Workers, told reporters in Philadelphia that "one may assume" that similar wage requests would be made by all other CIO unions.

4. Sidney Hillman, president of the CIO Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, on leaving a conference with President Roosevelt, told reporters he had advised the Chief Executive that labor groups generally are dissatisfied with the 15 per cent wage yardstick. Most of the dissatisfaction, Hillman said, stems from the feeling that Congress has failed to provide strict controls over prices to offset wage stabilization.

5. Indicating satisfaction with the wage and hour adjustment pried out of the Government, the bulk of the Nation's coal miners resumed production after a full week's stoppage. Although Government officials contend that the $1.50 daily boost won by the miners goes largely for increased work, labor spokesmen may be expected to attempt to capitalize on the miners' boost to justify granting a general round of adjustments.

6. Meeting under a presidential charter to investigate the basic cause of labor dissatisfaction—the rising cost of living—the War Labor Board's cost of living committee held its first meeting yesterday and announced plans to determine what living costs really are. If the group were to find that the Bureau of Labor Statistics c. of l. index does not adequately reveal the rise since January 1, 1941, Little Steel base period, it would thus lay the groundwork for revision of the wage yardstick.

The WLB group announced its plans as follows:

To see what the cost of living was in October of this year, compared with January, 1941, May, 1942 (terminal point of the Little Steel formula), and September, 1942 (stabilization date

Stocks Nosedive On Peace Rumors

New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—Talk of an imminent European peace paradoxically hit financial markets one of their worst blows of 1943 today. Selling of stocks, bonds and commodities apparently was based on the theory wide-scale industrial complications might follow a sudden ending of the war on the Continent.

Stock leaders tumbled $1 to $4 a share and isolated issues were down as much as $10. The high-speed ticker tape fell two minutes behind actual floor transactions for a while. There were subsequent slowdowns and a few minor recoveries were in evidence at the close.

Two persons were killed in traffic accidents in the Washington area in a rainstorm which accompanied a tornado that struck about 20 miles northwest of the District of Columbia line at Washington Grove, Md., about 6 o'clock last night with resultant damage to farm buildings and other property.

The dead are:

Mrs. Nellie Ports, 71, o 2233 Mount View pl. se., who died at Casualty Hospital a few hours after she was struck by a car said to have been driven by Detective John L. Sprague of the First Precinct, who lives at 403 Oglethorpe st. nw.

At the height of the storm, James W. Carrington, 47, of 651 F st. ne., suffered severe injuries when struck by a taxicab on 14th st. near F nw. He was removed to Gallinger Hospital and after treatment for head injuries he signed a release, police said, for discharge. As he was leaving, he collapsed and later his condition was described as critical. Police said the cab was driven by John H. Pryce, 31, Negro, 704 20th st. ne.

John C. Ryan, 22, and his wife, Charlotte, 23, of Indianhead, Md., received head injuries when struck by a hit-and-run motorist and thrown in the path of another car in the 1200 block 11th st. se. They were treated at Providence Hospital. Police were searching for the hit-run car.

8 Democrats Seek Subsidy Compromise

House Banking Group Warns Inflation Is Genuine Threat

By Robert C. Albright

Eight Democratic members of the House Banking Committee yesterday called on the House to think twice before repealing the Administration's consumer food subsidy program.

In a minority report, warning that a subsidy repealer means an inflationary jump of 4 to 20 per cent in more than 24 food items, the group made the first formal House bid for a subsidy compromise.

Instead of the Steagall bill's abrupt ending of subsidies on December 31, the eight-man report proposed a dollars and cents limitation on the amount used for subsidies sufficiently large to permit the Government "to maintain the present prices rather than to decrease them."

At the same time, Representative A. S. Mike Monroney (Democrat) of Oklahoma, a leading member of the group, announced he is drafting an amendment not only to authorize a fixed amount for subsidies, but to condition the grant on continued enforcement of the Little Steel formula.

'Living on Borrowed Time'

Monroney said his amendment would make about $900,000,000 available for continued payment of present subsidies, plus a limited number of additions, only so long as the Little Steel wage line is held.

The Monroney amendment thus would pass back to the Administration the responsibility for holding the stabilization line by assuring congressional concurrence in cost of living subsidies just so long as there was no break-through on wages.

"I don't think the country is fully alert to the fact, but so far as inflation is concerned, we are living on borrowed time," said Monroney.

"Just as sure as consumer subsidies are repealed, and living costs are allowed to shoot up, wages will break through as well. We've got to hold both, and this is one way of doing it."

Administration Consulted

Earlier, the Banking Committee's minority report was dropped into the House hopper at about the same time that Banking Committee Chairman Henry B. Steagall filed the majority recommendation that funds be denied any Government agency for payment of consumer subsidies after December 31.

It was the committee's second attempt to end subsidies within the

Daily Giving Should Average $232,857, Jennings Asserts

In a strongly worded patriotic appeal to the District's approximately 900,000 residents, Coleman Jennings, chairman of the 1943-44 Community War Fund Campaign drive, urged a rededication of Armistice Day by concerted giving to put the campaign over its top of $4,800,000 by November 11.

The appeal was backed by more than 18,000 volunteer workers who took the field in last-hour attempt to gain pledges of $898,571, all that remains to end the drive, and but 15 per cent short of the goal.

"In Washington this week, we have a great opportunity to honor men of this war as well as of the last," Jennings said feelingly. "We can honor them by a gift of sacrifice and memoriam to Community War Fund, an organization today working for the things for which they died."

Echoes President's Plea

Jennings echoed the plea of the President who earlier had urged the people of the Nation "to devote themselves with renewed fervor to every task that will contribute to winning of the war."

Total drive contributions amount to $4,101,429 or 85.4 per cent of the goal. A daily average of $232,857 for next three days must be maintained if the hopes of Jennings are to be realized and the fund goal reached.

Leading the intensified drive to complete the huge task by Armistice Day is the Government Division, already over its two-million-dollar quota.

With all four adjacent counties below their quotas, drive volunteers will call upon every householder, office and plant worker in the next 72 hours, reminding them of the fund's urgency and the President's appeal.

Possibility was strong that the business and finance division, John L. Vandegrift, chairman, would pass its quota of $1,350,000 by tomorrow. The division is but 6 per cent short of finishing its job, with $1,274,915 subscribed.

Mass Meeting Canceled

A Government mass meeting scheduled for late yesterday afternoon on steps of OPA headquarters, 2nd and D sts. sw., has been permanently canceled, all workers in the Government division preferring to stay in the field to insure over-subscription of their quota.

All divisions will meet tomorrow at 12:30 in the United States

Protestant Peace Drive

Christian Mission on World Order Will Open Here Today

By Robert Tate Allan

The Christian Mission on World Order, Protestantism's united approach toward a just and lasting peace, comes to the Nation's Capital today.

Protestantism's most ambitious endeavor since the famed National Christian Mssion of 1940-41, the Mission here and in 100 other cities this month represents the fifth major step of American churches toward molding public opinion for a Christian peace.

First step was the Delaware (Ohio) Conference of March, 1942, leading to the adoption of "The Six Pillars of Peace" proposed by the Federal Council of Churches, New York Cty, which is sponsoring the national Mission in cooperation with other religious bodies.

During last summer regional conferences on a just and durable peace were held at Hood College, Frederick, Md., and other places, and an international roundtable on peace problems met at Princeton University.

The most recent step was the signing of a joint statement of broad peace principles by leaders of Catholic Protestant and Jewish faiths. Among the signers were the Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, Catholic Archbishop of Baltimore and Washington, and Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld, spiritual leader of the Washington Hebrew (Reformed) Congregation.

The sixth step will be follow-up study courses on a just and durable peace in Protestant churches throughout America.

Day sessions of the Mission will be held at Calvary Baptist Church, 8th and H sts. nw., with a box luncheon served at 12:30 p. m. by the Washington Council of Church

35 Enemy Craft Are Knocked Out In Smashing New Blow at Rabaul

By William F. Boni.

Southwest Pacific Allied Headquarters (Tuesday), Nov. 9 (AP).—Sixty-three Japanese planes have been destroyed in new air battles over the South Pacific sector.

Twenty-three planes were shot out of the air and 12 destroyed on the ground in another of a growing series of smashes on Rabaul, New Britain, headquarters said today.

Japanese planes also were active on a widespread scale. They struck at Empress Augusta Bay, where United States Marines hold a bridgehead on the west coast of Bougainville.

They struck south of Bougainville at Allied-won Treasury Island. They also attacked two positions on New Guinea and another on New Georgia.

In the continuing Allied air strike at concentrations of enemy warships and freighters sent into the battle for the Solomons, a heavy cruiser and two destroyers were attacked off Bougainville. Hits or misses were believed to have been scored at low altitude by the night flying torpedo planes on two destroyers.

6 Enemy Ships Sunk

Despite the heavy enemy air raid at Empress Augusta Bay, the Marines continued to consolidate their positions there. Off the northern coast of Bougainville near Buka, Mitchell medium bombers of Admiral William F. Halsey's South Pacific force sank an enemy corvette and five small cargo boats.

Rabaul, where an inrush last week of warships from Truk was the signal for attacks by the air forces of both General MacArthur and Admiral Halsey, was blasted in the latest raid Sunday with 84 tons of bombs by fighter-escorted Liberators. They concentrated their daylight attack on Rapopo airdrome.

Nine bombers and three fighters were destroyed on the ground. In addition to the 23 downed, eight others probably were destroyed out of the 50 fighters which intercepted. Five of the escorting P-38s are missing.

Large fires sprang up where airplanes are dispersed and barracks were damaged.

No Reports on Solomons

There still were no reports of any naval action in the Solomons sector such as have been made, with extensive claims of sinkings, by the Japanese.

Admiral Halsey's air units kept right on pounding into uselessness the enemy airfields on invaded Bougainville. Meeting no enemy air interception, Avenger torpedo bombers, Dauntless dive bombers and Mitchell medium bombers tore at gun positions—the only working defenses for those airfields—and installations at the Kara strip on the southern coast of Bou-

Russians Smash Ahead in Pursuit Of Battered Foe Routed at Kiev

London (Tuesday), Nov. 9 (AP).—The Red army smashed through 60 villages yesterday in pursuit of the battered remnants of 12 German divisions routed from wrecked Kiev, killing 1500 more enemy troops and striking to within 115 miles of the old Polish border and 140 miles of Rumania.

A midnight communique supplement recorded by the Soviet monitor from a Moscow broadcast said the Russians had forced the Zdvish River to take Makarov, 28 miles west of Kiev, and the other nearby localities of Vyshev and Motyzhin.

This followed a special bulletin saying the Germans had left 15,000 dead and 6200 prisoners out of an original force of 180,000 men routed on the Kiev battlefields in the four-day fight preceding the Ukraine capital's capture last Saturday.

45 Miles Beyond Kiev

Expanding their breakthrough at Kiev into an 80-mile front, the Russians seized Gornastaipol, 45 miles above Kiev and 10 miles west of the Dnieper River as they steadily pinned Germany's northern Ukraine forces against the Pripet marshes.

The Russians also were reported 45 miles beyond Kiev on the southwest in their push from Fastov toward the Rumanian border—an advance which will bring disaster to huge German forces in the Dnieper bend if it is not checked.

A German radio commentator said: "A situation is developing which is regarded as crucial by both belligerents."

The Moscow newspaper Pravda, in telling of the German flight beyond Kiev, said the Germans threw away weapons, ammunition and even clothing, and that many were trampled to death on roads jammed with moving and wrecked vehicles.

800 More Killed Near Kerch

Aside from the casualties inflicted on the Germans by the Russians fanning out far beyond Kiev, the communique said 800 were killed near Kerch in the eastern Caucasus, and 500 more in the Nevel sector of the north-central front, where another heavily fortified German strongpoint was seized.

A Moscow broadcast beamed to the Baltic states said that spearheads of another Red army fighting west and southwest of Nevel on the North-Central Front had reached the outskirts of Polotsk, only 20 miles from the old Polish border.

Polotsk is a junction on the Viterbsk-Riga railway, where it meets the line running north to Leningrad. It is 60 miles northwest of Vitebsk, which is being outflanked by the Russians.

In the eastern Caucasus, the Russians still were fighting to improve their bridgeheads near

Hitler Vows Fight to Finish, Threatens Home-Front Purge

By James F. King

London, Nov. 8 (AP).—Adolf Hitler vowed today the Nazis would fight fanatically to the end, and, admitting some persons in Germany wanted an Allied victory, warned he would resort to mass executions to prevent a home front collapse.

Flanked by Nazi Party bigwigs in a Munich beer cellar, Hitler, in a belligerent, somewhat boastful speech broadcast by the Berlin radio and recorded by the Associated Press, demanded loyalty above all.

He aimed sharp threats in many directions, but marked the sharpest toward his own home front.

"I know that I demand the apparent impossible from the battlefront," he asserted, "but this almost impossible must force a decision in our favor."

In the speech, which took just short of an hour to broadcast and marked the anniversary of Hitler's abortive beer hall putsch of 1923, the Nazi dictator apparently took a stab at whipping up new national courage, when he declared:

"Everything is possible, but that I should lose my nerve is impossible."

The Berlin radio said Hitler was between Reichmarshal Hermann Goering and Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler as he spoke, and described the scene as one resembling the old time National Socialist Party rallies, complete with flags and martial music.

Hitler challenged the Allies to open a "second front" in Europe, and declared that "if they try . . . it will be seen whether the reserves we have been keeping in many fields are a sign of weakness or prudence."

The Nazi chief acknowledged reverses in Russia and, referring to Allied bombings of Germany, said "the sufferings of the German peo-

British 30 Miles From Key Port; Hitler Tosses In New Divisions

By Edward Kennedy

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Nov. 8 (AP).—Allied forces hammered relentlessly toward Rome today, the Eighth Army reaching a point less than 30 miles from the Port of Pescara on the Adriatic Sea and the Fifth Army driving hard on Gaeta, only 70 miles from Rome. The Germans apparently were destroying Gaeta's harbor facilities in the face of imminent Allied occupation.

From their frontline positions 9 miles from Gaeta, Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth Army fighters heard several great explosions in the city, evidently from mines set off by the hard-pressed Nazis. Gaeta is the best port between Naples and Civitavecchia, above Rome, and would be of supreme value in supplying the next stage of the campaign for the Italian capital.

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth Army, sustaining its powerful offensive up the Adriatic, registered a 6-mile gain to capture Casalbordino, occupy the entire length of the Sinello River and turn the whole left flank of the German front.

Thirteen miles inland from the mouth of the Garigliano River, American troops slugged forward a mile over wild mountainous terrain to seize Calabritto, while other units occupied heights overlooking the key enemy stronghold of Mignano after beating back heavy Nazi counterattacks.

(An Algiers broadcast by radio France declared the Fifth Army already had taken Mignano and had advanced 10 miles north of Venafro.)

The Germans, in belated realization of their danger, tossed two fresh divisions into the fighting—the 305th and 94th Infantry—but the reinforcements came too late to stem the determined Allied rush. There now are nine Nazi divisions, approximately 135,000 men, in the line across the Italian peninsula.

General Montgomery's Eighth Army veterans, many of whom fought at El Alamein a year ago and helped chase the Germans out of North Africa, took over the entire stretch of a major lateral highway running inland from Vasto on the Adriatic and at some points were within 7 miles of the Sangro River, along which the Nazis were expected to attempt their next stand.

Capture Four Towns

With Indian troops taking a prominent part in the advance, the Eighth captured Scerni, 7 miles due west of Vasto; Casalbordino, an equal distance northwest; Carunchio, 20 miles southwest, and Gissi, 12 miles southwest of Vasto, an Allied communique announced.

Pescara, apparent objective of Montgomery's crushing drive, is the Adriatic terminus of the most valuable road in central Italy—the main highway crossing the peninsula through Avezzano to Rome. The Germans were launching repeated tank attacks in unavailing efforts to halt this serious "back

Reds to Repay U. S. for Aid, Nelson Says

WPB Chief Quotes Stalin; Predicts Lasting Friendship

New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—Soviet Russia has promised to repay in full its obligations to the United States, Donald M. Nelson, War Production Board chairman, tonight told a huge rally marking the tenth anniversary of establishment to Soviet-United States diplomatic relations.

One of a number of prominent speakers predicting ever closer harmony between the two countries, Nelson said Marshal Joseph Stalin told him directly that "any obligation undertaken by this government (Russia) will be repaid in full and not in token payments."

Andrei A. Gromyko, Russian Ambassador to the United States, said the Moscow conference "demonstrated to the whole world the strength of the Anglo-Soviet-American fighting comradeship," and added:

"I wish to express my confidence that the present stage of Soviet-American relations will form a firm basis on which will be erected a

Nelson Glad to 'Shed Blood' on Red Front

WPB Chairman Donald Nelson, recalling his visit to Novo-Sibirsk, a city in Siberia, told how one of the officials of the city, a powerful figure of a man, seized a china plate on a table and said, "when we Russians like somebody, we break a plate—like this." The Russian smashed the plate to pieces with his fist.

Nelson responded by picking up two plates and smashing them with his fist. In doing so the WLB head cut his hand on a fragment. "But I did not mind," he said, "it gave me an opportunity to say that my blood was merely a token of our united military efforts—a little American blood on the Russian front, where they had poured out so much in our common cause."

London Suffers New Attack; Raid Toll Rises

Fast German Planes Assault Suburbs; 7th Alert in Week

By Gladwin Hill

London, Nov. 8 (AP).—Fast German planes attacked London's suburbs again tonight within 24 hours after a single Nazi bomb wrecked a crowded dance hall and two taverns with heavy casualties.

The best information was that damage in the new raid, which set off the sirens for the seventh time in as many nights, was small and only a relatively few persons were injured.

Allied fighters and bombers had crossed the Channel by daylight to attack Nazi targets in northern France.

The siren blasts found many of the habitually crowded amusement places virtually deserted, for Londoners were shocked by the tragedy of the crushed dance hall.

A Few Get Through

As on Sunday night, only a small number of German attackers got across the coast, but a few of them streaked through to the capital's outskirts.

The attackers bombed a school building, injuring several persons; a taxicab garage, and a number of private houses before they were driven off.

An authoritative statement said three of the raiders were destroyed.

A number of American and British servicemen and women were believed to have been in the dance-hall. American and British officers visited a nearby mortuary, where the bodies were being identified.

The British said officially a "considerable" number of persons were killed. The toll was the greatest since 44 children were killed in the bombing of the Catford School last January 20.

Survivors Tell Stories

Survivors told graphically how it feels to be the target of one of the Germans' new 400-mile-an-hour hit-and-run night raiders.

Reynolds Says He Won't Seek Reelection to Senate in 1944

Senator Robert R. Reynolds (Democrat) of North Carolina, outspoken critic of the Administration's foreign policy and one of the five men who voted against the Senate's postwar declaration last week, anounced yesterday he would not run for reelection.

Reynolds stepped out of the 1944 Senate race as rival North Carolina factions were uniting behind former Gov. Clyde R. Hoey in an effort to wrest the nomination from him.

The campaign had promised to equal in color the 1932 race in which Reynolds, then a political unknown, defeated Cameron Morrison by one of the largest majorities the State has ever run up.

In a formal statement, Reynolds said he could not conscientiously look after his duties as Senator and chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee while taking time out in the spring of 1944 to make the campaign.

He said he had to make a choice "between that of service to my State and Nation, or the furtherance of my own personal, political ambitions."

"There is but one choice," said Reynolds. "The duty I owe to my State and Nation at this particular time is far greater than my own personal or political ambitions."

Elevation of the frankly isolationist Reynolds to the Senate Military chairmanship on the death of Senator Morris Sheppard had given the Administration many a nervous moment. But Reynolds soon convinced leaders their fears were ill grounded. All important military legislation was cleared with dispatch and in the recent fathers' draft test, the North Carolina Senator lined up foursquare with the Administration. Tax Framers Again Reverse Selves for $10 Liquor Levy

By the Associated Press

Reversing itself again, the House Ways and Means Committee decided yesterday to increase the liquor tax to $10 a gallon, which would amount to 12.5 cents a drink for 100 proof liquor when figuring 80 drinks to the gallon.

The present spirits tax is $6. The committee previously had jumped the tax to $10, back-tracked to $8, and now has put it back to $10.

By the latest action, meaning an increase of 66 2-3 per cent, the revenue in the new tax bill was boosted by about $243,000,000 to approximately $2,000,000,000—80 per cent short of the Administration request for $10,500,000,000.

The committee expects to report the bill to the House later this week.

Representative Celler (Democrat) New York, served notice that the $10 liquor tax would run into a battle on the House floor, declaring such a levy would mean "the return of bootlegging, hijacking, bathtub gin and strawberry-flavored hair tonic."

A Ways and Means member said the committee, in its new action, apparently took the position that all the dwindling liquor supplies would be consumed regardless of the size of the tax.

The committee made no other changes in the previously hiked excises on so-called luxuries.

There were indications, however, that the higher postal rates might be revised further. Members reported they were receiving numerous protests against various postal increases.

Capt. Maurice B. O'Neil, of the New Orleans police department, testifying in the Oakes slaying case, declared yesterday that a fingerprint offered to connect Alfred de Marigny with the slaying of his father-in-law did not come from the bedscreen on which Crown witness said it was found.

Meanwhile, the Crown hammered at De Marigny's alibi as Marquis Georges de Visdelou, De Marigny's long-time friend, swore that De Marigny was at home the night of the murder, despite a previous statement made by the witness that he did not see De Marigny that night.

Yanks, British Rush Plans for Invasion

War Sidelights

Kassel's Use As Nazi War Center Ends

London, Nov. 8 (AP).—Kassel has ceased to exist as part of the Nazi war industry "for some time at least," the Air Ministry said tonight after studying new reconnaissance photographs of the heavily bombed Ruhr industrial city of 200,000 persons.

All but 15 of the 315 acres in the built-up section of the city are devastated and nearly half of the rest of the city, excluding the suburbs is destroyed, the ministry said, commenting on pictures taken following American and British double-punch raids on October 4 and October 22. The October 22 raids caused fires which burned for a week. Kassel has been bombed heavily five times during the last six months.

Nazis Seek Evaders

Bern, Switzerland, Nov. 8 (AP).—Nazi machine-gunners suddenly deployed around the Scionzier soccer field in Haute Savoie, France, during a match Sunday, and closed all exits. A dispatch to the Tribune de Geneve said they were searching for evaders of the labor draft. Fifty were taken into custody after a check of several hundred spectators.

Albanian Nazi Killed

London, Nov. 8 (AP).—Reports reaching Cairo today from Albania, according to Reuters, said Mustafa Merlika Kruja, pro-Nazi former premier of Albania, was shot and his son, Kahfer Merlika, killed, on October 12 as they were driving through Tirana.

At least two other attempts have been made on the former premier's life, one in May of 1942, which resulted in the arrest of 200 persons, and another last June 6.

Last Big Gasp Of Luftwaffe Seen in Offing

Allied Military Headquarters Somewhere in Italy, Nov. 8 (AP).—There is every prospect that, starting in December, one of the war's last great air struggles will be fought in the skies over Italy between the Luftwaffe and the powerful American-British air force in this theater.

Officers who had been attached to the staff of Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring quote him as saying the full strength of the Luftwaffe will be turned to the Mediterranean for the winter after weather blocks operations on the Russian front.

These officers quote Kesselring as saying, "Then I will have a real air force and we will show the Americans."

Seen as Last Big Gasp

Allied military men believe that any such large-scale German air effort will mean its last big gasp of the war.

Not only Allied airmen but many ground generals as well believe that the crack in German military strength in this war will come not in the fleet as in the last war but in the air force.

While Kesselring is reported to have been removed from command in Italy and replaced by Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, this is expected to make no difference in the German high command's plans.

The Germans realize fully the might of the Allied air force being assembled in the Mediterranean for a winter attack against Germany and are determined to stop it at all costs.

This is one of the main reasons why the Nazi high command is making every effort to keep the Allies away from the big bomber fields around Rome as long as possible even at a heavy cost to their ground forces.

It is expected the Germans will concentrate numbers of fighters in the Po Valley to try to intercept Allied bomber fleets as they cross the Alps.

Will Welcome Showdown

The Allied tactical air force, the largest and most potent weapon of its kind in the world, and the Allied strategic air force, which is second only to the Britain-based RAF in bomber fleets, welcomes this expected showdown battle.

The Allied airforce in this theater has won every sky struggle since last January against the Luftwaffe by continuous bombing of Nazi airfields until they finally catch the German planes on the ground and wipe them out.

As long as the Americans have daylight bombers to operate over German airfields it is difficult to see how the Germans ever will be able to build up enough strength to challenge the Allies seriously, let alone throw great bomber fleets into action.

A vital factor in air superiority is the daylight bomber and the Germans thus far have been unable to develop such a weapon that can stand up against fighters.

Greatest U. S. Army In History Reported Forming in Britain

By Lewis Hawkins

London, Nov. 8 (AP).—American and British troops are swiftly preparing for the Second Front which Marshal Josef Stalin has said is near and which President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill have promied will be on an unprecedented scale.

Bits of information filter trhough official channels which tell the enemy nothing he doesn't know, but indicate that the preparations are under way on a rising tide of anticipation.

The American army that will storm history's mightiest fortress will be better prepared, better equipped and in greater strength than any army that ever took the field under the Stars and Stripes.

They will meet the best of Hitler's army beside an Allied force equally powerful, as thoroughly trained in new techniques, and superbly equipped.

Obviously, no major attack will be lauched without the full support or armored, artillery and air units.

The framework for the administration, command and supply of military forces on an unprecedented scale is now taking shape in Britain. Within this framework is a liaison organization patterned after that used in the Mediterranean theater to weld Allied land, sea and air forces into a single devastating weapon.

America's Navy also may be expected to be fully prepared for its place in the armada that may dwarf the Allied Mediterranean fleets.

American units, including an aircraft carrier, are already disclosed to have been operating with the British home fleet, and if reinforcements are needed it may be assumed that other units of the United States Fleet will be ranged alongside Britain's squadrons.

Eden Praises Soviet on Its 26th Anniversary

London, Nov. 8 (AP).—"The resolution of all of the United Nations in the struggle against Germany" has been strengthened by the Moscow conference, the Red army's new victories and the progress of the Allied armies on all fronts, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told Soviet Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov in a message today.

Eden extended congratulations in connection with the twenty-sixth anniversary of the Bolshevist revolution.

"His majesty's government sends you and the Soviet government thanks and congratulations on the mighty achievements of the Soviet people, and their leaders," Eden said.

Wind-Whipped Snow Blocks Roads in Wide Midwest Area

Chicago, Nov. 8 (AP).—Heavy snow whipped by powerful winds blocked roads, closed schools and impeded traffic across a wide stretch of the wintry Midwest today.

The first extensive snow of the season, scaling up to a foot or more in some places, reached its greatest depth in Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska and the Dakotas and fell in several adjacent States.

A 7-inch fall churned by a 40-mile-an-hour gale marooned 50 school children and between 15 and 20 adults in a filling station at Weeping Waters, Nebr., for almost 24 hours. They were freed when roads were opened this afternoon. A restaurant, operated in conjunction with the gasoline dispensary, kept them well fed during their imprisonment.

Four Buses Dug Out

Snow plows sent to the rescue of four buses near Gretna, Nebr., became stalled and more equipment was dispatched to dig out all the vehicles. The Nebraska ordnance plant at Mead shut down its production line because workers were unable to get to their jobs.

Schools in a score of Minnesota areas suspended classes because of the storm—in the third day there. Wire communication was disrupted, but traffic was hampered and planes were grounded. Although only five deaths were attributed to the weather, Minnesotans compared the storm to the wave of cold and blizzards of November 11-14 in 1940, when 53 residents of the State lost their lives.

The current storm deposited 11 inches of snow in Fairmont, 10 in Albert Lea and 9 in Mankato, Minn.

Most Schools Closed

The snow was reported unofficially to range up to a foot and a half in the vicinity of Spirit Lake, Iowa. Almost all the schools were closed in the Spencer and Spirit Lake sections of northwestern Iowa.

As thermometer levels dropped to freezing or below at many points in the Midwest, the coal situation was reported to be becoming critical in some sectors of Iowa. Heat in the State House was shut off at noon to conserve fuel.

Snow fell in Missouri, Wisconsin and Kansas. Snow, high winds and colder weather were forecast for Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Western Pennsylvania.

Youth Refusing To Be Inducted Gets 2-Year Term

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 8 (AP).—Stanley Mocarsky, 23, a Hartford arms plant worker who several weeks ago was invited by a U. S. District Court judge to leave the country or face jail for refusal to be inducted into the armed forces, was sentenced today to two years in the Federal correctional institution at Danbury.

Judge Carroll C. Hincks imposed sentence only after pleading with Mocarsky for 20 minutes for reconsideration, but the young man, declaring that his decision was goverened by a "complex," said:

"I just can't. I've tried to. I want to but I'm just ashamed."

3000 Japs Die in Advance Along Yangtze

Chungking, Nov. 8 (AP).—A costly Japanese advance on the central Yangtze front was reported today by the Chinese high command, which said more than 3000 invaders were killed in a single sector.

The Japanese occupied many villages and towns in the drive which carried them in the north to the hills southwest of Chikiang, Yangtze port 32 miles below Ichang, and into Sitsai, southwest of Sungtze which is 30 miles west of Shasi. Chinese dispatches reported brisk fighting at Yangki, farther up the river from Sungtze.

A new outbreak of fighting occurred near Nancheng, capital of Kiangsi, the province to the east of this area, with several more hundred Japanese killed.

In western Yunnan, the Chinese said a Japanese attack from Kunlung was thrown back.

2 Boats Invade Fjord

London, Nov. 8 (AP).—Two British motor torpedoboats, boldly invading Sogne Fjord which flows into the North Sea about 50 miles north of Bergen, Norway, were jumped by a German patrol boat and forced to flee, DNB said today in a Berlin broadcast.

Forts Batter Bearing Plant at Turin

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Nov. 8 (AP).—Flying Fortresses of the newly formed U. S. 15th Air Force bombed the ball-bearing works of the giant Fiat motor factory at Turin today, on the first anniversary of Allied landings in North Africa.

It was the first American attack on Turin, which previously had been bombed by RAF night squadrons which flew across the Alps and was a vital blow at the Navi industrial machine, following up obliteration of Germany's main ball-bearing producing plant at Schweinfurt by Britain-based Flying Fortresses October 14.

(The Bern radio tonight quoted an official Rome announcement as admitting "heavy material damage" was caused by the Turin raid, the CBS short-wave listening post reported. The Rome announcement further said "The number of casualties is considerable," the Swiss radio broadcast reported).

Payroll Accounting Simplified

To Help You Save Precious Time

ALL BUSINESS operations consume time—and time is the most critical factor in war. "Lost ground," said the President recently, "can always be regained—lost time never."

Finding the simpler, quicker way to make a rivet, harvest a crop or handle a payroll, literally "makes" time—adds to our stock of that critical material.

▲ FOR INSTANCE—this week many offices will produce today's complex payroll records in one-half the time formerly consumed. This despite the new "load" added by the Withholding Tax.

▲ THE REASON—a new payroll plan by Shaw-Walker automatically transfers each figure to the several essential records.

After writing payroll figures just once, every record needed is completed, correct and up-to-date—ready for quarterly reports and government inspection. Rewriting of figures is entirely eliminated.

Entirely eliminated, too, are separate records for War Bonds, Social Security, Withholding Tax, employee insurance, employee hospitalization, union dues and all other ledger records of a similar nature.

Every pay day the statement you give to each employee includes:

(1) A complete record of earnings.

(2) A detailed list of deductions.

(3) A notice telling the worker the exact amount he has on deposit with you toward his next War Bond.

ALL MADE AT ONE WRITING: pay checks, employee pay statement, social security and withholding tax record, War Bond Record, ledger record of other deductions, check register and payroll summary.

▲ SO SIMPLE is the "KOPI-SPOT" payroll system that any clerk can handle it. It can be adapted to any type of payroll whether you pay by check or in cash—whether you make your entries by typewriter or by hand.

▲ A COMPLETE FOLDER has been prepared, illustrating the "KOPI-SPOT" and explaining its application to various payroll methods. May we send you a copy of it?

FOR THE DURATION any old file will do—it's the system itself that counts!

AFTER THE WAR transfer the system intact to any of the following:

A SHAW-WALKER FIRE FILE—the steel file with built-in fire protection. It gives safe-like security, even in severe fires.

OR THE DRAWERS of the Shaw-Walker steel desk. This is the famous new low desk for comfort and hard work.

Crown Confounds Marigny Witness

Defense Scores, Too, When Police Expert Assails Lifted Fingerprint Evidence

Nassau, Bahamas, Nov. 8 (AP). Alfred de Marigny's chief alibi witness ran afoul a prosecutor armed with a surprise document today and found himself in red-faced confusion before he finished his story of his close friend's activities on the night Sir Harry Oakes was slain last July.

Moving swiftly toward the end of de Marigny's trial for the murder of his father-in-law, the defense then matched the word of one American police captain against another in an effort to discredit the fingerprint offered by the Crown as evidence that the defendant was present when the aged gold miner was beaten on the head and set afire.

The defense expects to rest its case tomorrow, with 19-year-old Nancy Oakes de Marigny, eldest daughter of Sir Harry, and de Marigny's wife, as the final witness.

Confronted With Statement

The Marquis Georges de Visdelou, who has known de Marigny since they were boys together on the Indian Ocean island of Mauritius, was called upon to substantiate the accused man's story that he was home in bed at the time Sir Harry was attacked in his seaside estate, Westbourne, five miles away.

Previous witnesses have set the time of Sir Harry's death at between 1:30 and 3:30 a. m. July 8, and the handsome de Visdelou recalled under oath that he talked to de Marigny in the cottage they shared at 1:30 a. m., and at about 3:15 was asked by the latter to put out his cat.

But Special Prosecutor A. F. Adderley suddenly opened up a signed statement de Visdelou had given to police July 11, and read this excerpt:

"I actually did not see de Marigny from midnight until the following morning."

"I am French and very emotional," said de Visdelou in explanation. "I was very nervous then."

Adderley Reads On

Adderley, pointing out that every page was signed by de Visdelou, read another passage:

"While at Westbourne July 10 de Marigny reminded me he had called to me about the cat. I didn't recollect this until he reminded me. I don't remember whether de Marigny called me from the bedroom or not. There was something about a cat."

Chief Justice Sir Oscar Bedford Daly grew impatient when de Visdelou swore that his police statement about his early life was correct.

"How can you go through all that about Paris and London," he demanded, "but become vague on happenings only a couple of days old?"

"I now give you an opportunity to explain how your memory became vague on the happenings of July 8."

"I cannot explain, your honor," said the flustered witness.

Next on the witness stand, Capt. Maurice B. O'Neil of the New Orleans police declared:

"I can say positively Exhibit J did not come from that screen."

Thus he took issue squarely with Capt. James O. Barker of the Miami police, who testified that the fingerprint in evidence—Exhibit J—was lifted from the bedscreen.

Barker said the bedscreen stood in the death room.

Chief Defense Attorney Godfrey Higgs has suggested that the fingerprint was faked, and defense witnesses have made much of the fact that Capt. E. W. Melchen of the Miami police asked De Marigny to pour him a glass of water during his questioning.

Three circles which appeared in photographs of Exhibit J have been stressed, and O'Neil declared today that there is nothing on the surface of the screen to cause them.

O'Neil insisted that the circles definitely are "part of an industrial design."

He offered to demonstrate by lifting a fingerprint from a dime-store water glass with circular decorations to show that the circle would be visible.

Attorney-General Eric Hallinan asked whether the defense contended that the water glass had a pattern similar to the one on the glass Melchen asked De Marigny to handle.

"We suggest no such thing," declared Higgs.

O'Neil made the demonstration with a glass cigarette holder on a stem in an ash tray, lifting Jury Foreman James Sands' print.

"The lift shows circles on the glass of the ash tray," wrote the Chief Justice into the record after an inspection.

O'Neil attacked the introduction of a lifted fingerprint.

"The proper method for introducing a fingerprint in court is by photographs showing the location of the print and the background from which it came. I never heard of a case where a lifted print was introduced in court," the expert declared.

Any Camera Would Do

He said he examined the panel from which Barker recalled lifting the print, and "I find no area which would produce such a background as the circles.

The crown has said no fingerprint camera was available for photographing the print on the screen surface, but O'Neil declared other kinds of cameras would have been suitable.

"It was in reply to a direct question from Higgs on reexamination that O'Neil said:

"I can say positively that Exhibit J did not come from that screen."

Dr. Ulrich Oberwarth, Bahamas prison physician at the time of De Marigny's arrest, testified he found no burned hairs on the prisoner's body when he examined him July 10.

Barker and Melchen said they found scorched and singed hairs on his hands and arms the night of July 8, and the Crown offered the testimony as proof that De Marigny was in the room when Sir Harry's attacker started a fire in an effort to hide the crime.

Oberwarth said he used no visual aid, but believed he would have noted burned hairs had there been a considerable number.

De Marigny's butler, Charles Rolle, said his employer gave a dinner party July 7, and returned to his cottage about 1:30 a. m. after driving two guests to their homes near Westbourne.

Differs With De Marigny

De Visdelou said he went to his apartment about 11:30 p. m. with Betty Roberts, a blonde friend. He said he went to sleep on the bed and she dozed on a couch.

At 1:30 a. m., Visdelou said, he was wakened by De Marigny, who asked whether he could take Miss Roberts home. Both De Marigny and Miss Roberts have corroborated this testimony.

Returning shortly after 3 o'clock after driving Miss Roberts home, De Visdelou said, he went to the kitchen to get a drink. He said he heard De Marigny calling. "He told me to remove my cat," the witness explained, adding: "I opened the door leading to the porch and let the cat out."

His testimony at this point differed from De Marigny's. The defendant said De Viselou came into his room and they talked. Under cross-examination by Adderley, De Visdelou said:

"I may have gone to the room for the cat. If I did, I don't recall."

De Visdelou told of paying for 200 gallons of gasoline brought to the Victoria Street cottage about lunchtime July 8. He and John H. Anderson, a banker, have been charged with violating gasoline rationing laws as a result.

House Naval Group to Probe Export Status Of Miranda Brothers in Brewster Inquiry

By Mary Spargo

The export connections of I. J. and A. J. Miranda, large stockholders of the Brewster Aeronautical Corp. and international munitions dealers, with the State Department will be explored tomorrow by the House Naval Affairs subcommittee.

The four-week investigation by the congressional committee led to an announcement Saturday by Tom Clark, Assistant Attorney General, that the Justice Department will lay evidence on all phases of the Brewster situation before a grand jury in two weeks.

Joseph Green, special assistant to the Secretary of State, and Howard Exton, who has replaced him as the State Department official in charge of munitions control, have also been asked to testify.

On Thursday the committee will hear Paul Krebs, secretary of Local 365, Victor Reuther, an official of the UAW-CIO union to which De Lorenzo's union is affiliated, and Lieut. Leo Hoffman, son of Representative Hoffman (Republican) of Michigan.

Hoffman is plant security officer at Brewster, and committee counsel describe the reports he has to give of conditions in the Brewster plants as "shocking."

Special Observers Expected

F. William Zelcer, Miranda partner and also a Brewster stockholder, previously testified before the committee that all exports of the American Armament Corp. with which he and the Mirandas were connected had the approval of the State Department.

Committee officials said yesterday that, in view of the fact that the testimony of Zelcer appeared to be in conflict with State Department records, those of the Justice Department's War Frauds Division and other official reports, special Department of Justice observers will be on hand Wednesday.

Committee members said that they would inquire especially into the extent of the acquaintanceship the two Miranda brothers had with Thomas Vincent de Lorenzo, leader of the Brewster union, Local 365, UAW-CIO.

De Lorenzo, born Harry Posner in Brooklyn, has testified that he first met the Mirandas after he entered the employment of the Brewster Corp.

Antecedents of Mirandas

The Mexican-born Mirandas emigrated to Brooklyn with their father many years ago, and have grown to multi-millionaire status in 20 years of the armament business.

Records in possession of the committee show that in commissions from the Brewster Aeronautical Corp. alone they have received three million dollars. They have also acted, according to a report of the Securities and Exchange Commission, as sales agents for Lockheed, Seversky, Curtiss-Wright and Fairchild.

Records of State Department dealings with the Miranda brothers and Zelcer have been turned over to the House subcommittee for study. Green, who was formerly in charge of munitions control for the department, is expected to tell of the Miranda dealings while he was in charge, while Exton will describe the more recent export licenses granted the American Armament Corp.

Committee members also said they intended to ask the Mirandas about those persons employed in the British Purchasing Commission at the time they received British bomber contracts who later "showed up on the Brewster Corp. payroll."

Questions will also be asked how the Mirandas happened to employ as their "Washington listening post," Thomas Krock, featured in an SEC report as adopting the alias of Gen. T. A. Ashby-Poley Von Krockow und Wickerode. Krock was formerly in the employ of the State Department in Madrid, Dublin and other foreign posts.

Members of the subcommittee have also expressed determination to question Green about the reported connection of the law firm headed by former Ambassador Joseph Davies, now adviser to the State Department, with Zelcer and the Mirandas.

A. B. Landa, of the Davies firm has previously asserted to The Post that his firm has represented the Mirandas and Zelcer for only one year, and never before the State Department in connection with export licenses. He said he has only appeared for them before the Navy Department, which forced them to put their voting stock in the Brewster Corp. in a voting trust controlled by persons "acceptable" to the Navy Department.

The SEC report, introduced into the subcommittee hearings by Representative Grant (Republican) of Indiana describes the two Miranda brothers as "suave, aristocratic, cultured" and expert at "making and preserving the connections necessary to get business."

They are "true internationalists, cut out of the same cloth as the munitions merchants of World War I," SEC stated.

Before the Nye committee investigating the munitions business in 1934 the Mirandas testified that in their South American business it was necessary to "take care of everyone" from the Presidents of the countries on down. They used such terms "as grease and palm oil" to explain how they obtained some of their orders.

Yugoslav Guerillas Warned Against Aiding Germans

Cairo, Nov. 8 (AP).—Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, British commander in chief in the Middle East, tonight warned Yugoslav guerilla groups which he said were "helping the Germans in their vain attempts to subdue the forces of liberation," that they would be regarded as traitors to their own people and enemies of the United Nations.

The general said he had "learned that in some areas of western Yugoslavia, particularly in Dalmatia, certain men are dishonoring the name of Chetnik and helping the Germans in their vain attempts to subdue the forces of liberation.

"These men are shamefully betraying the cause of their country and adding to this shame by claiming their actions have British approval."

No Charges Filed In Moore Girl Case

New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—With the removal today of Navy Firemen Edward J. Moore, 19, from St. Louis to Chicago, it was said that no formal charges had been preferred here against the youth who was sought in connection with the disappearance of 14-year-old Margaret Leighton Moore.

The Moore girl returned to her hom in New York City last Thursday after her disappearance on October 31. She told of going to Columbus, Ohio, with a sailor she had met in Central Park. She was pronounced unharmed by her family physician after her return.

Reds Intend to Repay Debt To U.S. in Full, Nelson Declares

building of still more active and efficient cooperation between our countries in the near future, in the period of the final stage of the war, as well as in the postwar period."

Nelson, who returned last week from a three-week survey of Russian war industry, was emphatic in his prediction of long and lasting friendship between Russia and the United States in an address before the Congress of American-Soviet Friendship at Madison Square Garden.

(Most of what the United States has done for Russia has been in the form of lend-lease shipments, which now total over $2,500,000,000.

"I came away convinced," Nelson said, "that there will be found no two peoples anywhere in the world better qualified to win each other's respect and admiration and friendship than the Russians and the Americans."

"I have gained a sense of the warm human feeling which underlies the wonderful achievement of Mr. Hull (Cordell Hull, Secretary of State) and his associates" in the signing of the Moscow unity pact, Nelson continued.

"To my way of thinking, the pact which Mr. Hull signed is far more than an important agreement between two great powers. It is an expression of the rooted desire of the people of America and Russia and England and China to come closer together, to seek better ways of understanding each other and a better means of expressing their common interests.

"That is why this great pact carried so much force, and has stirred the world so deeply. I join with you in acclaiming the Moscow pact, which represents a great forward stride in world history."

Nelson hinted that the top executives of the Allied production command believe the Germans know that they are whipped right now.

"I am amazed at the stupidity of the German leaders who continue to fight against the hopeless odds that are steadily mounting against them," he said, "I do not think that the Nazi high command can have any real hope left."

Joseph E. Davies, former Ambassador to Moscow, spoke on the same program, saying:

"Truth ultimately always prevails. Despite either the prejudice, the hatred, or the venality of willful or little men, who challenged it, the good faith and the integrity and purposes of the Soviet leadership and the Soviet people have been demonstrated for years and are now again being irrefutably established in Moscow."

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, promised that "the workers of our country, who during this war have broken all previous production records, are determined to stay on the job and reach even greater heights of service until the war is finally won.

R. J. Thomas, vice president of the CIO, held that "the Moscow conference has dashed the hopes of those who wanted our Nation and/or Britain to fight Russia after this war is over."

In a message to the rally, Vice President Henry A. Wallace said an even franker understanding with Russia must be developed during the next 10 years "if we are to make sure that the peace of the world will be firmly estbalished."

Kerch, and the German high command acknowledged "local success" by Soviet units fighting on the Perekop Isthmus at the northwestern corner of the big sealed-off peninsula .

The Russians were cleaning out the 30-mile area between Fastov and Makarov, overrunning scores of hamlets as they fanned out in all directions from their breakthrough at Kiev.

Indirectly acknowledging the gravity of the German position, the daily Berlin communique said the Nazi army was fighting bitter defensive battles against "superior forces."

The special Russian announcement giving details of the battle for Kiev said 12 German divisions, two of them tank divisions and one motorized, were routed.

In addition to the 21,200 troops lost by the Germans, Moscow gave this toll of enemy equipment:

Destroyed—244 German tanks, 126 aircraft, 174 field guns including 48 self-propelled guns, 158 mortars, 246 machineguns, and 28 stores of various kinds.

Captured—Thirty German aircraft, 42 tanks, 314 field guns, including 70 mobile guns, 140 mortars, 640 machineguns 650 trucks, 700 carts, over 2000 horses, 34 munition dumps, and 18 radio transmitters.

Kiev Scene of Devastation

Kiev, however, once the most beautiful city in Russia, is now a scene of devastation, the newspaper Pravda said.

While the Red army refrained from firing a single shell or dropping a single bomb on the city in hope of sparing it, Pravda said the Germans systematically destroyed it, beginning their demolition with the wrecking of Kreshchatiki—the city's boulevard regarded as a symbol of modernity.

The enemy also blew up the famous Uspensk Cathedral and the Pechora Monastery, after looting them of all gold, pictures, precious robes, and other fixtures. The water and utility systems also were blasted.

door" threat to the Eternal City.

Scarcely less serious from the enemy standpoint was the seizure by General Clark's Americans of heights around Mignano. This drive opened the way for a thrust behind the Aurunici Mountains and up a broad valley to Cassino along the Via Casilina, main inland route to Rome. Some German units fighting in this sector were reported here to be veterans of the Russian front.

There was much evidence that the Nazis were caught off balance by the weight of the new Allied offensive, just as they were caught napping by the great fleets which steamed into the Mediterranean a year ago today and seized jumping-off places for the present campaign.

63 Jap Planes Shot Down Over Pacific

gainville with 72 tons of bombs.

Other air blows at Bougainville were dealt at the Kieta airdrome, directly across the island from the U. S. Marine beachhead and air bases on Buka.

At Empress Augusta Bay, where torrential rains have been falling, 12 Japanese dive bombers tried to attack shipping "without effect," the communique said.

Five were shot down by antiaircraft batteries. The three enemy raids on Treasury Island were characterized as light and ineffective.

Munda Attack Fizzles

Two Japanese planes tried to attack the Munda vicinity on New Georgia, in the Central Solomons, but "dropped bombs harmlessly in the water."

Nine enemy bombers, escorted by 10 fighters, raided the Allied Nadzab air base in the Barkham Valley, northwest of Lae, New Guinea and caused moderate damage. Fighters shot down 7 bombers and 6 fighters with five other raiders listed as probables, thus accounting for all but one enemy plane in the attacking formation.

One of the outstanding features of the Rabaul raid Sunday, made by three formations, was that the Liberators shot down 13 of the enemy interceptors definitely listed as downed.

Many of the Japanese planes which took the air were believed to have been reinforcements. Approximately 800 enemy planes have been destroyed or damaged at Rabaul in less than a month.

There were no indications that the Japs still are running down convoys between Truk and Rabaul. In the only reported action against enemy warships, Australian-manned Beauforts went after the cruiser and two destroyers 50 miles southwest of Buka early Sunday.

Other enemy air reverses reported in today's communique included:

Seven fighters destroyed and an eighth probably by Allied air patrols in the vicinity of Madang, New Guinea.

Two fighters probably destroyed by Allied bombers in the Nadzab sector following the larger air battle there.

A bomber and fighter shot down over Buka.

A reconnaissance plane shot down off Santa Isabel, in the Central Solomons.

The other New Guinea air attack of the Japanese in addition to that at Nadzab was made on Australian positions at Finschhafen. Headquarters said there was no damage

ple through this bombing are enormous."

He reiterated, however, that "however long this war lasts, we shall never capitulate. We shall not give in at the eleventh hour. We shall go on fighting past 12 o'clock."

"I can support and lead the German people," he said. "I can say that whatever may happen at the end, victory is certain.

"If Germany breaks under the strain, I would not be sorry for it. It would not deserve any better fate. But this will never happen. . . . The fight for Germany has made me what I am."

The entire speech, his first to the German nation since the fall of Italy, carried an obviously defensive note—an apparent effort to answer reports of unrest in the Reich, reports which have been coming from neutral capitals with growing frequency.

Hitler averred that only the Nazi Party was holding the German nation together and demanded that party members "must bring to reason the unworthy and, if necessary, destroy him, because there is one thing which is beyond doubt, and that is that this is a war without pity."

In a sarcasm-dripping reference to the recent Moscow conference, Hitler said:

"They set up committees to study the shape of the world after the war. They would do better to think out how to shape their own world at present."

He reiterated his old charge that Britain was the prime mover in the war, and invoked the Bolshevist bogey, saying, "Whatever sacrifices we have to bear now, they are not to be compared with what we would have to bear if we lost this war."

Hitler said of the fighting in Italy that "the storm of Brenner (Brenner Pass in northern Ietaly, next to southern Germany) has become a snail offensive far to the south of Rome. (The Allies are reported less than 75 miles south of Rome.) It will have to pay its toll of blood—and that is according to our plans."

He declared that "every new landing in Italy will force the Allies to employ additional tonnage and split up their forces and wherever a landing occurs it will meet with German resistance."

Hitler said he was happy that his friend, Benito Mussolini, had been "rescued" from Allied hands, declaring that Mussolini "had done everything to make his people great, strong and happy and, in addition, let them participate in the big decision."

"The Italian collapse," he went on, "cannot be without repercussions on war developments. But the hopes of our opponents are in vain. Nothing of what they expected has happened, nor will it happen."

seemed to go up in the air and my brother disappeared. Next thing I remember I was digging myself out with my bare hands."

"We didn't hear a plane overhead but suddenly the lights went out and I found myself buried beneath plaster and ceiling fittings," said a bartender in one of the public houses smashed.

"I didn't hear the bomb come down," recounted a 17-year-old girl factory worker who was in a milk bar under the dance hall. "But suddenly the lights went out and I was thrown down and stuff started to shower on me. I thought the bricks never would stop falling. I managed to crawl out into the street."

Rescue Squads Toil On

The milk bar was the Sunday night rendezvous for young people of the district, and after the blast parents waited in the street as long as 10 hours for word of their children.

Rescue squads, toiling by searchlights on cranes, pulled the dead and injured into the road. Two British and one Belgian soldier died before the could be moved to a hospital.

At several hospitals, the surgeons operated all night and the day nursing staffs came back to work an extra shift.

The dance hall band was playing "White Christmas" when a bomb struck.

In the milk bar downstairs, recounted one of three girls who were perhaps the only ones in it to escape, "there were about 30 people and most of them were near the counter.

"We had just got inside the bar when it collapsed about us. The only thing left standing seemed to be the doorway and we dived through it. We fell into the road on our faces."

Buildings near the scene of the disaster began collapsing today and mounted policemen held the crowds back.

One rescue worker alone said he pulled out 32 bodies.

Probably an ME-410

Only half a dozen Gearman planes crossed the coast last night and but one got through to London. It probably was one of the German's 400-miles-per-hour fighter-bombers, ME-410's.

Unlike the Catford School tragedy when the planes hit before the sirens wailed, there was no suggestion of insufficient warning last night. But the dance hall band kept playing and the crowd, accustomed to raids, kept on dancing.

Forays with probably equal surprise effect to the enemy were made across the channel today by the RAF. British, Dutch, French and Polish formations of Mitchells and Boston medium and light bombers with strong fighter escort, attacked targets in northern France without seeing an enemy plane.

Last night for the fifth night straight, RAF Mosquitos slashed at objectives in western Germany. Daylight raiding across the Channel was taken up shortly after dawn by formations of Allied fighters and bombers.

Bill to Delay Father Draft Faces Doom in Conference Deadlock

Legislation designed to slow down induction of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers yesterday headed into a conference deadlock that threatened to doom the bill.

Doubt was expressed in many a Capitol quarter as to whether the bill, which has passed House and Senate is different forms, will ever become law.

Some legislators privately expressed the view that it will make little difference now whether the legislation is finally enacted or not. Father inductions, scheduled to take 440,000 dads into the armed forces by January 1, are already so far advanced that belated passage of the bill would affect few, if any.

Yesterday's conference deadlock developed over provisions delegating broader authority over Selective Service to Director Lewis B. Hershey.

Although the two bills widely differ on Hershey's powers, the initial conflict came over sections almost identical in their effect.

The disputed provision gives the Selective Service Appeals Board in an area where a registrant works appeal powers in deferments over his local draft board. But the Selective Service director would have final say in either bill. House members said their bill differed only in requiring that Hershey's decisions be made public.

Without passing on to more controversial sections of the bill, the conference broke up without fixing another meeting date.

Faces Other Hurdles, Too

Other hurdles to enactment, not yet reached in conference, were House provisions virtually repealing the "work-or-fight" orders of Manpower Director Paul V. McNutt and requiring that all other categories be exhausted on a national basis, before fathers are inducted.

Senate Administration forces were opposed to both of these disputed provisions. The first would nullify McNutt's nondeferrable lists, being used by the WMC to induce labor to switch over to war industries. Others pointed out that rigid enforcement of the House Kilday bill provisions might make it impossible to induct additional fathers, no matter how badly they were needed.

Utility Signs Pact With Fair Practice Clause

Malcolm Ross, chairman of the President's Committee on Fair Employment Practice, announced yesterday that the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. of Kansas City, Mo., has signed a Government contract for telephone services to be furnished war agencies in that area, containing the antidiscrimination clause required by presidential order.

The siging of the contract was delayed when the telephone company questioned whether the insertion of antidiscrimination clause was mandatory. The comptroller general ruled that the obligation imposed by Executive Order 9346 upon contracting agencies to insert the clause in each contract awarded by them was not a mandatory requirement, but merely a directive.

The FEPC then requested an interpretation of the scope and meaning of the executive order and last week President Roosevelt, in a letter to the Attorney General, declared that the antidiscrimination clause was mandatory and should be inserted in all contracts.

Judd, of Minnesota, former medical missionary to China, both of whom will speak at First Church. Dr. Herman Sweet, of the International Council of Religious Education, and the Rev. Ewart E. Turner, former pastor of the American Church in Berlin, will address the service at Mount Vernon Church, arranged by the Washington Federation of Christian Youth.

The Navy Chorus will sing at the youth rally at Mount Vernon Place Church, where hundreds of service banners of congregations will be displayed. Hugh Eskildson, president of the Washington Federation of Christian Youth, will preside.

Cosponsors of the Mission here are the Washington Federation of Churches, central body of 100,000 Protestants, and the Washington Council of Church Women. Dr. S. Paul Schilling, pastor of Brookland Methodist Church, and chairman of the federation's commission on a just and durable peace, is general chairman of the Mission here. Mrs. Joy Elmer Morgan heads the church women's council.

MRS. MORGAN

Dr. Frederick E. Reissig, federation executive secretary, will interview Dr. Crans today at 12:15 p. m. over WRC. Drs. Crane and Reissig will be guests of honor at a dinner of the American University's board of trustees today at 6:30 p.m. at the home of Dr. Paul F. Douglass, president.

Six Pillars of Peace

The six pillars of peace as proposed by the Federal Council of Churches' commission to study the bases of a just and desirable peace are:

1. The peace must provide the political framework for a continuing collaboration of the United Nations and, in due course, of neutral and enemy nations.
2. It must make provision for bringing within the scope of international agreement those economic and financial acts of national governments which have widespread international repercussions.
3. It must make provision for an organization to adapt the treaty structure of the world to changing underlying conditions.
4. It must proclaim the goal of autonomy for subject peoples, and it must establish international organization to assure and to supervise the realization of that end.
5. It must establish procedures for controlling military establishments everywhere.
6. It must establish in principle, and seek to achieve in practice, the right of individuals everywhere to religious and intellectual liberty.

Began in New York

The mission began nationally October 28 with a mass meeting in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York City, where messages urging American collaboration with other nations in postwar relations were heard from Sumner Welles, former Undersecretary of State, and Senator Joseph H. Ball of Minnesota. Ball and Representative Fulbright, champion of postwar peace resolutions, both have heartily indorsed the Mission on World Order.

Roswell F. Barnes, an official of the Federal Council of Churches, arriving last night for the Mission, said that interest was exceeding expectations, and said that hundreds were turned away at the Houston (Tex.) Mission. The Moscow parley and passage of the Connally resolution have stirred interest in the Mission, he said.

76 D. C. Men Report to Duty Tomorrow

Fairfax Man Killed by Car; 4 Injured Here

An elderly man was killed in a Fairfax County traffic accident yesterday and four were injured in the District when a taxi plowed against a tree on Massachusetts ave. nw., just east of Ward Circle and Nebraska ave.

Fatally injured was Emmett Anderson, 65, struck by an auto while walking on a road near his home at Springfield, Va. Fairfax County police reported the car was driven by Eving Crawn, 26, also of Springfield. No charges had been placed against him last night.

Two of the four injured in the District were admitted to Emergency Hospital. They were Mrs. Claudia Tinsley, 39, of 1328 Massachusetts ave. nw., suffering from a possible skull fracture, and Pearl Green, 32, of North Vernon, Ind., who suffered a possible brain concussion. Police said the cab was driven by James B. Bladen, 35, of 922 2d st., Alexandria, Va., who, with the third passenger, not identified, left the hospital after treatment.

The cab apparently went out of control as it rounded the Circle and started to proceed southeast on Massachusetts ave., police said.

Stories Differ in Ambulance Delay Inquiry

Conflicting accounts of how a message from Juvenile Court to the Ambulance Control Center was worded and delivered, yesterday complicated the investigation into the delay in dispatching an ambulance with a doctor to care for a 17-year-old boy bleeding in a cell there.

Reports were filed with Charles Stofberg, assistant to District Commissioner John Russell Young, whom the Commissioners delegated to investigate cause of the delay, last Friday morning.

Hilda R. Reagle, clerk of the Juvenile Court, said she transmitted four calls to the control center clearly stating the ambulance was needed for a boy at Juvenile Court who was bleeding from an old gunshot wound which had reopened.

Controller's Version

Herbert A. Friede, District controller of communications, said one call was relayed from the Police Central Bureau to the control center, saying an ambulance was needed because a "man had been shot at Juvenile Court." Since it was a police case a police scout car ambulance was dispatched, he said.

At 10:22 a. m., the scout car radioed requesting an ambulance with a doctor, according to Friede, and a Casualty Hospital ambulance was dispatched at once.

Police and newspaper men arrived long before an ambulance with a needed doctor reached the scene, Miss Reagle complained.

Just how the misunderstanding occurred, was not certain, since the control board reported the only call they had on the case was made in a man's voice and Miss Reagle claimed she made all the calls and talked to a woman at the ambulance control center. The control center reported no women on duty that morning, according to Friede.

Miss Reagle made her calls through the Police Central Bureau, National 3313, number listed on the telephone directory inside cover for placing of emergency ambulance calls. Telephonists there are instructed not to take messages but to transfer calls direct to the control center, Emmet P. Bateman, in charge, said last night.

However, the operator handling the message was herself injured yesterday, and Bateman had not been able to question her. He was on leave Friday. He said he would try to have a report for the Commissioners this morning.

A direct line to the control center has been established, and the new telephone number will appear in the Winter-Spring telephone directory, just gone to press, it was said.

Navy Saving 98% of Its Battle Casualties, Commander Hogan Tells Building Congress

Although short some 4000 doctors, the Navy Medical Corps' "outsanding work" has resulted in saving all but 2 per cent of battle casualties, compared with five times as many fatalities among wounded soldiers on the Russian front, Comdr. Bartholomew W. Hogan, medical officer of the sunken aircraft carrier Wasp and officer in charge of the Officers Reserve section, Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, asserted yesterday.

Commander Hogan depicted the work of the Naval Research Center at Bethesda as well as the "fine record" of Navy doctors at the battle stations, in a speech before the Washington Building Congress at the Mayflower Hotel.

Demonstrating what he called "the dream of centuries come true," he showed a small cellaphane bag and a brick of some chemical which turns salt water into drinking water.

"All the man in a life raft has to do," Commander Hogan explained, "is to fill the bag with sea water, dissolve the chemical in it and drink a pint of it every day to keep himself alive."

This simple process, as well as a battle-gray salve which protects the skin against flash burns, resulting from heat up to 1800 degrees, is among the many results of the research work at the Bethesda Medical Center, he said.

Indicating the scope of our medical efforts in the battle zones, Commander Hogan, who has been decorated with the Purple Heart and Silver Star, disclosed that some 12,000 wounded and sick men have flown out of South Pacific outposts in the five months of our offensive.

"Although more than 900 flights were involved in this wholesale life-saving endeavor," he said, "only one plane was lost and not more than six men died on the way."

No tetanus infection has come to his attention in this war and only two Naval personnel have been blinded so far, Hogan asserted, emphasizing that tropical diseases are "seriously competing with the enemy in destroying our men's health and life."

Special epidemiology teams are now being sent to our outposts to teach the troops protection measures against these diseases, he revealed, pointing out that 70 per cent of our Marines on Guadalcanal were suffering from malaria.

Commander Hogan also asserted that about 3½ per cent of personnel inducted into the Navy were "screened out" by the Navy Psychiatric Stations which thereby prevent "hazards and handicaps under actual battle conditions."

He was emphatic in his praise for the Mobile Base Hospitals, strewn over all active battle areas, which are "entirely independent units ready to perform all necessary medical and surgical work."

Commander Hogan is also associate professor of medicine at Georgetown University.

Col. Zin E. Lawhon

Col. Zin E. Lawhon, 44, commandant of Camp Reynolds, Greenville, Pa., died Sunday, according to word received here yesterday by friends.

After the first World War he served in Honolulu and was twice a military instructor at Princeton University. He served in Washington as a staff officer until eight months ago.

Funeral services will take place at Arlington National Cemetery. Arrangements are incomplete.

Joseph Brazata

Joseph Brazata, 75, who was employed as a guard at the Library of Congress from 1897 until his retirement in 1937, collapsed in the old House Office Building yesterday and was pronounced dead a short time later at Casualty Hospital. Heart disease is believed to have been the cause.

George P. Waite

Traffic Division Sergt. George Phillip Waite, 60, who completed his 30th year on the Metropolitan Police force Sunday, died last night at Alexandria Hospital in Alexandria, where he was taken Friday after he collapsed at his home, 2345 34th st. se.

Death was attributed to a heart attack. He was promoted to sergeant in July of 1941 while serving with metropolitan police at No. 9 Precinct. He was later transferred to the 11th Precinct and still later to the traffic department.

Surviving is the wife, Emma W. Waite.

Send Senator To NextParley, Says Brewster

By Bert Andrews

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

The belief that President Roosevelt should take a representative of the United States Senate to the next conference of Allied leaders was voiced last night by Senator Ralph O. Brewster (Republican) of Maine, who declared he thought the logical man for the assignment would be Senator Tom Connally (Democrat) of Texas, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Brewster said it seemed very clear that another such meeting must be held soon and that the trend of the war in Europe indicates the conferees will have to be prepared for many new eventualities, which conceivably might even include the sudden collapse of Germany.

If a German debacle comes prior to or concurrently with the next Allied gathering or there are signs then that it will not be long in coming, Senator Brewster asserted, then the talks will immediately and automatically take on aspects affecting the treaty powers of the Senate.

Praises Connally

"For that reason," Senator Brewster said, "I think President Roosevelt would do well to have a representative sit in on the nonmilitary phases of the session and thus avoid the mistake Woodrow Wilson made after the World War in not giving enough consideration to the views of the Senators at home."

"What better could the President do," he asked, "than to take counsel of the man who has just steered through the Senate a postwar policy resolution which fully reflects the desire of the Senate to do its part in planning for the world of the future?

"I know that Republican and Democratic Senators alike admire Senator Connally for the skillful way in which he piloted a measure which finally got the equivalent of 90 votes in the Senate. When I think of that—getting 90 Senate votes for such a controversial document—I'm not at all sure that Senator Connally's task wasn't as difficult as that of Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, in getting the Moscow conferees together. . . .

Knows Senate

"Think how valuable it would be for the President to be able to talk over the work of the days or nights of such a meeting with a Senator who is known and trusted by himself and by the Senate."

The Senator said Connally "knows the members of the Senate and how they will react as few other men do."

Man Who Gives Away Cash Unveiled

Toronto, Nov. 8 (AP).—A mysterious Mr. X who goes about Canada distributing cash and checks to the surprised but acquiescent populace was disclosed today to be Harry F. MacLean of the Merrickville, Ontario, Construction Co.

According to all available reports, MacLean has plenty of money and gives it away as a hobby. He has a long record as a donor of money and assorted valuables, but has come into prominence most recently during trips to Toronto and Halifax.

In Toronto two weeks ago he prowled about the Christie Street Military Hospital armed with a fistful of hundred-dollar bills and anybody was fair game. When he asked one bed-ridden serviceman how he felt, and the serviceman said he was dying, MacLean tossed in an extra C-note and told him that was to buy flowers.

Then he disappeared, after threatening all and sundry with dire consequences if his name were revealed. And he wasn't heard from again until Saturday in Halifax when he gave a check for $2000 to the baby son of a taxi-driver, tossed another $1000 at a hotel switchboard girl for distribution among the girl bellhops, and casually handed out great quantities of smaller notes to almost everyone he met.

Santa Monica Fire Threatens Prison Camp, 300 Homes

Santa Monica, Calif., Nov. 8 (AP).—The Santa Monica mountains fire—largest and most destructive of a half-dozen major blazes raging in southern California—flared anew on two sectors today, threatening 300 additional homes and a county prison camp.

An estimate that the flames already had destroyed nearly 150 houses, from cabins to mansions, was made by Deputy Sheriff Clem Peoples, who added damage might exceed one million dollars.

The latest wind-driven outbreaks threatened houses in the thickly populated Fernwood district of Topanga Canyon and the prisoners' camp 20 miles farther west in Ramera Canyon. The fire had destroyed trees and brush in a 12-by-20-mile L-shaped area.

School Degeneration Threat Cited on Forum

While Miss M. B. Clayton, assistant to the president of the British Board of Education, yesterday stressed the importance of education for "international reconstruction," Mrs. Eugene Meyer, newspaperwoman and wife of the editor and publisher of The Washington Post, warned against "the rapid degeneration of our public schools" on a radio forum in connection with American Education Week, broadcast over Columbia's Station WTOP.

Mrs. Meyer attacked a "cheap political trick" through which "a bill to arrest the rapid degeneration of our public schools, introduced in Congress two weeks ago, was blocked and returned to the Committee on Education without discussion."

In a review of present efforts in Great Britain to improve its own educational institutions and "prepare detailed information as to the material needs of the occupied countries" to rebuild their schools, Miss Clayton said:

"Methods of education are primarily the concern of the nations themselves . . . but there is unanimous agreement that certain fundamentals must be common in all our systems. The system of equal opportunity for all, the knowledge of equal right of all nations without distinction of race or creed, and the elimination of all ideas about master races."

Miss Clayton was thus echoing Mrs. Meyer's statement that "the welfare of the Nation, not the competitive scramble for wealth must be our prime objective."

Earlier in the day, Mrs. Meyer spoke at a meeitng of the Council of Social Agencies, where she stressed the necessity of action rather than "resolution making," to cure the rising tide of juvenile delinquency.

Mrs. Meyer, who recently toured American war production centers after a trip to wartime England, called upon parents as well as local and Federal outhorities to "become more conscious of the moral and mental degeneration that overtakes a nation when it neglects its children."

Violence Reported As Strike Ends

Detroit, Nov. 8 (AP).—The Ford Motor Co. said today that 4000 foundry workers in its big Rouge plant, ordered back to work by their union after a week-end strike, laid siege to a superintendent's office and tossed steel castings at supervisory employes until plant guards rushed in to restore order.

The company estimated 7000 workers were affected by the stoppage, which began Saturday. A spokesman for the United Automobile Workers (CIO) attributed the walkout to a grievance against a foreman. The union had ordered the strikers to return to work this morning.

The men returned, a formal company statement said, but "shut off their machines and began acts of violence" as soon as the foreman involved in the dispute reported for duty.

Bioff Called Himself 'Big Boss'

New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—James E. Coston, Western zone manager for the Warner Brothers' motion picture houses, testified today he was told by William Bioff, convicted West Coast labor racketeer, that he, Bioff, was "the big boss of Hollywood" and no longer interested in such "chicken feed" as an $8500 payment.

Coston, called as a prosecution witness in the Federal court trial of eight men on charges of conspiracy to extort more than one million dollars from the film industry, said he paid Bioff $8500 in 1936 after being threatened with a strike by members of the Chicago local of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes.

"In July or August of 1936 I was returning to Chicago, on a train when I heard someone call my name," Coston said. "It was Bioff, occupying a compartment alone. I went in to talk to him and he told me the money he was getting from Chicago was only chicken feed.

"He said he was the big boss of Hollywood and that he had organized the studios there."

Rail Union Report

Representatives of the 15 nonoperating railroad unions followed announcement of the wage change report with a prepared statement denouncing the sliding scale arrangement as "unsatisfactory and unadjustable."

The union chiefs said the report was "no surprise," and charged that the emergency board was "not a free agent," but was compelled to "follow instructions of Economic Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson."

Earlier the rail unions took their case before Congress. Appearing before a subcommittee of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, the rail chiefs urged approval of Senator Truman's resolution giving congressional approval to a wage agreement providing a flat 8 cents an hour boost for all wage brackets.

The agreement was signed with the carriers after Vinson turned down an 8-cent award of an emergency board, suggesting instead that a sliding scale adjustment of some sort be adopted. The second board—which reported yesterday—was then appointed, but the unions contended at a hearing which it held that the board had no legal standing under the Railway Labor Act.

Would Cost 180 Millions

The report said the increases would eliminate substandard wages and to somewhat preserve the differentials between higher and lower bracket workers. No increase in railroad rates would be required to p for the higher wages, estimated to cost 180 million dollars to 190 million dollars a year, the report said. The flat 8 cents an hour boost was estimated to cost 204 millions.

The proposed scale of increases and the number of workers who will receive each adjustment follow:

10 cents an hour to 121,140 receiving less than 47 cents.

9 cents an hour to 232,500 receiving 47 cents or more, but less than 57 cents.

8 cents to 190,466 receiving from 57 cents up to 70 cents.

7 cents to 197,686 receiving from 70 cents to 80 cents.

6 cents to 147,961 receiving from 80 to 90 cents.

5 cents to 126,250 receiving from 90 to 97 cents.

4 cents to 81,176 receiving 97 cents or more.

Steel Workers Open Up

The board also recommended that operating employes receiving less than 97 cents an hour be paid according to the same scale, but pointed out that it had no jurisdiction over the 350,000 operating workers who were awarded a flat 4 cents an hour increase by another board. Operating workers are generally paid higher scales than the nonops.

The CIO drive against wage control was spearheaded by a resolution adopted by the steel workers' executive board meeting in Philadelphia.

The amount of the increase to be asked was not disclosed and Murray said reports that 15 cents an hour additional would be demanded were just "speculation." Formal demands are expected to be presented to the steel industry at another meeting of the Steel Workers Board in Pittsburgh, later this month.

"The United Steelworkers of America has consistently supported the program designed to achieve stabilization of our national economy through effective price control, rationing, equitable taxation and a stabilization of wages and the effective prosecution of the war," the resolution said.

"While the wages have been frozen, the other portions of the program have been ignored, thereby laying the basis for inflation. As a result of this failure it has been the workers solely who have borne the increased burdens resulting from these conditions."

Fund Drive Set For Victory Nov. 11

Chamber of Commerce, with chairmen sanguine that tomorrow's reports, coupled with a scheduled "final meeting" Friday, same place and hour, will mark the end of the gruelling drive.

Exhorting redoubled effort on workers, Chairman Jennings declared, "Community War Fund works to make a world safe for those of every creed and color, safe from hunger and disease, poverty and crime.

"Give enough," he urged the public. "Give more. Give again. Let those who lie in Flanders and in the cemeteries of this war know, in the words of C. B. Galbreath:

2 Die in Traffic; Twister Hits Md.

field of a farm owned by Eugene Casey, executive assistant to President Roosevelt.

Traveling in a northwesterly direction, it lifted a garage at the home of Frank Wightman, in Washington Grove, turned an automobile in the garage on its side and dropped car and garage 10 feet away.

It then hit the home of Cleveland Watkins nearby, tore screens from the windows, smashed window panes and wrecked shrubbery.

At the home of Ray K. Wachter, another resident of Washington Grove, the twister picked up another garage, carried it 10 feet and overturned the car inside.

In Washington Grove trees were blown down, power and telephone lines leveled and sections of the town were in darkness from one to three hours. Wires were knocked down on the Laytonsville rd. when a tree fell across them. County police stood guard to protect persons from approaching them.

Thought It Smoke Cloud

An eyewitness account of the passing of the tornado was given by Montgomery County Policeman Ralph Howard, who saw the funnel-shaped cloud pass on its way to Washington Grove.

"I saw what looked like a big cloud of black smoke with a small end about 40 foot from the ground which billowed way up into the sky with a large cloud. It really was traveling fast. When I saw it, the cloud was passing over Lawson King's place," he said.

The twister cut a swath about a half mile long and 50 yards wide wide through the outskirts of Washington Grove and then apparently lifted again. It passed south of Gaithersburg. It took about three minutes to go through Washington Grove.

In Washington the Weather Bureau reported that the rainfall between 9 a. m. and 10:30 p. m. was 2.83 inches. This 13½-hour fall compares with the next highest in November of 2.95 inches during a 24-hour period in 1927.

During the height of the rain yesterday it was estimated that 1 inche of rail fell in 45 minutes. A fall of 2.10 inches was recorded between 7:20 p. m. and 9:45 p. m.

In addition observers at the Bureau reported a sudden rise and fall of the barometer, which was described as similar to a person dropping a rubber ball to the floor. This occurred at 6 p. m. when the twister was in the area.

Summer temperatures of as high as 72 degrees were recorded during the freak weather that marked the day, while flashing lightning and rolling thunder gave further similitude to summer.

8 Democrats Ask Subsidy Compromise

year (the last move was stopped by a veto), and House leaders are bending every effort to head off a repetition of the midsummer revolt. Speaker Sam Rayburn was reported in close touch with the Administration as well as Banking Committee leaders in an attempt to work out a settlement that would not smash the price line and almost certainly collide with another veto.

The minority report, filed by Representative James A. Wright of Pennsylvania, and signed by Monroney, Representative Wright Patman of Texas, and five other Banking Committee Democrats, conceded that "use of subsidies is not desirable and should be restricted both as to amount and as to scope," but warned:

Preferable to Inflation

"Subsidies are, however, a weapon against inflation and, although undesirable, are vastly preferable to an inflated economy."

The report said here are some of the things that will happen to consumer items if the Steagall subsidy repealer becomes law: Round steak, up 5.2 cents, other meats in proportion. Butter, up 5 to 9 cents. Canned vegetables, up 1.4 cents. Sugar, up 1 cent. Dry edible beans, up 1 cent. Total food index, up 7.294 per cent. General cost of living index, up 3.034 per cent.

Instead of flatly repealing subsidies and starting upward again the old price-wage spiral, the group suggested subsidies be limited as to time as well as amount and that new roll-back programs be forbidden. By voting a limited extension, the group argued that Congress would thus have an opportunity to judge their effectiveness before further authorizing their use.

Besides Wright, Monroney and Patman, signing the minority report were Ford of California, Spence of Kentucky, Barry of New York, Folger of North Carolina and Sullivan of Nevada.

Turnabout Puts Liquor Tax at $10

York City today, and John F. O'Connell, chairman of the State Liquor Authority, said that mounting taxes "may be legislating prohibition back in a price-fixng way."

O'Connell toldi newsmen that there was an apparent scarcity of standard brands, but commented "No one seems willing to say much about it. There is a great amount of secrecy."

"By taxation we may be legislating prohibition back in a price-fixing way," O'Connell said. "That type of legislation makes t difficult for most consumers to buy. It means either they will stop drinking or do something else, because, generally, most people are not getting more wages today and the liquor customers among them are unable to pay the high prices. There may be trouble ahead as far as enforcement is concerned."

One store reported it was putting a certain amount of standard rye and Scotch brands on sale every hour to spread the available supply. Many stores reported they had neither rye nor Scotch.

"Some observers feel the package store proprietors keep the more desirable brands under the counter and reserved for their customers, just in the case of butter, before rationing," O'Connell said.

policy moves, and an occasional outburst against Soviet Russia.

Retirement of Reynolds after next year would put Senator Elbert D. Thomas of Utah, stanch supporter of the Administration's foreign course before and since Pearl Harbor, in line to succeed Reynolds as chairman of the committee.

Should Senator Thomas retin his equally important Senate Labor Committee chairmanship, next in line would be Senator Edwin C. Johnson (Democrat) of Colorado, who created a furor in Democratic ranks last week by proposing Gen. George C. Marshall for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Should the Democrats lost control of the Senate in the 1944 election, Senator Warren R. Austin of Vermont, ranking Republican on the committee and leading GOP exponent of the Administration's foreign views, would be in line for the chairmanship.

Announcement of Hoey last spring that he would make the race came as bad news to the Reynolds Camp. The colorful former Governor directs the largest Bible class in the State, is one of the most popular North Carolina figures since Civil War Gov. Zebulon Vance, and is famed for his oratory.

Reynolds said that although he was out of the 1944 primary, he wanted to state emphatically "that I am not retiring from public life."

Dogs Bite Policeman, 4 Others; 8 Strays Shot

A District policeman and an 8-year-old boy were reported to have been bitten by dogs yesterday, while from the police in nearby Virginia came reports of three more persons having been bitten by dogs over the weekend, and Marlboro and Prince Georges County police reported they had shot eight stray dogs.

Pvt. Laurence Mason of the traffic division received treatment at Emergency Hospital after he was bitten on the right ankle by a dog at his residence at 1860 Clydesdale pl. nw. Police said the dog is owned by Joseph Day of the Clydesdale pl. address.

Ernest Smythe, 8, of 704 Quincy st. nw., was bitten on the right hand when he reached through a fence in the rear of 3810 7th st. nw. to pet a dog. He was treated at Garfield Hospital.

Alexandria police reported that William Fannon, 400 Carlyle dr., was bitten on the left leg by a dog and pulled from his bicycle. He was treated at the Alexandria Hospital.

In Falls Church, police said that Sandra Flaherty, 4, and Mary S. Munson, 11, were bitten by dogs and received treatment from private physicians.

Meanwhile, District police said that 40 dog owners, given court summonses since November 1, for disobeying regulations, forfeited collateral of $5 instead of appearing in court. Of this number, 22 were given summonses for failure to muzzle their dogs and 12 were summoned because their dogs were unlicensed.

In Hyattsville, Md., Trial Magistrate Alan Bowie held the quarantine of dogs as constitutional when John S. White, attorney representing John B. Eberhart of Lanham, tried to quash a warrant against his client. Since the dog is only 3½ months old, however, and was at large only a few minutes, the case was continued for three weeks by Judge Bowie who warned Eberhart that he would be fined if the dog was seen at large during that period.

Martin Predicts GOP Control In Both Senate and House

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Confidence that the election trend will sweep Republicans next year back into control of the Senate as well as the House was expressed yesterday by Representative Joseph W. Martin, jr., of Massachusetts, Republican leader in the House and former chairman of the party's nationl committee, after a study of last Tuesday's elections.

Representative Martin's prediction—he has a record for accuracy comparable to that once credited to the Democrats' James A. Farley—projected among Republicans in Congress post-election political discussions increasingly confident, not only about the House and Senate, but about the Presidency as well. They named names of Senators whose seats they expect will be definitely lost to the Democrats in the next election.

Finally, one leader climaxed these private discussions with a suggestion that there was a distinct possibility that President Roosevelt, sensing too strong a Republican trend for him to oppose, may move on to some post of international organization and put his party in the position of having to select another candidate.

The forecasts, which stemmed, like Martins' comment, from key figures in the Republican congressional leadership, cannot be attributed by name, but are strongly representative of high party thinking.

Chief of the Senators that the Republicans feel will "be in trouble" in 1944 in the face of the trend of last Tuesday was Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic floor leader, who long has enjoyed President Roosevelt's political blessing. Senator Barkley, one Congressman pointed out, was very active in the recent Kentucky gubernatorial campaign, calling for the election of J. Lyter Donaldson, Democratic nominee, on the ground that his defeat would be a repudiation of President Roosevelt. Donaldson, with most of the Democratic ticket, was defeated.

Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York is another Democrat whose defeat is anticipated by Republicans next year. Two possible opponents were projected into the New York senatorial situation in these discussions. The first was Frank E. Gannett, publisher of a chain of up-State New York newspapers, and the second was Representative James W. Wadsworth, a veteran of service in both Senate and House, also from up-State New York. It is understood, however, that Representative Wadsworth does not wish to be pitted against Gannett, and probably will withdraw in the face of a boom for him on the senatorial ticket.

Other Democratic Senators whom Republicans feel they will sweep out of office in next year's election include Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma, Elbert D. Thomas of Utah, Scott Lucas of Illinois, Frederick Van Nuys of Indiana, Guy M. Gillette of Iowa, Bennett Champ Clark of Missouri, Sheridan Downey of California, Carl Hayden of Arizona, Millard F. Tydings of Maryland, and Pat McCarran of Nevada. The party must win 11 seats in the Senate only 10 in the House to gain majority control.

First Lady Sees Wages Going Up, Without Subsidies

Condemning strikes in wartime, Mrs. Franklin D. Rosevelt yesterday called upon the American people to "assume the responsibility" of protecting labor's rights and standard of living "when we take away the only weapon workers have."

Mainly due to a lack of subsidies, food prices are rising steadily, Mrs. Roosevelt asserted, declaring that she had little hope for preservation of the wage ceiling established under the Little Steel formula, since "we have failed to stabilize all the necessities of life."

"Unless prices are kept down," the First Lady told her press conferences, "higher wages will have to be granted."

Sugar Rations Expected To Be Continued

Despite current large stockpiles of sugar, particular in Southern warehouses, there is little likelihood it will be removed from rationing in the near future.

The Office of Price Administration said yesterday that a reduction of sugar beet production by approximately 50,000 tons is the principal factor in this prospect. Russia and England require large shipments, and Eastern producers of industrial alcohol—for synthetic rubber and explosives—have been shifted from grain to sugar.

Partners with Industry!
The railroads of America are backing industry to the limit in the war of production. Only the close coordination born of a common cause could result in the extraordinary achievements of transportation and industry since the war began.
For many years the Seaboard Railway has recognized the interdependence of industry and transportation. On the established principle that the welfare of the railroad depends upon the prosperity of its patrons, the Seaboard has been working over a long period of time for the economic development of the territory it serves.
The Seaboard's interest extends beyond the location of new plants. It is equally concerned with the success of all industry served by its Line. Its policy is to provide adequate service and to adjust the freight rates on raw materials and finished products to enable these industries to compete with similar industries whether located in the South or elsewhere.
Remarkable progress has been made in the industrial development of the South in recent years. Present indications point to further expansion in the post-war period.

Supreme Court Will Rule On Constitutionality of OPA

By the Associated Press

The Supreme Court decided yesterday to rule on the constitutionality of wartime price-fixing regulations, pillar of the Government's stabilization program.

The price regulations administered by the Office of Price Administration were challenged by two Boston meat dealers, Benjamin Rottenberg and Albert Yakus, who were convicted and sentenced to imprisonment on charges of violating OPA maximum wholsale prices on beef.

Yakus and Rottenberg contended that the Emergency Price Control Act represents an unconstitutional delegation of congressional powers. The first Federal Circuit Court ruled, however, that Congress may control prices as part of a wartime program to prevent inflation.

Dismissal Upheld

In other actions of the court yesterday:

Upheld the dismissal of an "informers" suit for more than 40 million dollars damages from the Bausch & Loeb Optical Co. and Carl Zeiss, Inc., of New York, accused of conspiracy to submit noncompetitive bids on sales of optical instruments to the Army. The suit was filed by two New York attorneys, Murray Brensilber and Emanuel Thebner, under an old statute permitting citizens to sue for double damages against any one making fraudulent claims against the Government. The court's action came on a 4-4 vote, with Justice Jackson not participating.

Granted a review to Anthony Kramer of New York, convicted of treason. Kramer is alleged to have aided two of the eight Nazi spies brought to this country in 1942 by submarines. All of the saboteurs were convicted by a military court and six were put to death.

First Opinion of Term

Ruled, in its first opinion of the term, that the Federal fire statute exonerates a shipowner of liability for damages from fire to a cargo aboard his ship. The case involved a shipment of sardine meal on a Japanese vessel, Venice Maru, in 1934.

Refuses Woman's Plea

Refused to review the contention of Mrs. Gertrude Koller Brown that she was dismissed by the Bethlehem, Pa., school district because she was about to become a mother and that this dismissal was an unconstitutional "attack upon the sacred institution of marriage and motherhood." The Pennsylvania Supreme Court had upheld the dismissal.

Agreed to review a Philadelphia Circuit Court decision that a labor union member may decline to present union books and records to a grand jury on grounds they might incriminate him. The Justice Department asked the review in litigation involving Jasper White, an assistant supervisor of Local No. 542, International Union of Operating Engineers. White refused to submit the records to a grand jury at Harrisburg investigating alleged irregularities in construction of the Mechanicsburg Naval Supply Depot.

Refused to review a decision by the Fifth Federal Circuit Court sustaining an indictment charging the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. with conspiracy to "monopolize a substantial part of trade and commerce in food and food products" in violation of the Sherman Anti-trust Act.

RFC Case

Refused to review the action of the Federal District Court at St. Louis in refusing to direct the trustee of the Missouri Pacific Railroad to enter into a compromise with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation on repayment of a $23,134,800 loan.

Dismissed an attack on the constitutionality of 1940 Louisiana legislation authorizing the commissioner of conservation, in order to prevent waste and unnecessary oil and gas wells, to establish drilling units in which only one well would be permitted and the owners of all the property in each unit would pool their interests.

U. S. Can't Void Patents in Antitrust Cases, Court Says

In a decision important to large industrial concerns, a special three-judge tribunal decreed yesterday that the Government does not have the power to attack the validity of patents in antitrust proceedings.

In a 2-to-1 decision, the court put a crimp into the Government's case against the United States Gypsum Co. and several maller building material concerns, which are charged in a civil action with manipulating patent licensing rights in order to peg prices and restrain trade.

Justice Harold M. Stephens, of the United States Court of Appeals, and Finis Garrett, of the Court of Customs and Patent Appeals, made the decision, with Justice Oscar E. Bland, of the latter court, dissenting vigorously, stating that if the Government cannot attack patent rights in antitrust proceedings, the patents might become "camouflage" for price pegging.

The three-judge tribunal is sitting under the expediting act which eliminates intermediate court steps in important litigation.

Among the attorneys for the companies are Bruce Bromley, Edward Lynch, Elmer Fink, Nicholas Chase, James O'Donnell, and Joseph Tumulty, jr.

The majority ruled that patents are equivalent to land grants and can only be attacked on the basis of fraud, which was not charged in this case.

The companies were charged with allowing patent owners to fix the price of finished gypsum products and in this way to keep these materials almost entirely under their control, in an unlawful combination. Many millions of dollars are involved, and the Government wants an injunction to prevent the action charged and return of this money.

Youngsters Will Grow to Be Voters

...Before Your Water Heater of Tomorrow Needs Replacing!

ARE YOU ONE of the thousands who will shell out for a new water heater this year? Then, blame rust for your dilemma, not the manufacturer. He has used the best means available in the past to shield his product from rust.

But, take hope for the future! Because a new process has been developed that can save you from such expensive upkeep after the war. It's a way of making metal so resistant to rust that your youngster playing in the basement will be a voter before your postwar water heater needs replacing!

This new, simple and inexpensive process is called "Corronizing." It has been developed, tested and proved through years of research in the laboratories of the Standard Steel Spring Company—now producers of armor plate, bombs and other implements of war.

But when the war is won, "Corronized" metal products will play an important part in your daily life. Not only by making your water heater last longer but in many other ways. Window screens will last up to four times as long. You'll get more years of service for your money from downspouts and gutters, ventilators, automobile parts, garbage cans, stoves, garden tools and electrical equipment.

You'll have to wait until Victory to get products carrying the "Corronized" label.

But when makers of hundreds of products you buy can again turn to peacetime production, it will pay you to look for the "Corronized" label as your assurance of protection against rust. In that way, you'll make sure of more service for your money—in products that last up to four times as long!

SMASH ANTI-SEMITISM

1951 Ministers Pledge To Carry Out Program Of The Textbook Commission Of THE PROTESTANT

THIS war is unique in that anti-Semitism has been part and paxcel of it from the beginning. Those who attack our free world attack first the Jews whose vital position in our Western civilization places them in the front rank of its vanguard.

Anti-Semitism uses the flaming emotion of an ancient and deeply rooted prejudice which is at war with the democratic principle of religious freedom.

Democracy states that all men are created equal. This is not stated as the teaching of any religious establishment. Democracy states it as a self-evident truth and goes on specifically to dissociate democracy from any establishment of religion.

It is the purpose of the TEXTBOOK COMMISSION to speak a word of counsel to those responsible in any way for the injection of suggestive and provocative statements in books used for the teaching of democratic youth. A democracy which permits any group of its people to be educated in hatred against any other group puts itself in serious danger.

The TEXTBOOK COMMISSION has no desire to interfere with freedom of religion. On the contrary, our action is in the interest of that freedom. That action has as its object the elimination from American textbooks of all passages which predispose to hatred of the Jew. This can be accomplished in democratic fashion by the shedding of light upon these passages. In this task the TEXTBOOK COMMISSION has the cooperation of men and women of every religious affiliation.

It took Christian courage to sign this confession—for confession it is—of a 2000 year old Christian sin, the sin of a spiritual pride which permitted religious controversy to turn into political murder, the sin of a cold complacency which is literally midwife to the passionate racism of the Nazis. Mercy, the essence of Christ speaks here. Christianity springs up alive in this pledge.

—KENNETH LESLIE

The Pledge

We free Church Ministers must speak plainly about the cowardly propaganda anti-Semitism.

Jesus was not murdered by the Jewish people, who followed him in their multitudes and "heard him gladly", but by their enemies, the Quislings of that day hiding behind a synthetic "Jewish Front" mob, just as today his spirit is being murdered again all over the Western World by similar betrayers using synthetic "Christian Front" mobs.

In the present world crisis modern Jewry suffers in the persons of its innocent children the first and hardest blows of tyranny. The very cross on which Jesus died for the people is today becoming a bludgeon in the hands of those who would cheat the people of his gift to them of a creative share in the world's building.

Whatever deflects from our own consciences the penetrating glance of God by making a scape-goat of the Jews or any other race, must be stricken from our teaching and from our texts.

Therefore, we support the work of the Textbook Commission of The Protestant in its efforts to obtain the removal of discriminatory passages from textbooks and both in conjunction with its work and individually we pledge to do all in our power to effect such removal and to undo through our preaching and teaching the ill effects of previous false teaching.

Effects Of Bombing

In his speech commemorating the 26th anniversary of the November, 1917, revolution, Marshal Stalin paid a well-deserved tribute to the Allied bombing offensive against the Reich as one of the factors that have contributed materially to the final victory which the Allies are now in process of winning. Obviously the full story of what this persistent aerial assault on the Reich has done to German production, transportation and morale cannot yet be told. But sufficient evidence has accumulated to show that its effects have been far-reaching

As far back as June, the British Minister of Economic Warfare, Lord Selborne, stated that because of Allied air attacks and related reasons, production in the Ruhr had declined in one year by approximately 35 per cent. The decline for Germany as a whole was 15 to 20 per cent. Since then, of course, the air attacks have increased both in number and destructiveness. Hardly an industry in the Reich has not been affected by it. Every integrated steel works in the Ruhr, according to an analysis published by the British Embassy, has received some degree of damage. Production of locomotives—given priority second only to that of the production of munitions—has greatly declined, the reduction in the Krupp works amounting to between 100 and 150 locomotives for the three months period. Other targets successfully hit by the RAF and the USAAF have included synthetic rubber plants, aluminum plants, blast furnaces, rolling mills, ball bearings works, automobile and truck factories, synthetic oil plants, munitions plants, airplane factories, shipyards and submarine assembly yards, oil refineries. Coal production in the Reich, which fell off by two million tons a month last year, has suffered a further decline this year, more than 40 Ruhr collieries having been damaged since January.

In the past surprise has been expressed that despite the ferocity of the attacks on her war production, the German armies show no signs of any shortage in munitions, motor vehicles, or implements of war. But this fails to take into account the inevitable time lag between a decline in production and its bearing on the fighting fronts which in a real sense (and this applies to all armies) fight with last year's weapons, not this. It is, in fact, only now that the effects of Allied bombing are beginning to be felt in Germany and this effect is being felt increasingly. Indeed, there is probably a direct relationship between last spring's raids on the Ruhr and the Russian advance across the Dnieper, as there is likely to be between the more recent raids and that German collapse which may not be very far off.

Expose Of A Boss

Congressmen who have spread the disgusting story of Thomas V. De Lorenzo on the record are entitled to a vote of thanks from the workers of America. Apparently the great majority of the 18,000 unionized employes of the Brewster Aeronautical Corp. did not know that their leader used a string of aliases copied from "a telephone book or maybe a hat" and that he made false claims to get a job as an aircraft worker. Like various unprincipled opportunists who have come to the top of mushroom unions in war industries, De Lorenzo has left behind him a slimy trail of deception that will make thousands of honest and sincere union members sick at heart. Unless we are very much mistaken, these workers may be expected to take the first opportunity of putting skids under De Lorenzo, whether or not his damning confessions ensnare him within the toils of the law.

But the responsibility for bringing De Lorenzos and Bioffs to the head of union movements does not rest upon workers alone. The fact is that Congress has shamefully neglected its obligation to give the rank and file of workingmen a charter of freedom. It has thrust enormous powers into the hands of two-bit Caesars without making them accountable to anyone. Congress is much more responsible for this shameful situation than the men and women who are herded into undemocratic and unregulated unions as a prerequisite of working for their country in wartime.

Congress cannot possibly expose every De Lorenzo who is bringing a union into disrepute or disrupting the production of essential weapons. But it can throw its influence behind the cause of more responsible collective bargaining. It did not hesitate to protect investors against unscrupulous manipulators in the securities markets in the early thirties. It did not hesitate to uphold the right of collective bargaining when labor organizations were being suppressed. Now it has a clear obligation to protect the rank and file of working men and women against racketeers, exploiters and unscrupulous bosses who are seeking a monopoly on jobs to advance their own selfish interests. The most effective step that responsible labor leaders could take to strengthen their prestige in the eyes of the public would be to join the movement to make all unions strictly accountable to their members. Whether or not they have the statesmanship to do this, the job must be faced by Congress. It is one of the most important prerequisites to sound labor relations in the postwar era.

Leading The Parade

When President Roosevelt and Secretary Ickes broke through the wage stabilization line at the dictate of John L. Lewis, it was assumed by many that the War Labor Board would resign in protest. Instead, the board appears to be ready to join in the ragged retreat before the forces of inflation. Chairman William H. Davis has in effect invited new assaults on the "Little Steel" formula by his letter to Vice President Wallace. Perhaps he is only recognizing the havoc that has been wrought by the Roosevelt-Ickes coup in the coal miners' case. But in any event, his attitude leaves the country wondering whether all attempts to prevent runaway inflation are to be abandoned.

Mr. Davis' thesis is that wage stabilization has placed upon labor a heavier burden than some other segments of our society are bearing. Since he does not specify who the favored segments are, the effect of his statement is not to criticize any group for profiteering but only to create dissatisfaction among wage-earners. Mr. Davis begins his argument, moreover, from an untenable premise. "As the months flow by," he wrote to Mr. Wallace, "and the board continues to hold wages at the general level of September 15, 1942 . . ." Probably he refers to wage rates. Take-home wages have increased during the last year by about 15 per cent. Workers have been asked to remain on the job for longer hours, but they have been compensated for that "sacrifice" in behalf of their country at time and a half. Mr. Davis knows perfectly well that when we consider the "ravages of inflation" it is the take-home wage that must be considered. His letter not only tends to weaken the line which the board has heretofore held against the pressure for wage inflation; it does so by reference to a misleading assumption that will not bear analysis.

If this sort of argument succeeds in breaking down the Little Steel formula as the basis of wage stabilization, where will the retreat before the forces of inflation end? The hope of drawing a new line that could be held securely is very flimsy. The grave danger is that retreat before inflation would then become a rout. The task of statesmanship is to make wage-earners, farmers and all other groups see this danger and to help them understand that living standards must necessarily be cut in a period of total war. About all the leadership that is now coming out of Washington in this respect is leadership of the parade toward greater inflation.

Art And Bureaucracy

Some time ago Mr. George Biddle, the portrait painter, prepared a memorandum for the National Resources Planning Board, excerpts from which were published in a recent issue of Harpers Magazine. In this memorandum Mr. Biddle set forth the argument for the establishment of a Federal Bureau of Fine Arts. His general idea seems to be that art is no longer something for the cultivated few, but, like war and college education, for the masses. He feels that the Government with all its high-powered publicity resources should get behind art and put it over in a big way as literature has been put over by the book clubs. "The bottleneck of art in America," said Mr. Biddle, "is the artist's inability economically to support himself. The way to widen the bottleneck is to slough the burden from the Government to the potential buying public in industry and among the mass audience." Therefore, we need "a Federal employment and help-wanted agency which would tell artists of their opportunities and of the varying conditions for work throughout the country on the one hand, and, on the other, would inform people in industry how they could effectively use art for a different purpose and how they could obtain qualified artists."

It might be pointed out that the Federal taxpayer's investment in the fine arts has already been considerable. Both the WPA and the now almost forgotten CWA had extensive art projects, and there were at one time as many as 5,000 artists on this particular form of work relief. There was also the enterprise capably and successfully directed by the late Edward Bruce which promoted the cause of art by awarding contracts on the basis of anonymous competition for the decoration of new public buildings. Finally, there was the art education project of the National Youth Administration. Mr. Biddle wants all these activities combined under his new Bureau of Fine Arts.

It used to be Mr. Bruce's contention, whenever his appropriations were threatened by the economy boys in Congress, that his Section of Fine Arts had been the means of uncovering and encouraging talents in the most unsuspected places and that the appearance of mural paintings in thousands of village postoffices created an appetite for art where it had not previously existed. Very probably this was true, but it scarcely seems to square with Mr. Biddle's idea that the love of the beautiful can be crammed down the throats of the masses only by some kind of high-powered ballyhoo used to promote the sales of soap and cigarettes. And even if this were true, it would indicate that art is too dangerous a weapon of propaganda to be handed over to Government control.

Turkish Hint

In a speech opening the Grand National Assembly at Ankara, President Ismet Inonu let drop some broad hints suggesting that a dynamic change in Turkish policy may soon occur. We must not assume from this that Turkey, which has been neutral, is about to enter the war on the side of the Allies. It is reasonable to expect, however, that Turkey will increasingly draw closer to the United Nations. Certainly the Turks, who are realists, are fully aware of the importance of the Moscow pact as well as of the Red Army's sweep across the steppes to Perekop and beyond.

These developments and what they foreshadow will also have tremendous repercussions in the Balkans, where Hitler's uneasy satellites have for some time been looking for a way out of the tragic plight in which their belief in German invincibility has plunged them. The rulers and people of Rumania, Hungary and Bulgaria are now fully aware that Germany has lost the war. They know it may not be very long before Russian forces will be knocking at their doors. Up till now, however, their changed state of mind has only found reflection in passive resistance to Hitler's clamorous demands for more cannon fodder. But the closer the Russian armies come to their frontiers, the more likely it is that resistance to the Germans will become active. Nor, in view of his heavy losses of men in Russia, may Hitler be able to bring them in line through threats of occupation.

It is in line with this situation that the cryptic remarks of President Ismet Inonu, followed as they were by a meeting at Cairo between Anthony Eden and the Turkish foreign minister, take on special significance. For unless and until Germany, lacking manpower, is inhibited from taking vengeance on a pro-Allied stand by the Ankara government by bombing Istanbul and invading Turkey, Turkey will perforce have to go slow. But for Turkey as well as for Hitler's Balkan satellites, the day is drawing near when more radical anti-Nazi measures can be taken with impunity.

Bovingdon Again

We hope that Mr. Leo Crowley will read the letter, appearing elsewhere on this page, from Prof. Edmund deS. Brunner of Teachers College, Columbia University. Surely Mr. Crowley remembers John Bovingdon—an economist of no political importance who had at one time been interested in some esoteric form of dancing and was therefore lampooned by the Dies Committee and by certain segments of the press. Mr. Crowley dismissed Mr. Bovingdon summarily as soon as the Dies charges were made public—without any inquiry into the merits of those charges, without even the formality of a hearing. Perhaps it will cause Mr. Crowley some twinge of conscience to learn that Mr. Bovingdon's professional career has been gravely impaired by the injury and injustice to which he was subjected.

The Bovingdon case turns out to be no abstract issue of democratic principles to John Bovingdon. It has affected him in a very concrete and very uncomfortable fashion. But he is quite without recourse. He can do nothing about Congressman Dies who made extravagant and wholly unsupported allegations about him. And he can do nothing about Leo Crowley who gave credibility to those allegations by denying him even the sort of protection which our courts assure to known criminals. This man has been ruined professionally because he chose to put his expert abilities at the service of his Government in time of war. The really funny thing about it, too, is that this happened to him in the name of Americanism—at the hands of a committee supposed to investigate un-American activities.

Since John Bovingdon has already had so much publicity, we think he deserves a little more. He deserves the right to be confronted by specific charges and the right to reply to those charges before an impartial body qualified to judge his fitness for the post of which he was deprived. At the very least he deserves a chance to clear his name. Congressman Dies, we believe, should not be accorded the privileges of congressional immunity for the wanton destruction of reputations. And neither Mr. Crowley nor any other Government official should be allowed to pass sentence upon Federal employes without fair hearings. Once more we urge President Roosevelt as a matter of elementary justice, to establish a committee of distinguished citizens outside the Government to pass upon cases of this character.

HUNTSMAN

Early, before the dark had left my window,
I heard the first shots ring; the wooded hill
Waking, as I woke, from its tenuous shadow
Trembled to know the huntsman and his will.
Soft from the secret leaves the rabbit scurried
And the gold pheasant from her hooded nest
Roused and straightway the gentle air was harried
And the heart stricken in the wild, free breast.

We might have slept. We might have lain unknowing
And unmolested in our frosty silence
Had not this mortal creature come, endowing
The blood with such a swift and urgent cadence.
Keen to the death of startled bird and hare
I too rise up into that fatal air.

Hawaii In Wartime

By Thomas Steep

Aggressive Spirit

IF THERE is one place under the American flag that has approximated a maximum of intensified war activity, that place, in my opinion, is Hawaii. Not only have the armed forces created in the islands a veritable Gibraltar, but the civilians, having been the first Americans to feel the enemy's onslaught, at Pearl Harbor, are motivated by a will to win to an extent little realized on the mainland.

Underlying their aggressive war spirit is the Hawaiians' remarkable racial tolerance. On these islands live together in harmony peoples of heterogeneous racial origins whose inherited mental habits and alien customs have been pretty generally replaced by American standards.

Nightly Blackouts

This racial tolerance, or absence of racial antagonism, generates a unity of purpose to win the war and encourages all Hawaiians of whatever origin to submit uniformly to necessary military restraints. Imagine a congested metropolitan area on the mainland, like that of Honolulu, enduring without complaint total blackouts every night for almost two years, and a curfew at 10 p. m., after which time no one is permitted on the streets. Consider also their censorship. Mail, telephone, cable, radio communications, private or business, between the islands or with the mainland, are censored. If a businessman, telephoning from Honolulu on the island of Oahu to a point on the Island of Maui, should be so indiscreet as to say anything remotely suggesting a military topic, the censor, listening in, would interrupt and ask him to explain. The censorship, the nightly blackouts and the curfew are a condition never before experienced by an American community and the fact that they are respected as a military precaution essential to the security of the mainland as well as of the islands is an evidence of Hawaii's realistic patriotism.

The business of the islands is largely agricultural, with vast plantations and thousands of workers. Every plantation has a "home guard" in which workers, uniformed, armed and drilled under military discipline, are ready to drop their work in the fields and instantly become fighters.

In like manner industry is incorporated into the defense system. If the Army or Navy requires a dozen or 50 acres for an air base or munitions storage, the acres, whether the sugar cane or pineapples can be harvested or not, are at once made available. If the service needs workers, the men, in spite of serious plantation labor shortages, are loaned. Hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of machinery and tractors have been turned over by the plantations to the armed forces.

Whatever progress has been made to enable Hawaii to be self-sustaining in an emergency by growing its own diversified garden foodstuffs is largely attributable to the experiment station which maintains a staff of scientists and spends $500,000 a year in the interest of agricultural science.

Honolulu Museum

The Bishop Museum of Honolulu, a memorial to Princess Bernice Pauahi Bishop, last of the Kamehameha family of Hawaiian chiefs, under its ethnologist, Dr. Kenneth P. Emory, prepared a treatise to help wartime castaways in the Pacific. It is entitled "Castaway's Baedeker to the South Seas" and is designed to aid a castaway to survive until rescued by telling him how to slake thirst by eating raw fish, turtles, or birds, to make shoes from coconut husks, to differentiate between poisonous and non-poisonous food plants, to protect one's self from the tropical sun, to make candles from certain plants, to generate fire without matches, to make clothing of bark fiber. To give life to its advice the museum established in Honolulu an exhibit of the materials involved.

President Gregg M. Sinclair of the University of Hawaii has set aside a portion of the university's campus for the headquarters of the Army's entertainment section. Here, in temporary sheds, amid monkeypod trees, poinciana, palms and brilliant hibiscus and within sight of Diamond Head and the Pacific, Maurice Evans, the actor, now a captain, produces plays ranging from "Campus Capers" to "Macbeth," which are sent by trucks to Army camps. Cooperating with Captain Evans are the Community Theater players, directed by Leroy M. Fulmer. I sat in a little theater at Aiea Hospital, not far from the burial ground of the Pearl Harbor victims, one Sunday afternoon when this group of players presented "The Man Who Came to Dinner." In the audience there were men with arms and legs in splints, men with bandaged hands, men on cots—all wounded in the South Seas—who, thanks to these volunteer entertainers, were detracted for an hour or two from their memories of war's horrors.

I have mentioned a few names to show that Hawaii is a community of active people, not a mere abstraction far out in the Pacific — of people who, 5000 miles from the Atlantic seaboard, are striving for victory with all their might, for the safety not alone of their own islands of incomparable natural beauty but, as well, for the safety of the Nation of which they are a part.

1919 And 1943

By Barnet Nover

The Senate Reverses A Veto

LATE LAST WEEK by an overwhelming vote the Senate of the United States agreed to recognize the urgent realities of the world we live in.

It did so by making as its own the fourth point of the Four-Nation Declaration of Moscow which recognizes:

". . . the necessity of establishing at the earliest practicable date a general international organization, based on the principle of sovereign equality of all peace-loving states, and open to membership by all such states, large and small, for the maintenance of international peace and security."

In taking this action the Senate in effect reversed its veto of a quarter of a century ago, of American membership in the then unborn League of Nations.

THE LEAGUE of Nations is nowhere mentioned in the Moscow Pact nor in the Connally resolution as approved.

Indeed, the phrase "necessity of establishing . . . a general international organization" definitely suggests that the four powers are intent on creating something new rather than rehabilitating an institution that is and for 23 years has been in existence.

This may be more apparent than real. When the broad and general principles of the Moscow Pact are implemented we may find that what we have, whether it is called by that name or not, is the old League of Nations. For the old League, with all its virtues and all its faults, was based on "the principle of sovereign equality of all peace-loving states" and was "open to membership by all such states, large and small."

AS WOODROW WILSON envisaged it, the League was to be "a single overwhelming, powerful group of nations who shall be the trustee of the peace of the world." And speaking for the United States, he said that this Nation would "join no combination of power which is not the combination of us all."

The fact that the League was a collectivity of sovereign states who, when they joined the League, lost none of their sovereign rights, but only agreed to refrain from employing some of them, led some of the nations, notably France, to supplement the League by old-fashioned alliances.

Here again history is realistically repeating itself. With the Moscow pact behind it, Russia is about to sign a treaty of alliance with Czechoslovakia and already has one in existence with Great Britain. Similar arrangements are certain to be made with other states.

Indeed, the agreement made at Moscow may prove to be the nucleus of a four-power alliance separate from, although ultimately designed to be part of, a more universal combination.

For at Moscow Great Britain, Russia, the United States and China declared that the united action they are pursuing today "will be continued for the organization and maintenance of peace and security." Furthermore, the four powers agree to "take all measures deemed by them to be necessary to provide against any violation of the terms imposed upon the enemy."

Both the maintenance of peace and the enforcement of peace terms involve the necessity of continuing beyond the war the alliance which exists today.

IN THIS PARTICULAR the Moscow pact goes very much further than even Wilson thought necessary a quarter of a century ago. Yet very few voices have been raised in opposition to the Anglo-Russian-American-Chinese agreement.

In the course of the debate on the revised Connally resolution practically all the arguments made in 1919 against the Covenant of the League were conspicuous by their absence. No one cited Washington's Farewell Address, nothing was said about the Monroe Doctrine, no one argued that the international organization the Moscow conferees hope to establish would mean placing our Army and Navy under the control of a super-government or depriving us of the right to regulate immigration or impose tariffs.

All these arguments are now water over the dam. In 1943 we return to where we left off in 1919. We are no longer frightened by the bogeymen conjured up by the Senate Irreconcilables of that vanished day. But we are also far less certain than were the League proponents of those days that the League would usher in a new heaven and a new earth.

During those 25 years we have had to learn the facts of international life the hard way. The most encouraging thing about it at this stage, however, is that we have, at last, learned them. Beginning where we left off in 1919 the experience of a quarter of a century will be our guide and teacher.

Bovingdon Again

I happened to be in Washington, November 3, and saw your lead editorial on the Farm Security Administration. May I congratulate you upon it? It is too rare that an urban newspaper, even in the Nation's Capital, comments intelligently on the work of the FSA which both in the days of the worst of the rehabilitation period and now in war has been amazingly better than any reasonable expectation.

May I also commend your support of Mr. John Bovingdon, a major student of mine. He is in a fairly serious situation as a result of the Dies attack. Three positions to which professional persons either appointed him or were favorably considering him have been lost because trustees or board members refused to approve the appointment on account of the publicity Dies gave him.

Lewis Vs. Roosevelt

Two things the public should clearly understand about the coal-mine situation. The first is that the miners are entitled to increased pay. They got such an increase in a proposed agreement with the Illinois mine operators. However, the War Labor Board, after unduly prolonged consideration, disapproved of the agreement, but indicated that they would approve a contract giving the miners most of the gains they would have made had the contract been approved.

The other fact to remember is that the difference between what the miners could get without strike and what they demanded certainly does not justify a strike in war time. There probably would be no strike if John L. Lewis, who has been a Republican all his life and a bitter Roosevelt hater for some years, was not willing to use the situation to try to make political capital against the Roosevelt Administration.

President Roosevelt's policy of trying to prevent large increases in wage rates, but to roll back food prices through substantial subsidies and thus reduce the cost of living for all of us, is the best way to relieve labor's dissatisfaction with Little Steel formula among miners and other essential workers as well. Unfortunately, most of the Republican Congressmen and Senators and some anti-New Deal Democrats will probably vote against subsidies unless their constituents strongly demand support for the President's policy designed to reduce the cost of living and prevent more wildcat strikes.

Take My Husband

On page 1 of The Post today there appears a news story under the heading "'Friend' Wife Urges Army to Send Spouse Far Away." The story is credited to the current bulletin of the Selective Service System and purports to quote a letter which was presented to a local draft board in Poinsett County, Ark., by a registrant who could not write or read and who had, as he thought, induced his wife to write a plea for his deferment. The letter is in part as follows:

"Dear United States Army:

"My husband asked me to write a recommend that he supports his family. He cannot read, so don't tell him. Just take him. He ain't no good to me. He ain't done nothing but raise hell and drink lemon essence since I married him eight years ago, and I got to feed seven kids of his. Maybe you can get him to carry a gun. He's good on squirrels and eating. Take him and welcome."

In 1918 a Tennessee mountain woman wrote a letter to President Wilson which was practically identical with the above-quoted missive. It was sent along with other papers to the Military Intelligence Division. The original passed through my hands and I had several copies made at the time. The letter itself should still be in the Army files.

Can it be that this is a resurrection of the 1918 epistle, brought up to date and Bob Burnsized for 1943?

Granting Priorities

I am the mother of two children, ages 1 year and 2½ years. Our secondhand refrigerator, an ancient Norge, broke down two days ago and a repairman suggested that we try to obtain a new one.

The first dealer I called seemed anxious to sell a refrigerator, but doubted that I could get a priority since my husband is not a member of the armed forces. I don't see what a uniform has to do with the need for refrigeration, but I found out upon calling the War Production Board that such is the regulation.

I object to such discrimination against civilians, particularly babies. It is obviously necessary for me to store food in my home, and this need should justify a priority. The servicemen working in Washington and living here with their families are not enduring any greater hardship than I, and I refuse to take second place to them in this matter. Since the supply of refrigerators is limited, the WPB should grant priorities on the basis of the applicant's need rather than the type of clothes he wears.

Prewar Kings

By Paul Winkler

Greek Situation

WHEN THE Greek government in Cairo offered its resignation to Premier Emmanuel Tsouderos, and then allowed itself to be persuaded to take it back again, the reason generally given was disapproval of the Allied deal with Marshal Badoglio and King Victor Emmanuel. This may have been a contributing cause, but private reports lay more emphasis on the attitude of the King as the reason for the resignation which didn't stick.

In the light of this information it appears that if the Greek cabinet's abortive resignation was touched off by the Italian situation at all, it was not so much because of disapproval in principle of the Badoglio-Victor Emmanuel situation, but because of specific interest in the question of whether or not the Allies are planning to support prewar kings in returning to their thrones. For though the present exile government of Greece is the King's government, and as such should be monarchically inclined, it seems to have been greatly dissatisfied with the King's recent actions.

For the Greeks, the monarchical situation began coming to a head last July 4, when King George, in a broadcast beamed to Greece from Cairo, promised "free elections" within six months after the liberation of the country. He made it clear, however, that what he had in mind was simply the resignation of the exile government, handed to himself, and the creation of a new one, also under himself.

Greek Underground

The Greek underground was upset by this speech, and when a delegation of six underground leaders was smuggled out of the country by the British and brought to Cairo for the purpose of providing information to the Allies, they took advantage of the occasion to attempt to seek assurances that the people would be allowed to decide whether they wanted to continue with the monarchy or shift to a republic. The leader of this group was Elias Tsirimokos, a former member of the Greek Chamber of Deputies. The underground leaders were not uncompromising in their attitude. It was their belief that little enthusiasm could be expected from their adherents if they were asked to risk their lives simply to return to Greece a monarchy which had behind it a record of repressive government. At the same time they realized that a government appointed by the King could not be expected to accept an absolute commitment that postwar Greece should be a republic.

Therefore, they asked only that the question be left open for the people to decide. They did not accept the King as entitled automatically to return to his throne, but they did not rule him out either. In Cairo, the underground delegates discussed this point of view with a representative of the former political parties, Exinparis, and with former Vice Premier Kanellopoulos, who had resigned from the exile government the preceding April. As a result of these discussions the conferees, in the name of the underground and the former political parties, addressed a formal letter to Premier Tsouderos asking the government to take a commitment that the King should not return to Greece until the people had been able to take a free vote on whether or not they wanted him back.

Devoted to King

Tsouderos is extremely devoted to the King, yet he agreed with the unanimous opinion of the cabinet that this pledge should be given. The government felt that the cooperation of the Greek underground could not be maintained without it. The King was approached. He delayed answering for some time, meanwhile reportedly consulting the British government, and finally refused to accept the proposed formula. He then hurried off to Lebanon, giving bad health as a reason for what looked to his government like a retreat. It was at this point that the cabinet tried to resign, and was dissuaded by Tsouderos, after he had himself considered quitting office and finally thought better of it.

Meanwhile, strict censorship had been imposed in Cairo on all outgoing dispatches on the Greek situation. The Greeks felt that the United States was not being fully or accurately informed on the internal political situation of Greece. The underground leaders in particular, though enthusiastically pro-Allied, resented the theory that Greece should be considered as contained exclusively in the British sphere of interest. They desired stronger American interest in their country as a counterweight; and it was decided that Tsirimokos should go to the United States with the double purpose of informing Washington on the state of Greek affairs, and of conferring with democratic Greek-Americans, whose help the Greek underground desired to maintain contacts with America.

But Tsirimokos has been refused permission to go to the United States, apparently as a result of British intervention. And the situation thus remains a deadlock, with the King opposed both to the underground and to his own government on the issue of putting his continued tenure of the throne up to the people.

Today And Tomorrow

European Relief And The USA

LIPPMANN

LIKE MOST others in this country I had supposed that the relief and rehabilitation of the liberated countries of Europe would call for gigantic sums of money and would make a very heavy drain upon the resources of the United States. But I have now had an opportunity to examine the estimates of their requirements for the critical period, that is to say for the first six months after liberation, and I am satisfied that, once the problem has been explained, our people will see quickly that what looks like an appeal to their good will is no less a matter of good sense.

THUS IT is not even remotely the fact that the American people are going to be asked to bear the whole burden of repairing the consequences of the European war. They will be asked to make available in North America, with the help of Canada, Mexico, and the Caribbean states, about 20 per cent of the goods which the eight occupied European countries must have in the first six months. The rest of their needs are to be met by the rest of the world. Moreover, the countries which will need the largest amounts of goods are by and large those which, like France, the Netherlands, and Belgium, have also the means, that is to say gold and foreign exchange, to pay for them. The countries which will have to be helped by gifts—such as Poland, Yugoslavia, and Greece—will need comparatively small sums. In order to see our part of the financial problem in the approximately correct proportions we can say that we may be asked to contribute something like 1 per cent of our national income—say between one and two billion dollars: on the same basis the British Empire's contribution would be perhaps about half a billion dollars.

To be sure the first six months will not see all these countries back on their feet again. But the first six months will be the critical months, and what will be needed after that no one can now foresee nor must anyone now decide. We do know, however, that if we meet the emergency successfully, the demands which arise afterwards will be much easier to deal with. It is true also that Russia is not included in these estimates, and not as yet the almost wholly unknown needs of the Far East. But Russia's problem, because of her vast resources and enormous economic potential, is a different and separate question; one not of relief and rehabilitation but of trade and finance.

THE IMMEDIATE problem of European relief, though it calls for a high degree of practical intelligence, is quite manageable. It is far more a problem of good organization and of management than it is of philanthropy. It will be useful, therefore, to fix the general picture in our minds if we are to understand what the Atlantic City conference, which meets this week, is dealing with.

The eight countries, which are to be liberated, have been studying their minimum urgent needs for over two years—since September, 1941—and with Britons, Russians, and Americans participating, they have reached an understanding on their estimates. Since each country which took part in this work had to prove to all the others that it was not demanding more than its fair share, we may conclude that these estimates are as good as it was possible to make them. For no country could inflate its demands without, so to speak, taking the bread out of its neighbor's mouth.

IN ROUND numbers the eight countries together need in the first six months total imports of 46 million tons of foods, seeds, fuels, clothing, raw materials, machinery, and medical supplies. But just about half of all this they expect to obtain out of continental Europe itself, and without the use of shipping and, therefore without drawing upon American supplies.

Of the remaining half of their needs—about 23½ million tons which have to be carried in ships—North America is expected to supply 9½, the United Kingdom 3½, Europe and the Mediterranean 6, the rest of the world about 4.

A rough idea of what will need to be moved from Canada, the United States, Central America, and the Caribbean—(as well as North and West Africa, which are counted as part of the same shipping zone)—is to say that it will call for the allocation of between 600 and 700 Liberty ships. This is a large operation, and obviously, the final decision of how much of it can be carried out will depend upon circumstances—the needs of the war in the Pacific, the reduction of the supplies needed by our forces in Europe when hostilities cease over there. For the moment the important thing is to see the dimensions and proportions of the problem, and to approach it not as a question of charity but of logistics and practical administration.

THE AMERICAN people would, of course, wish in any event to relieve the suffering of the peoples who are the victims of our common enemies. But what we are called upon to do will be done best if we do not think of the operation as an outpouring of relief. The much truer description of it is to say that we are asked to make available some working capital in order that these peoples may in a relatively short time be self-supporting once more. Relief in the sense of charity to the destitute is necessary but it is not the preponderant part of the business: the preponderant part of it is to supply them with enough working capital—food, seeds, tools, transport, drugs—to enable the continent to get started again.

The United States has a very great interest, quite apart from the humanitarian aspects of it, in seeing that the liberated continent goes back to work. For if it does not, then every country in Europe will have to resort to embargoes, exchange controls, and all manner of regimentation merely in order to obtain temporary relief for its unemployed and hungry people. That is the road to economic and social disorder in the postwar world.

FINALLY, WE ought to make clear to ourselves that if we do not set up the organization to do what has to be done in an orderly fashion, all the world including the richer liberated countries will start bidding for supplies in the world markets. That will explode the inflation everywhere which, next to military security, it is our first task postwar to deal with.

"Wartime Washington" by Merlo Pusey, which usually appears on this page on Tuesday, will this week appear on Wednesday.

Revenue Viewpoints

Fiscal War's Outcome Expected To Have Far-Reaching Effect

By Ellsworth C. Alvord

Practicing attorney, Washington, D. C., Chairman, Committee on Federal Finance, United States Chamber of Commerce. Formerly Assistant Legislative Counsel, House of Representatives; Assistant Legislative Counsel, United States Senate; Special Assistant to the Secretary of the Treasury.

We hear much of postwar programs. But, paradoxically, many of our postwar problems are being decided today.

Is our Government to be totalitarian, socialistic, or democratic; will our lives and happiness be planned and controlled for us by Washington; how much compulsion from bureaucrats must we continue to take; how long after the war will our food be rationed, our clothing controlled, our homes cold; will our boys returning from the battle fronts be compelled to remain indefinitely in military service, or to plead for a dole, or relief, or sustenance from their Government; will Government promises be our only security and will its past promises be performed; will we have a chance to work and to choose our jobs, freedom to worship, opportunities to provide for our families, to educate our children, to assist our neighbors?—these are but a few of the many, many issues being decided for us today. And today's decision will probably prove irrevocable. We may have no choice tomorrow.

In the field of fiscal affairs—you may feel comfortably far, far away, but actually its din is deafening to an ear attuned to it—a war is waging, has been waging for several years. On its outcome much depends. During the entire prewar period we blundered miserably. Our fiscal program was either a day-to-day makeshift, inadequate, unrealistic, unsound, and unfortunate, or it was part of a definite program to place our economy upon such a plane that an eternally vigilant, all-powerful Washington would be required for its operation.

Its effect upon our national-defense program and our preparation for war might have been fatal, but, fortunately, the Congress intervened. The Revenue Act of 1942 imposed maximum rates of taxes, for maximum taxes were imperative. They are still essential. The fight against inflation requires the help of maximum taxation. The Treasury needs the money. War profiteering must be prevented.

How can we determine the maximum load corporations can carry? The answer lies not in technicalities of taxation, nor in the mysteries of higher mathematics. Yankee fashion, I answer it with another question: What are our objectives? How do you wish the issues outlined in my first paragraph to be decided? Because I have implicit confidence in the decision of the overwhelming majority of Americans, I suggest a few general principles:

(1) Maximum production of war materials must be maintained. Our war machine is no stronger than its production lines. Current deliveries of planes, tanks, guns, ships, ammunition for our fighting fronts, are of much greater importance than current tax revenues. Dollars are expendable, replaceable, recoverable. Lives are not.

Backbone of America

(2) Small business—and most businesses are small—is the backbone of America. It is individualism and free enterprise exemplified. But it lives only upon profits after taxes. It should not, and need not, be destroyed in the course of a war for its preservation. Fiscal murder has the same effect as premeditated, cold-blooded killing. Words and phrases, even though frequently repeated, will not save private initiative, private capital, and private enterprise. And there is slight satisfaction in promises of future resuscitation.

(3) Business enterprises survive only if, over a decade, for example, there are profits after taxes. Our form of government will survive only if there are substantial profits to tax. Future profits are as important as present tax revenues. A bankrupt business is no foundation for either a better world or a better government.

(4) As business activity increases, cash requirements increase. Payrolls must be paid in cash. Raw materials require cash. Repairs and maintenance need cash. Transportation costs are collected in cash. Maturing debts must be met with cash. And our governments—Federal, State, and local, exact cash in payment of taxes. If taxes are large, and available cash small, someone will suffer.

Risks Also Increase

(5) As business activity increases, risks of the business increase. Additions to plant, machinery, and equipment are costly—and their future value may be doubtful. Large inventories of raw materials have been purchased at current market prices—but may be sold for scrap if war contracts are canceled. Accounts receivable have increased—and their value lies only in the ability of the debtor to pay on time. Costs actually to be incurred are always unknown—and a small increase in costs may convert an estimated profit into a realized loss. Current liabilities are increasing, and current assets decreasing—until the ratio approaches or goes beyond the danger point. Profits after taxes must be commensurate with the risks.

(6) Financial strength is based solely upon profits and must be built during a period of profits.

(7) Business enterprises are merely groups of individuals. Management, labor, stockholder, creditor must each receive a return commensurate with his contribution. Therefore, the tax upon the corporation must be coordinated with the tax upon the individuals' share of its profits—a subject beyond the scope of this article.

If these general principles are acceptable, the following conclusions are inescapable:

(1) The existing corporate rates (40 per cent of "normal" income and 90 per cent of "excess profits"—with a "ceiling" to prevent the combined rates from taking more than 80 per cent of total income) cannot be increased;

(2) Profits which appear to be excessive may prove illusory; "excess" profits must be defined with care; and postwar requirements must be considered in their measurement. Effective devices should be adopted to permit industry to acquire financial strength from current profits without affecting the flow of cash into the Treasury;

(3) Excess profits should be recaptured through taxation, and not through the uncontrolled, unguided administrative action apparently unauthorized by the renegotiation statute.

The Revenue Act of 1942, from the point of view of corporate taxes, is the result of the patience, perseverance, far-sightedness, and untiring effort of the leaders of the tax committees of the Congress. It is severe, wartime taxation. It should remain in force throughout the war, modified to afford opportunity to prepare for the postwar period. But the entire corporate tax structure must be revised immediately upon the cessation of hostilities.

Centuries-old writings should have taught us that "a wise man in time of peace prepares for war." Let us at least learn the counterpart, and begin now to prepare for peace.

Kaiser Calls 'Class Bitterness' Most Dangerous U. S. Problem

New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—Class bitterness, says Henry J. Kaiser, is America's "most dangerous problem," and labor and management must help settle it by recognizing that there can be no fear or distrust between them.

The World-Telegram quoted Kaiser in an interview as saying that "there is bitterness in the land today, class conflict and deep antagonisms, men hating each other without cause."

"And these savage wars of peace can never be resolved by riot, mob violence or martial law," Kaiser said. "Men's hearts must be right."

Kaiser said that it was management's job "to sell self-respect and trust for itself to the unions by showing greater interest in its people. It is the union's duty to get out the work and try to understand management's problem."

"There is no such thing as labor relations," Kaiser said. "There are only human relations. You are dealing with people, not impersonal problems of finance or electronics.

"There are three sides to every argument—your side, my side and the right side."

Kaiser said that under a closed shop "matters are simplified. The behavior of the men becomes a direct responsibility of the union."

Delinquency Causes Revealed

More than 13 per cent of Washingtons juvenile delinquents are products of broken homes, a survey conducted recently in junior schools revealed yesterday.

As a result of a questionnaire distributed among students, it was determined that lack of home discipline, insufficient effort in the home and bad environment are the other major causes contributing to delinquency.

As methods of combating the problem, teachers suggested more wholesome, supervised recreation in the schools and greater parental recognition of responsibilities in the home.

Marshall Lauds Troops On Landing Anniversary

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Nov. 8 (AP).—On the first anniversary of the initial landings of United States troops on North African shores Gen. George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff, today messaged the congratulations of the War Department to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and his officers and men.

"Together with an expression of profound admiration for your accomplishments and with confidence in the victory to come, I send my personal congratulations and thanks to you and the officers and men of our Army under your command," Marshall said.

Hancock, Once In House, New FSA Head

War Food Administrator Marvin Jones last night announced the appointment of Frank Hancock, former Congressman from North Carolina, as head of the Farm Security Administration.

Hancock, who was in the House of Representatives from 1930 through 1938, succeeds C. B. Baldwin, who resigned several months ago to become area director of economic operations in Italy for the Office of Foreign Economic Coordination.

FSA is now under investigation by Congress for alleged "collectivist" activities and managing a program "designed to make clients dependent on the Government rather than self-sufficient." Representative Cooley (Democrat) of North Carolina is chairman of the investigating committee.

About the appointment Jones said: "I have selected a man I believe can do this job, and I am placing complete responsibility on him for administering the FSA program in such a way as to make a most effective contribution to the war effort.

"In addition to his being primarily responsible for handling the FSA matters, I intend to utilize his knowledge and experience on other phases of the war food program."

FSA was set up to help the less fortunate third of the Nation's farmers become farm owners and better farmers and brought aid to many thousands before "inheriting" the rural resettlement projects in their final and failing stages.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

THE TICKLISH QUESTION of who is going to be President of the Philippines after November 15 was placed on the White House doorstep recently, with the result that Judge Sam Rosenman shoved it gingerly away. If the Philippine constitution is to be set aside, he insisted, Congress would have to do it.

This has brought into the open an unfortunate row between distinguished, invalid President Quezon and popular Vice President Osmena. On November 15, the Philippine constitution provides, Vice President Osmena shall succeed Quezon as President. But Quezon doesn't want to step down, has hired Homer Cummings, appointed Governor General of the Philippines before he became Attorney General, to plead his case.

The rivalry, smouldering ever since Quezon failed to take his cabinet out of Manila, choosing a personal staff of servants and doctors instead, has now flared out in the Philippine-American newspapers.

Filipinos in this country point to the unfortunate fact that because Quezon's cabinet was left behind, the members have been forced by the Japs to constitute the Jap puppet cabinet in Manila. Quezon was allowed by General MacArthur to take 30 people with him from Manila to Corregidor, and Filipinos in this country claim that if he had taken out the cabinet instead of his servants and personal aides, things might have been different.

Vice President Osmena had to appeal to General MacArthur personally in order to be included in the party.

Back of the dispute is the fact that Quezon originally was elected for one term of six years on a platform pledging no second term. When the first term expired in 1940, the constitution was changed to add two more years, with a proviso that no President would serve more than eight years. The eight years is up next week.

In the 1941 elections, Quezon got 80 per cent of the vote, but Vice President Osmena got 82 per cent. Osmena is especially popular in the southern islands, where he lives, the area where presumably any landing to retake the Philippines must be made.

Note: One of those who wanted to go with Quezon to Corregidor was Yale-educated Jose P. Laurel, now President of the Japanese-Philippine Republic. As a high-school student Laurel had shot three men in a fight over a girl. An American attorney, Clyde DeWitt, secured his acquittal on a technicality. Filipinos say: "All that he has he owes to Americans."

Knife Out for Willkie

OIL MAN-GOP BOSS Joe Pew of Pennsylvania is getting ready to unlimber his big guns against the Willkie-for-President forces. This is the story behind former Republican National Chariman John D. M. Hamilton's political tour of the West.

Pew hasn't yet selected a candidate of his own, according to GOP insiders, although he is inclined toward Tom Dewey. His one burning ambition is to destroy Willkie. Hamilton, a close friend of the oil baron nad law associate of George Wharton Pepper, Pew counsel, let this drop in private chats with Capital politicos, before leaving on his tour.

He didn't have to reveal that Pew had a hand in the trip; this was taken for granted. But he did disclose that his main objective was to cut the ground from under Willkie.

"Do you want to be national chairman again?" a Republican jokingly inquired of Hamilton.

"No, that's farthest from my mind," replied Hamilton. 'My main interest at the moment is licking this guy Willkie."

Hamilton then proceeded to uncork what one of his listeners described as a few "unprintable remarks" concerning Willkie's qualifications, saying that the 1940 GOP nominee was about the last man he would want to see heading the ticket in 1944.

While Hamilton was warming to his subject—the pow-wow was held in a corridor off the House floor—who should pass by but Representative Joe Martin of Massachusetts, whom Willkie appointed to succeed Hamilton during the 1940 campaign.

Hamilton rushed over to shake hands.

"Joe, I want to talk to you," he said.

"Sure, John," replied Martin. "Drop by after we adjourn today."

Political Chaff

JIM FALEY WAS RIGHT after all about Kentucky. He told GOP friends that it offered the best bet to lick F. D. R. if they had any political money to invest. Either Jim hasn't lost his political acumen or it was GOP money which did it—or both . . . Some politicians thought the President could have been more politically minded when he described himself as a "tree-grower" rather than a "farmer" in voting at Hyde Park. To them it looked as if he had deserted the farmers . . . Herbert Hoover, Tom Dewey and Henry Taylor (author of "Men in Motion" had a secret confab recently about the GOPs future . . . New Jersey's former Governor Moore was blazing mad at New Jersey's present Governor, Charles Edison for not mentioning Democratic Candidate Murphy in a climax campaign speech. New Jersey Dems complain that Edison, son of the famous inventor, is no real Democrat . . . At a Kiwanis Club luncheon one day after elections, Jim Farley took off the gloves, blasted his one-time Administration with everything he had.

Johnson Waxes Hot

WILLIAM BLACKSTONE, of legal fame, together with the National Park Service, came in for a tongue-lashing from economy-minded Representative Jed Johnson of Oklahoma when the Park Service asked for $10,000 for moving a statue of Blackstone from inside the Court of Appeals Building to outer ground, purchase a "polished" granite base, and for "printing and binding" expenses in connection with a dedication.

Drawled Congressman Johnson at a closed door session of the House Appropriations Committee:

"I have a profound respect for the memory of Blackstone. Before coming to Congress I practiced law for several years. However, Blackstone was not what might be termed a polished lawyer. He was a rough old gentleman, and I don't see how we are going to change the important place he has in the hearts and minds of the people by polishing a piece of rough granits at a cost of $5000 to the taxpayers. Also, it occurs to me that the country might struggle along without moving his statue for a century or so."

Conspirator Sentenced

New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—Stephen Weinberg, 50, who had pleaded guilty to charges of conspiring to violate the Selective Service Act, was sentenced to seven years in prison—to be followed by five years on probation—and fined $17.500 by Federal Judge Murray Hulbert today.

Food Message Stirs Entire New Study

The President's recent message on food has caused such a "furor" in the food production field, Chairman Smith (Democrat) of South Carolina declared yesterday, the Senate Agriculture Committee will start all over and—in hearings opening Monday—look into the whole farm industry situation.

State commissioners of agriculture, representatives of farm organizations and "plain farmers" will testify.

"We feel that hearing these producers might shed a more factual light on future legislation concerning continuance of the Commodity Credit Corp. and at the same time give us a chance to investigate the impact of food subsidies," Chairman Smith said.

Are Paid by CCC

Most food subsidies now in operation are paid by the CCC, which will expire December 31 unless Congress votes otherwise. Several other congressional committees already are looking into the subsidy question.

Meantime, the War Food Administration announced prospects covering the 1944 supply of fats and oils, showing civilians in this country can expect a per capita allocation of 44 pounds, in comparison to 47 pounds this year. Contained in the 44 pounds will be butter, lard, shortenings and oils, and margarine.

In total pounds, civilians will get approximately 1.6 billion pounds of butter, 1.7 billion pounds of lard, 1.9 billion pounds of shortenings and oils, and 400 million pounds of fat in margarine.

70 Per Cent of Total

This represents 70 per cent of the total fats allocated for food. Military services will get 9 per cent and the remaining 21 per cent will be allocated to exports—including Lend-Lease, commercial exports and requirements for feeding liberated countries.

The United States will have produced 90 per cent. of all the fats and oils used for the above purposes, in comparison to 82 per cent production in peacetime when the overall volume was smaller.

Lard will play an important part in the total fats picture next year, WFA said. Since supplies are in excess of edible requirements, it will be used extensively in soap making and for other industrial purposes.

United Nations Relief Pact To Be Signed at White House

By Christine Sadler

In a White House ceremony at noon today 44 international delegates will sign an agreement setting in motion the first United Nations program to deal with problems growing out of World War II.

The signing formalizes the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, designed to help starving and jobless war victims regain their self-sufficiency.

President Roosevelt will address the delegates, who will leave on a special train for Atlantic City Wednesday morning for the first meeting of the new administration's council. There they will be joined by additional members of delegations from 43 nations and the French Committee of National Liberation, making up the largest international gathering ever held in the United States.

To Elect Director General

First action in Atlantic City will be election of a director general for UNRRA. The President has indicated this country will nominate Herbert H. Lehman, former head of the United States Office of Foreign Relief and Rehabilitation Operations and for several years Governor of New York.

UNRRA is the first attempt by the United Nations to deal directly with such a large practical problem. If it works, precedents of cooperation and accomplishment will be set for other projects considered essential to an effective peace.

After compiling estimates of relief and rehabilitation needs to be faced by the United Nations, ways and means or reaching underfed and helpless populations both in Europe and Asia will be evolved, and member countries will decide their own contributions to the world pool.

Subject to Approval

Their decisions will be subject to approval of their respective governments and, in this country, must be approved by Congress.

While relief on a "handout basis" will be necessary in many cases at first, the guiding principle of the administration is expected to be that payments will be collected where feasible and essential services and industries will be restored so that liberated peoples can support themselves.

Brave Police Bag '1000-Lb. Monster'

Baltimore, Nov. 8 (AP).—Called out by terrified reportes that a monstrous bull "weighing maybe 1000 pounds" was tying up traffic and sending pedestrians scurrying, two radio car patrolmen sped to the scene today, in spite of warning that their clothesline laasso was too frail.

They returned with a 70-pound calf seated quietly between them.

Irish Unanimously Year's Top Grid Team

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

It's a matter of three weeks before the Army-Navy game, and that one offers up more intriguing conjecture than any contest of recent memory. It should be a beaut and only the completely intrepid would venture to predict the winner at this point.

POVICH

The service schools' two games with Notre Dame serve only to confuse the issue further. What do you make of the fact that Navy lost to the Irish by 27 points and Army lost to the same team by 26 points? Certainly that 1-point difference is no cause to prefer Army over Navy.

Army and Navy have met one other common foe, Penn, and on the basis of those games, Navy might rate some kind of an edge. The Middies beat Penn, 26 to 7, a week after Penn tied Army, 13 to 13, but there is a deterrent to any violent Navy enthusiasm that might spring from those scores. Army with a T-formation attack that demands super precision, was playing Penn on a wet field.

Somehow we got the idea that Army offered Notre Dame more opposition than did Navy, which was completely sunk when Hal Hamberg's passes could produce no more than one touchdown. Navy ended up with a total of 11 yards minus in its running game against the Irish, while Army backs did get away for gains netting 111 yards.

Navy could be coming up to the Army game as a better ball team, though. Bob Jenkins, the transfer from Alabama, was nursing injuries during the Notre Dame game, but he was a potent fellow against Penn. He brings to the Navy backfield a versatility it had lacked. His ball carrying gives Navy a new weapon to buttress the passing threat of Hamberg.

There isn't anybody in the Army backfield who can pass with Hamberg. Compared with the Navy back's clever throwing, Army was in a sorry plight against Notre Dame. Glenn Davis, who threw most of West Point's passes, simply isn't in Hamberg's class.

But if Davis can't pass with Hamburg, there is for Army the compensating factor that Navy has no back who can run with Davis. Even Jenkins does not seem to measure up to the West Point plebe who last Saturday, when he wasn't fumbling, looked as if he belonged in Notre Dame's backfield.

Despite Notre Dame's great backs, the Irish didn't have a man on the field with the speed of Davis, and neither will Navy unless Pettit, its sprinter is in the line-up. Pettit may even be a shade faster than Davis, but he isn't the ball carrier. Navy can scarcely rely on the hope that Davis will have the same kind of a fumbling day three weeks hence. And anyway, Navy does not figure to keep hitting Davis with the same violence that did Notre Dame.

Navy's line never could shake its backs loose through the big Notre Dame line. In fact, Coach John Whelchel kept his best plunging back, Sullivan, out of the line-up except for a few minutes and relied on Hamberg's passing in the knowledge that Sullivan's line-charging would be pretty futile against the Irish.

But Army's line did a better job of it against Notre Dame, at least on offense. The West Point backs, Davis, Maxon and Anderson were finding holes, and Army compelled Coach Frank Leahy to get his second-string line out of there with great rapidity on one long march in the second quarter.

Both the service schools will come up to the November 27 game as improved teams, no doubt, with Jenkins and Pettit adding to Navy's running attack. Army, though, will benefit from added weeks of work with the T-formation. Army's "T" was a bit shabby in contrast to the smooth-function of Notre Dame's T-formation, which was understandable in view of the fact that the Irish are in the second year of the "T" while Army is a 1943 recruit to "T" ranks.

Navy might find some comfort in the fact that it's beating by Notre Dame was in a week when the Irish had Angelo Bertelli. There was no Bertelli to throw the passes against Army, but nobody is going to castigate Johnny Lujack for his job as Bertelli's replacement last week. Bertelli couldn't have wreaked any more harm on the opposition. Lujack threw two touchdown passes, scored one touchdown himself, gave the team faultless direction, and saved an Army touchdown with the game's best tackle.

The Army-Navy game will be won or lost in the line, probably, just as most football games are. The defeats by Notre Dame followed much the same pattern. The service schools lines did very well for one half and then were worn down by the Irish forwards in the last two periods. Army held the Irish for downs on the 2-yard line in the first quarter, you remember. And against Navy, the Irish had to go into the air for three of their touchdowns. The battle between those two good lines on November 27 ought to be compensation enough for anybody holding a ticket to the game.

Redskin Line Not Too Bad Against Eagles, Says Coach

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

After reading at some length throughout the day how the Redskin line had been pushed all over the field in Sunday's 14-14 tie with the Phil-Pitt Eagles, Coach Dutch Bergman intimated last night he hardly subscribed to the reasoning that a weakness in the line cost the 'Skins their fourteenth straight league victory.

COACH BERGMAN

"I thought the line played a pretty good ball game," Bergman said. "The trouble is people are spoiled with the great game that Redskin line plays every Sunday and when they have a letdown and some other line plays them to a standstill, well, our line is considered weak."

Dutch admitted, however, the Eagles' sliding, unorthodox defensive tactics had the Redskin line guessing and enabled the Eagles to break through and give Sammy Baugh one of his most uncomfortable afternoons in the pro league.

No Running Threat

If Baugh had been a threat to run with the ball or pass each time he had the ball, the Eagles would not have dared to play him as they did, but with Baugh a passing expert only, they were able to rush him and upset the Redskin plays.

The Redskins took their worst physical beating of the season (the Eagles probably are not feeling too well either), but Bergman expects to have his entire squad in playing shape for the Detroit Lions Sunday in Griffith Stadium.

Wilbur Moore, who continued his brilliant play and played a particularly outstanding game on defense, added a few bruises and sore spots to his already battered frame and with several other regulars will probably take it easy this week.

Smith, Wilkin Slowed

Andy Farkas, whose absence through the first three periods put the burden of the Redskin running game on Bob Seymour, should be in top shape Sunday. Farkas was bothered by a stiffness in his injured leg but Dutch is counting on Andy for a 60-minute performance, if necessary, against the Lions.

George Smith favored his bruised foot and played less than a half and Willie Wilkin went out on one of the first plays with a knee hurt. Wee Willie returned to the game but was slowed up. Dick Farman, who was just getting over one beautiful shiner, had another added.

Bergman will receive a scout report on the Detroit Lions-Giant game today, but Dutch will base most of his defense on the scout report of the week before, thankful he had the foresight to have them under surveillance twice. The Giant game was played in deep mud and both clubs played to a cautious, scoreless tie.

Bergman has no criticism for the general play of the 'Skins against the Eagles and he will go ahead with the usual workouts today. The Detroit game will be a sellout by midweek while all seats for the Chicago Bear game Sunday, November 21, have been gone, several days.

Colts, Riders Priming for Night Battle

By Tom Moore McBride

Coolidge and Roosevelt High School football teams—traditional rivals of one year's standing—slogged through the mud of their respective practice fields yesterday in preparation for their meeting in the spot game of the week at Griffith Stadium Thursday night.

Coolidge's Colts are out to maintain their local unbeaten record and avenge the 31-0 defeat they suffered at the hands—and feet—of last year's strong Rough Rider team.

The Riders, of course, are anxious to make it two in a row and also to clinch a place in the championship play-off of the high school series on Thanksgiving Day. Coolidge already is assured of a place in the play-off, but Wilson or Tech still stand a mathematical chance of tying it up for a play-off to decide which will play in the championship game.

On the basis of past performance it looks like Coolidge will win Thursday and also take its final game with Western the following week. It also looks like Roosevelt should take Tech that week, but past performance doesn't count when the teams take the field.

Neighborhood Feud

At any rate, Thursday's Armistice Day game looks like the standout of the high school series. Both schools drew their student bodies from the same neighborhood and the same junior high schools; consequently there already is a rivalry even though it's only Coolidge's second year in the local grid ranks.

A 100-piece combined high school cadet corps band will open the evening's entertainment shortly after the stadium gates open at 7 o'clock and also will play between the halves. Jim Gibbons, who will take over the announcing of the Redskin games when Ray Michaels goes to the Army, will give a play-by-play account of the game over the public address system. In effect, J. Dallas Shirley, director of physical education for senior high schools, said last night, the game will be a sort of proving ground for future high school night games at the stadium. It it goes over, there'll be others.

Adult tickets are priced at 75 cents and are on sale at the stadium, at the Touchdown Club and at Coolidge and Roosevelt. Students will be admitted on their season tickets.

Eastern vs. Gonzaga

There's plenty of other good local gridiron entertainment on the fire this week, too. On Thursday Eastern High will entertain the Gonzaga team which gave such a good account of itself against Boys Town Sunday. There's a real competitive background between these two Northeast section schools, and there have been some bang-up ball games when they clashed in the past. Friday's headliner will be at Wilson stadium between the Tigers and Anacostia, with Western journeying to Alexandria for a tilt with the George Washington Presidents. Devitt will play Georgetown Prep and Landon will take on the undefeated St. Albans powerhouse.

Tech and Central's rivalry, which started way back when both schools were in downtown locations, will be resumed on Saturday at Central stadium, and though Central hasn't won a game so far this season, the Vikings can be counted on to pull themselves up by their bootstraps and play over their heads as they did in their game with St. Johns. Also slated for Saturday is a game between Bullis Prep of Silver Spring and Mercersburg Academy at Mercersburg, Pa.

Squad Seen South Bend's Greatest Ever

By Harold Claassen

New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—Notre Dame headed every ballot cast in this week's Associated Press football poll to determine the 10 leading teams in the country—the first time any club ever received unanimous approval.

The Irish, who have monopolized the top rung all year, brushed aside all other threats for a first place vote by defeating Army, 26 to 0, in New York Saturday while Navy was downing Pennsylvania and San Diego Naval Training Station surprised Southern California, 10 to 7.

Lieut. Comdr. Edgar E. (Rip) Miller, line coach at the U. S. Naval Academy but a Notre Dame graduate, told the New York football writers today that the present team representing his alma mater was definitely the best Irish team and "the day it played Navy at Cleveland it could have beaten any other college team ever to take the field."

Present Team Is Tops

"I have always ranked the 1940 Notre Dame team as its best, even better than the Four Horsemen of 1924, but now the 1943 outfit must go to the top," Miller concluded.

Seated next to him was Frank Leahy, coach of the present Irish squad which has raced through seven opponents and was able to blank the Army, despite the loss of Quarterback Angelo Bertelli, now in a Marine camp.

Leahy had spoken earlier and branded as "desperately unfair" any talk of a national championship or unbeaten season "when these kids soon will be fighting for something more important."

The coach, who has earned somewhat of a reputation as a fretter this fall because he envisions a defeat in every game despite his team's record, denied he was a pessimist but defended his statements as "strict common sense."

Draws on Experience

"Three years ago while at Boston College," he continued, "our club had won nine in a row and at the pep rally before the Holy Cross game I was swept away by the oratory myself. I predicted we would win and urged everyone to bet his bottom dollar on us. We were lucky to win, 7 to 0. That will never happen again."

Purdue retained second place in the poll, but Army skidded from third to sixth plaace because it lost to the Irish. Navy crept back to third and Michigan grabbed fourth.

Iowa Preflight marched from eighth to fifth with Duke, Southern California and Pennsylvania still holding places in the select circle. College of Pacific, despite a 19-to-7 verdict over St. Mary's, fluttered out of the group and made way for eighth-place Northwestern.

The leading teams, counting 10 points for a first place vote, 9 for seconds, etc. (first place votes in parenthesis):

TOP TEN
Notre Dame	910
Purdue	570
Navy	518
Michigan	486
Iowa Preflight	457
Army	404
Duke	308
Northwestern	285
Southern California	250
Pennsylvania	131

SECOND TEN—College of Pacific, 113; Washington, 70; Del Monte Preflight, 58; Texas A. and M., 56; March Field, 48; Texas, 34; Tulsa, 31; Dartmouth, 30; Georgia Tech, 23; San Diego, 20.

ALSO RANS—Great Lakes, 13; Colorado College, 11; Southwestern Louisiana Institute, 10; Arkansas A. and M., 9; Bainbridge, Md., Naval, 8; Colorado University, 2; Randolph Field, 1.

Notre Dame Lost Koslowski All On Account of His Hook

By Steve O'Leary

Worcester, Mass., Nov. 8 (AP).—Stan Koslowski, the Holy Cross passing ace, would have been flipping his aerials from the right halfback slot at Notre Dame this fall if the tall tosser hadn't thought more of his golf game.

Stan, who was State caddy and junior champ in the Rhode Island golf world, thinks much more of that game than he does of his football accomplishments and that's where he clashed with Frank Leahy, who is a perfectionist as far as football is concerned.

Leahy, indeed, had figured Koslowski this fall would be his first-string right halfback. In fact, Frank had built, in his unique, painstaking way, an offense in which Koslowski was going to play a big part.

The trouble was that when practice time came last spring, the whole squad was there, except Koslowski. Frank would go worrying after him and nine times out of ten would find him practicing tee shots.

"Stan, lad," one could hear Leahy saying, "we need you out there practicing."

"Yeah, coach," Koslowski would reply, "I'll be with you as soon as I straighten out this hook."

Leahy, naturally, soon got sick of waiting for Stan to get that hook straightened out. Stan, too, didn't give a good care at any time about the right halfback situation at Notre Dame as long as he still was curving those belts off the fairway.

At the last notification, Stan not only had his tee shots cleared up, but he was playing a very solid tailback for Holy Cross. Leahy, meanwhile, had dried the tears over his right halfback situation and groomed a lad named Kelly for the Koslowski chores.

The Rhode Island boy went to Notre Dame under a Navy classification and his transfer application for somewhere nearer home finally sent him to Holy Cross.

He's been the spark and the liver and lights of the Holy Cross team this fall and one can but imagine how well he would have fitted in with the Notre Dame eleven this season had he not been dissatisfied with those tee shots.

Wright TKO's D.C.'s Billy Banks In Philly Fight

Philadelphia, Nov. 8 (AP).—Ike Williams, lightweight contender from Trenton, N. J., ran his victory string to 35 in a row tonight by knocking out Johnny Hutchison, veteran Philadelphian, in 24 seconds of the third round before 8000 at the arena.

Williams, who weighed 135½, floored Hutchinson, 2 pounds heavier, three times in the second round, closing his left eye. A barrage of lefts and rights caught the Philadelphian before he left his corner in the third and he was counted out on his knees.

In another scheduled 10-rounder former Featherweight Champion Chalky Wright of Los Angeles was awarded a technical knockout over Billy Banks of Washington at the end of five slow rounds. Wright weighed 131¼, Banks 133½.

Army Squad Practice Ended by Hard Rain

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 8 (AP).—Rain drove the Army football team indoors today as they started practice for the Sampson Naval Training team Saturday. The drill consisted of limbering up exercises and in tossing short forward passes. The squad came out of the Notre Dame game without serious injury.

Yale Works Out For Princeton Game

New Haven, Nov. 8 (AP).—Yale worked out in the rain today preparing for Saturday's Princeton scrap. The linemen limbered up on pass and punt defense while the backfield men brushed up on signal calling and downfield blocking.

Pimlico Handle Increases Over '42

Annapolis, Nov. 8 (AP).—The average handle at the Pimlico race track for each day of the first two-thirds of the 30-day meeting amounted to $824,190, or $293,644 more than the average for the corresponding days of 1943, Governor O'Conor disclosed today.

The total amount bet over the 20-day period was $16,443,296, O'Conor stated, and breakage during the same length of time totaled $141,832.

Wes McDonald Had a Horse

Nag Bought as Favor Garners $1930 for His Startled Owner

Flying Duke, the ugly duckling of race horses, is now definitely the magnificent swan to Wesley E. McDonald, secretary to Senator Robert Reynolds (Democrat) of North Carolina, his owner, after what happened during the past two weeks.

McDonald bought the ancient bangtail from a friend who was in need of $500, figuring, if the worst came to the worst, there might be that much horse steak available

The horse was at Laurel and when the other kings of the turf were moved to Pimlico, Flying Duke, whose wings were believed clipped by Father Time, was left behind.

McDonald ,who had bought his own white and green colors for his one and only race horse, protested to his trainer, and then one bright evening saw that his horse, unknown to him, had been entered in a claiming race at Pimlico.

After sleepless hours thinking of his own horse and own colors on the historic Pimlico track, McDonald dozed off, only to dream of dropping nickels in pay phones and have torrents of dimes gush forth.

That was too much for him.

The next day he went to Pimlico heard the trainer of the horse advise him the animal was not much good and had not run for seven weeks and besides, his legs were not so good. Yet, the horse needed a race, possibly for the benefit of his ego.

Flying Duke came in first paying 90 to 1, and taking an $850 purse to boot.

"But," wailed McDonald, "he did not carry my colors for some reason I do not know. He came in third in another race last Saturday and still did not have my colors."

McDonald still could console himself with that $1930 the ancient creature brought him on his first race.

Turner Fails To Ask Lighter Suspension

Promoter Joe Turner made no appearance at the District Boxing Commission's weekly meeting yesterday to appeal his one-month suspension handed down last week.

Informally, Turner had asked the commission to shorten the suspension meted out to him as a commission rebuke for his failure to incorporate in the contract the forfeit agreement in the recent John Garner-Tee Hubert bout.

The Commission approved the Herbert Marshall-Joe Baksi heavyweight fight scheduled at Uline's Arena on November 19 by Promoter Goldie Ahearn.

Ahearn continued his efforts to obtain Monday night fight dates at Uline's and petitioned the Commission for two Monday night dates per month. His appeal was tabled with the commission ruling that "it is in no hurry to act."

Turner's Arena thus will remain idle until his suspension expires on December 2, although Ahearn is planning a second fight at Uline's before the month is out.

Ahearn is now bidding for a return match between Lew Hanbury and Jackie Wilson which produced one of the outdoor season's better fights at Griffith Stadium. Hanbury lost that one when he was outboxed by the clever Wilson who won on a technical knockout after badly gashing Hanbury's left eye.

La Chapelle Signs For Kulkovich Match on Friday

Maurice LaChapelle, the Flying Frenchman, has been signed to meet Henry Kulkovich, the Mad Russian, in the 30-minute semi-windup match on the glamour girl vs. cowgirl card at Turner's Arena Friday night.

Feature is between Elvira Snodgrass, who used to yodel through her bouts in hillbilly guise, and Rose Ellers, the Texas cowgirl. Elvira is a reformed hillbilly, however. She's been to Hollywood and worked in a couple of movie shorts and now is all glamour and a yard wide. But Rose still has the touch of Texas in her walk and will endeavor to put a touch of Texas across the glamourized puss and dyed hair of our Elviry.

Promoter Joe Turner shifted the match from the regular Wednesday offering date to Friday because he was able to book the feminine clawfest on that night.

Special added attraction—that's what the man said—will be between Babe Sharkey, another transplanted Texan, and one of the mat's many masked characters, the Black Mask in this case. The hooded newcomer to Arnica Hall recently defeated one of his better cowled compatriots, the Red Czar, in a fall to a finish match in Philadelphia.

Penns Men Get Day Off

Philadelphia, Nov. 8 (AP).—Penn gridders got the day off today. Coach George Munger told his first stringers "We still have a good team and we can bound back against North Carolina just as Navy did against us after their game with Notre Dame."

Navy, Facing Lions, Points Toward Army

Annapolis, Nov. 8 (AP).—Only Columbia Lou Little's Lions remained in the Path of Navy's Football team today before the tars tackle the Army at West Point in the ainnual fall classic in November 27.

With an emphatic 24-7 win over the previously undefeated University of Pennsylvania on Saturday Navy returned to the national pigskin picture and entertained hopes of entering the West Point stadium with a record of seven wins and one loss.

All hands reported for practice at the Academy in a regular Monday afternoon workout but scrimmages were light until the Middies have had a chance to see movies of the Penn game tonight.

Columbia is not expected to be any challenge to the future admirals since the Lions have been pushed around freely throughout the season by Eastern teams far below the caliber of Navy.

Similarly, Army does not figure on much opposition from Sampson Naval Training Station and Brown University in the next two weekends and the Cadets probably will go into the Navy clash with one tie and one defeat to mar their season's record.

Notre Dame has proved to be the nemesis of both service elevens—having sunk the Navy 33-6 and Army, 26-0.

If any comparison, however, can be drawn between the two squads, Navy is the slight favorite off its win over Penn. Army was forced to a tie with the Quakers, 13-13, but was hampered in its attack by a wind-driven rain across Franklin Field, Philadelphia, at the time.

Both teams sport a large number of pigskin toters with Army's Doug Kenna, Glenn Davis and George Maxon and Navy's Hal Hamberg, Bob Jenkins and Vic Finos heading the list of ball carriers. The lines, Navy coaches indicated today, will probably rate a toss-up as to superiority.

Lynn Waldorf's Contract Renewed At Northwestern

Evanston, Ill., Nov. 8 (AP).—Lynn Waldorf's contract as head football coach at Northwestern University, which expires August 31, 1944, was renewed today for three more years, Franklin B. Snyder, Northwestern president, said.

The contract of Wesley Fry, assistant coach, also was renewed, but for a two-year period. Under the terms of the new contracts, the primary responsibility of both Waldorf and Fry will be to coach football, but they also will carry a full program of work in the physical education department and will assist in the physical fitness program for 1200 Naval V-12 trainees.

Coming to Northwestern in 1935, Waldorf has the longest tenure of service of any Wildcat grid coach.

Bierman Guest Of Touchdowners At Lunch Today

Another nationally celebrated sports booster will address the weekly luncheon of The Luncheon Club at 12:30 p. m. today, when Col. Bernie Bierman of the United States Marines takes over.

Overflow crowds recently were present when Lieut. Comdr. Jack Dempsey of the United States Coast Guard and Father E. J. Flanagan of Boys Town, Nebr., appeared before The Touchdowners. Another capacity audience will be present today.

Colonel Bierman, best known for the great teams and players he turned out for the University of Minnesota, also coached football at Tulane University. Last year he directed the Iowa Seahawks, one of the best service teams of the present war.

Joe Baksi Signed To Fight Marshall At Uline's Nov. 19

Joe Baksi, the sensational young Wilkes-Barre (Pa.) heavyweight with a kick in both hands, last night had been signed to box Herbert Marshall, hard punching Brooklyn Negro, in the 10-round feature of the Liberty Athletic Club's show at Uline Arena November 19.

Baksi defeated Gus Dorazio his last time out locally. Other D. C. triumphs include knockouts of Georgie Parks and Jabbo Kenner and a decision over Jimmy DeChard. Recently Baksi won handily over the highly regarded Johnny Shkor in Baltimore, and boasts one of the best records among the heavies.

Iron Shot Wins Big Manly Steeplechase

Alsab Takes Discovery Purse Race

By Walter Haight

Pimlico, Md., Nov. 8.—By the narrow margin of a neck and in a driving finish, Miss Ella Widener's Iron Shot won a thrilling renewal of the $7500 added Manley Steeplechase Handicap this rainy afternoon. Carrying the longest odds in a field of six, Iron Shot showed a distinct liking for the soggy going and defeated the Rokeby Stable's Caddie. In third position and some eight lengths behind the battle for first money came W. H. Lipscomb's Mercator, coupled with a dull-performing Rouge Dragon as the favorite.

Iron Shot, a son of Chance Shot and beaten by practically every horse in the field, paid a $27.50 mutuel. He was strongly handled by Jockey Norman Brown and was clocked in 5:09 3-5 for the struggle over 18 fences. The race was worth $6475 to the winner.

Iron Shot Always Close

Mercator set the early pace, but Iron Shot was always closest, and when the pacemaker lost ground at the turns, Iron Shot forged to the front. He had to stave off a challenge of Uncle Seaweed and then opened what appeared to be a safe lead. However, Caddie, a trailer while under restraint, came from last position with a rush to catch Iron Shot at the eighteenth fence. In the battle to the wire on the flat, Iron Shot hung on with rare courage to hold his rival safe.

Alsab won his first race of the year in the Discovery Purse, the closing event. The 1942 sensation, apparently recovered from leg trouble, won by three lengths in convincing fashion and appears headed for favoritism in the $15,000 added Bryan and O'Hara Handicap this weekend. Jockey George Woolf rode the Sabath color bearer and he laced Alsab to a drive in midstretch that carried him to the front. The son of Good Goods won with speed in reserve. Abrasion was second and Rascal was third. The winner paid $6.60 mainly because he ran a disgraceful last in recent sprints over this track.

Twilight Tear Wins Carvel Hall

In the best flat-race offering, the $5000 added Carvel Hall for 2-year-old fillies, the Calumet Farm dominated the running. Twilight Tear, handled by Jockey B. Thompson, was an easy winner, while Miss Keeneland, the other half of the entry, was second, and under a strong grip of Jockey F. A. Smith. The beaten-off third in the field of five was the Cedar Farm's Red Wonder. The winning entry paid a $3 mutuel and was clocked in 1:47 2-5 for the mile and 70 yards.

By winning the Riggs Handicap with Sun Again, the Calumet Farm ran its winnings for 1943 to $258,815 . . . This is about $25,000 more than Greentree Stable and just about clinches the money-earned title . . . . There is a report here that Bones Ingersoll, jockey agent at one time for Don Meade, Johnny Gilbert and others, has been decorated for bravery overseas . . . The Maryland racing writers will hold their annual dinner Wednesday night at the Lord Baltimore Hotel . . . By closing ground in the Riggs, T. D. Buhl's Sweep Swinger has earned a starting chance in the $7500 added Grayson Stakes at a mile and a half on Wednesday . . . Other distance horses expected to contest are Grey Wing, Incoming, Croyden, Dove Pie and Lord Calvert . . . Shut Out is through for the year, according to Trainer Johnny Gaver and will be shipped along with the other Greentree horses to Aiken, S. C., for the winter . . . Marlboro should have a big meeting . . . The Rockingham track will be the only opposition in the East . . . The stewards must be watching racing here through rose-colored binoculars . . . I wonder if they ever heard of eliminating a horse by the simple method of shutting him off leaving the gate . . . This is being done regularly by the local jock's room click. And where are the angry voices that once rose about Charles Town and Hagerstown?

CIVILIAN AWARDS

Testimony to the effect that the stimulus of the Army-Navy "E" and the Maritime "M" production awards has been very great constantly is accumulating. Both management and labor on the home front have been helped to even greater efforts and results by these recognitions of unselfish devotion to the great task of turning out the vital materials of war. Now both directors and workers in a category other than those previously recognized are to receive an achievement award for work well done. These are the seasonal processors of food. The fact that they are not year-round operators makes them ineligible for Army-Navy "E" recognition. But if they meet the same high standards demanded for that badge of honor they are to receive the award of the War Food Administration's "A" flag. Qualifications considered in selection for the award will include ingenuity in the development of war food products, low absenteeism, cooperation in the various food purchase programs, accident prevention and the like.

A number of vital factors on the home front still lack recognition in the form of public awards. The power and utility companies, the communications companies, and even the enormously busy railroads do not fall within the technical requirements for existing awards. There would seem to be little reason why the powerful incentive which existing awards for merit have supplied should not be extended to such fundamentally important elements as the electric light and power industry, which has shown an increase of 73 per cent in its kilowatt hour output since 1939; or the telephone industry, which last year handled 93 per cent more long-distance calls than in 1939; or the American railroads, which in 1942 increased the ton miles moved as compared with 1939 by 92 per cent and the passenger miles by 135 per cent in the same period. The service industries have done and are doing an outstanding war job. They, too, deserve an accolade.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Eastman Orders Yule Leaves Restricted

Defense Transportation Czar Joseph B. Eastman yesterday ordered Federal agencies (1) not to grant annual leave to employes from December 17 to January 10 except in cases of extreme personal emergency; (2) to curtail business travel during the holiday period and to avoid the calling of meetings that involve travel, and (3) to refuse requests for Government officials to speak at conventions that involve travel. Business as well as the Federal government was urged by Eastman to hold down travel during the holiday season. Heavy nonessential travel, he said, would interfere with military and essential business transportation. Eastman's order will have the effect of canceling annual leave for Federal workers during the three-week period except for employes who won't use public transportation. The order was predicted exclusively here yesterday.

KLUTTZ

Employes at the Bureau of Internal Revenue are getting a big kick out of this story. It seems a little boy wanted $100 very badly so he decided to pray to God for it. He prayed for several weeks, still no $100, so he wrote a letter to God. The post office, not knowing where to send the letter, finally decided to forward it to the White House. Eventually it was shown to President Roosevelt who chuckled and ordered $5 sent to the boy. The lad was delighted that his earnest prayers had been answered, in part at least, so he wrote a thank-you to God, but added this P.S.: "I noticed you routed your letter through Washington, and as usual those bureaucrats deducted 95 per cent."

Leland Resigns

Bob Leland, one of the able OPA lawyers who helped draft the price law, has resigned to join Oscar Cox at Foreign Economic Administration . . . Insiders say the President decided against the joint recommendation of Assistant President Byrnes and Economic Boss Vinson for the first time when he allowed Interior Secretary Ickes to negotiate a contract with John L. Lewis' miners. They recommended either Gerald Reilly, National Labor Relations Board member, or Judge J. Warren Madden, former NLRB chairman, for the tough assignment. Some people believe Ickes may have to walk the plank for his part in the contract that blasts the hold-the-line order. . . .

Foreign Economic Administrator Leo Crowley is trying to wangle a building to put all his widely scattered activities. And he's shooting high. It's reported he's after the new War Department Building on Virginia ave. The Corps of Engineers now occupies the handsome new structure as well as temporaries F, G and Y on 22d st. The point is made that there's enough room in the Pentagon for that part of the corps now in the new War Building. This is a matter that can be settled by the President, and there's good reason to believe that he'll be called on to make the decision. FEA is finding it very difficult to shake down the work of the dozen offices under it with them scattered all over the city.

Lehman, Too

Governor Lehman also is looking for a building here to house the United Nations Relief organization which he expects to head. Some of his people have looked twice at the new War Building. Meantime, plenty of offices are being moved. Nelson Rockefeller is moving most of his people from the Commerce Building to the Walker Building on 15th st. Solid Fuels moved from the Walker Building to New Interior. War Shipping is getting the Rockefeller space in Commerce. FEA has taken over the large building at 1436 U st. which has been vacant for several months. It will use it for supplies and distribution. Office of Strategic Services and Navy's Bureau of Medicine and Surgery have divided up the space vacated by the War Department in the old Corcoran Courts apartment house on 22d st. Federal employment here has steadily declined but the space situation seems to be as acute as ever.

Group Health Association, the cooperative medical organization of Federal workers, may stop taking new members. The possibility is fast being brought to a head by the race question. The question of admitting Negroes into a GHA has been under discussion and the advisory committee voted to accept them. This action was followed up by a decision by the board of trustees to the effect that the shorage of doctors would prevent GHA from accepting Negroes. I's said that GHA has 9000 participants—members and their families—and nine doctors, but that two of the doctors may soon enter the military. Several, it's reported, threatened to quit if Negroes were admited.

Anyhow, the pro-Negro bloc seized on the doctor shortage claim to demand that all future applications be turned down. They argue that if doctors are so scarce then no one should be admitted, regardless of race. If two of the doctors are called up GHA might resolve its difficulties by closing the membership for a while.

PUC Orders Reduction In Gas Rates

An order to reduce gas rates and to subtract $135,417.91 from gross revenues of the Washington Gas Light Co. for the year beginning September 1, 1943, was issued yesterday by the Public Utilities Commission.

However, the order will not be effective until November 18, and during that time the company is expected to appeal to PUC for reconsideration.

In announcing the order, PUC accepted schedules it had asked the company to prepare. These schedules reduce the revenues $132,896. PUC Chairman James H. Flanagan said the balance of $2521 would "be applied to any rate change made in the following year."

Rates under the new schedules would amount to a reduction of $115,040 to household consumers, about 5 cents a month to the average bill payer. Commercial and industrial service rates would be reduced $15,819; wholesale apartment house service, $1983; and seasonal off-peak services, $54.

Such changes will bring most of the rates down to a parity with or lower than the rate year beginning September 1, 1941, eliminating most of the increases prescribed beginning September 1, 1942.

The reduction, Chairman Flanagan said, was being ordered on the basis of results of operation for the last test year, covering the period July 1, 1942, to June 30, 1943.

Cost of Capital Stressed

Chairman Flanagan said considerable stress in determining the rate of return was placed upon the cost of capital to the company, and that he believed the decision unique because it includes in its consideration of cost of capital to the company the allowable return on common stock equity.

The composite annual cost of all capital was found to be 5.8 per cent, he said, and the commission, in computing, determined 9 per cent to be a fair and reasonable allowance on common stock equity.

All taxes except excess profits taxes were allowed as deductions from operating expenses for rate making purposes, according to Flanagan.

He said that last year the commission allowed only income taxes calculated at the rate of 31 per cent, but that at that time the rate of return was not at issue.

Hankin Issues Opinion

Gregory Hankin, member of the three-man commission, issued a 78-page opinion, concurring in part and dissenting in part.

He said the rate of return should be 5.25 per cent rather than 5.75 per cent, and said his computations indicated a reduction in gross revenue by $135,416.91 actually meant 7.2 per cent return to the company.

He said that by allowing the company to shift almost all its income taxes to consumers, PUC would place Congres in the position of exempting the company from income taxes.

He further deplored the vacancy of the post of District People's Counsel, thus leaving citizens unrepresented in the hearings. He said the "public, by statute, was supposed to be represented by a People's Counsel."

Review Is Granted

A review of the Office of Price Administration case against the Washington Gas Light Co. $200,000 yearly rate increase was granted by the United States Supreme Court, which has been asked to decide whether public utility rates come under the Economic Stabilization Act.

The increase was denied by the District Court here, whose decision was reversed by the United States Court of Appeals which held that Congress, in passing the wartime antiinflation measures, did not intend to put strict control on public utilities.

The increase was granted by the Public Utilities Commission under the sliding scale agreement which gave consideration to wartime factors such as wage increases. PUC stated a rise in revenue was necessary for effective operation of the company.

Solicitor General Charles Fahy, of the Justice Department, in petitioning for the Supreme Court review, stated that the gas company already was earning a net of 5 per cent a year. He argued effective stabilization is possible only if all increases in utility rates, as well as prices and wages, are denied unless the increases are shown to be absolutely necessary.

The increase involved is for the current rate year and went into effect on November 16, 1942.

Police Probe Two Robberies

Police received reports of two robberies yesterday. Frances Mulligan, a clerk at the Aristo Cleaners at 1611 Montello ave. ne., reported the cleaning establishment was entered early yesterday and a total of approximately $100 in cash was taken.

A total of $1500 in war bonds was reported taken yesterday from a strong box in the pantry of the residence of Audrey Anderson at 1704 16th st. se., police said.

A. J. Howard Named Aide to U. S. Attorney

Andrew J. Howard, 45, Negro of 35 Q st ne., was appointed yesterday an assistant to United States Attorney Edward M. Curran in Municipal Court.

Howard has been in private law practice here since he graduated from Howard Law School in 1930. He was born in Alcorn, Miss., is married and has four sons, two of them in the armed forces.

For Xanten

Bringing In Leaves, Blues Song

As far as the trees are concerned leaf season is about over, but as far as the city refuse department is concerned, the halfway mark has just been reached.

"The trees grow bigger every year," W. A. Xanten, superintendent of city refuse, said with a sigh yesterday.

The District streets become more numerous every year, too, he acknowledged.

The District's refuse department has a manpower shortage, but notwithstanding is doing its best, he maintained.

Very few District sewers have been stopped up by the demise of autumn colors, and diligence on the part of refuse workers has kept any real damage from being done, according to Xanten.

Ordinary clearance of refuse from the streets takes about 80 trucks daily. Now the department is filling more than 200 a day, and any person or institution wanting a truckload or more for compost may have it by asking. In fact, in a few months the refuse department will add a truckload of ashes to the leaves, also gratis, according to assurances given yesterday.

To date, about 3000 loads of leaves have been cleared, and Xanten asks citizens to be patient as the work goes on. Streets usually cleaned weekly now may not be reached for a month, he pointed out. Crews of garbage collectors, trash collectors and alley cleaners are operating with skeleton staffs now, and none can be diverted to the seasonal job. Extra workers are not available.

"We're doing the best we can to clean the streets as often as we can," Xanten concluded. Leaves that rustle in streets can make up their minds to that.

Busy Time On Hill Awaits McCarran

By Anne Hagner

When Chairman McCarran of the Senate District Committee returns to the Capital around November 20 from an extended Western tour, he will find waiting for him an imposing list of District legislative headaches . . . if he permits himself to think of them.

The committee, which has been resting almost dormant since its head departed for a series of hearings across the country, is due to be roused from its lethargy by the impact of a full committee meeting, first to be called since last spring.

Home-Rule Problem

When McCarran manages to get squared away on the immediate problems on his desk, he is expected to attack the District calendar and attempt to settle as many matters as possible, thus clearing the way for the forthcoming wrangle over his own home-rule bill and a resolution introduced by Senator Holman, granting the District a charter commission. Although approvals and objections by civic groups have rained upon both measures ever since their proposal several weeks ago, the wrangle will not proceed officially until November 30, when hearings commence on both.

A hearing date may be set almost immediately on the "baby broker" bill, passed by the House in June to regulate the placing of children in family homes and require licensing of child placing agencies. Board of Public Welfare heads and other social agencies already have indicated their eagerness for passage of the bill, with a number of recent cases of babies being bought and sold cited.

A report from a subcommittee appointed to hold hearings on two local insurance bills regulating rates is expected as soon as McCarran returns. The subcommittee is headed by Senator Burton of Ohio, with Senators Bushfield of South Dakota and Buck of Delaware as members.

Kilgore's Bill

Senator Kilgore (Democrat) of West Virginia probably will appear on behalf of a bill he introduced last March for the relief of the heirs of Henry I. Brown, upon which there was an adverse report in May from the Commissioners.

Reports also are expected from the McCarran subcommittee granting District public school teachers the right to return to their jobs after they have received leaves of absence to join the armed forces; and on a bill establishing a sanitary code for restaurants. Senator Overton (Democrat) of Louisiana is chairman of the subcommittee for the latter bill, for which hearings were held late in September.

Court Clears 2 Jehovah's Witnesses

The United States Court of Appeals reversed itself yesterday to give more protection than ever to freedom of speech, press and religion, acting under authority granted recently by Supreme Court decisions. The significance of the reversal was greater than the small amount of money involved—two $5 fines paid by two Jehovah's Witnesses three years ago.

David Busey and Orville J. Richie, who paid the fines, spent a hundred times that amount to win back their basic right to be unhindered in informing others of their religious convictions. Once their case was carried to the highest court in the land.

The fines also caused the District Commissioners to change a licensing regulation this year so that religious organizations no longer need pay licensing fees to sell what the courts call "religious propaganda." So today the many persons on Washington's streets selling the Watch Tower, Consolation and many other booklets and magazines are no longer hauled into court for doing so.

Sold to Government Witnesses

The case began when Busey and Richie sold copies of the magazine to a Government witness. The testimony was that the salesmen were motivated purely by religious motives and received no profit.

Upon their conviction, the case rose to the United States Court of Appeals, which held that the 1940 statute licensing religious sales was valid. The Supreme Court upheld the convictions, with the Chief Justice and three Associate Justices dissenting. In February, however, with changes in the court's membership, the court granted certiorari, and remanded the case for review.

Justice Henry W. Edgerton, in the Appeals Court decision, writes:

"Freedom of speech, press and religion are entitled to a 'preferred scheme of ordered liberty.' They are essential not only to the persons or groups directly concerned, but to the entire community. Our whole political and social system depends on them. Any interference with them is not only an abuse but an obstacle to the correction of other abuses. Because they are essential, the guarantees of free speech, press and religion in the First Amendment, though not all constitutional guarantees, are within the 'liberty' which is protected by the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment."

Fee to Cover Cost Held Legal

The Appeals Court held that, if it should be shown that the licensing fee of $1 a month required under the 1940 regulations merely covered cost of regulation, it would uphold the conviction.

"We think we may now hold that when legislation appears on its face to affect the use of speech, press or religion, and when its validity depends upon the existence of facts which are not proved, their existence should not be presumed. . . . The burden of proof in such a case should be upon those who deny that these freedoms are invanded."

In concluding, the court states: "There is no evidence and no clear probability that the District of Columbia licensing fee does not exceed the cost of policing these sales. No presumption which lacks a probability basis in fact should be permitted to conceal an interference with essential freedoms.

Father Draft Gets 32 Since Saturday From Nearby Area

Thirty-two pre-Pearl Harbor fathers have been inducted into the Army by draft boards in adjacent Virginia and Maryland counties since last Saturday, it was learned yesterday, as Washington Selective Service officials revealed that they could meet November quotas without drafting fathers but could make "no promises for December." Eleven reported to Baltimore yesterday from Bethesda.

The only pre-Pearl Harbor fathers drafted in the District so far are those who failed to get out of nondeferable occupations by the October 1 deadline, District officials said. Forty-five additional fathers who volunteered were inducted during October, Selective Service officials did not know how many had been inducted previously.

Sufficient single men and married men without children will be available to fill the District's November quota, William E. Leahy, District Selective Service director, said yesterday.

Boards which drafted the 32 fathers are in Montgomery County, Md., where Chevy Chase-Bethesda Board No. 3 sent 11 fathers and 20 nonfathers to Baltimore yesterday for induction; in Arlington County, Va., where Board No. 2 inducted 20 fathers last Saturday, and Alexandria, Va., where it was reported that one father had been drafted yesterday. In the absence of the draft board chairman, officials would make no statement on the latter induction, however.

Board No. 2 at Silver Spring, Md., will send out induction notices to 61 men next Monday, but board officials would not say whether any of the 61 were fathers. Board No. 1 at Rockville said no fathers would be inducted in November, but that there was a possibility of some being called in December.

Following is a list of the fathers sent to Baltimore for induction by Chevy Chase-Bethesda Board 2:

Fathers Inducted

Bernard L. Fuguitt, 2151 Old Georgetown rd., Bethesda; Thomas F. Wyatt, 113 Southbrook lane, Bethesda; Michael D. Brooks, 4707 Dalton rd., Chevy Chase; William H. Shuff, Cabin John; Harry Bartz, 9008 Mohawk lane, Bethesda; Charles M. Schwab, 7117 Denton rd., Bethesda; Charles R. Moran, RFD, Bethesda; Edward P. Barker, 5200 Glenwood rd., Bethesda; Charles E. Jackson, Boulevard Heights, and Lawrence S. Holifield, RFD, Bethesda.

The following who were employed in the Bethesda area were transferred to their homes for induction: Wilmer J. Bradley, to Youngstown, Ohio; Charles C. Bogard, to Arlington, Va.; Cornelius H. Cohen, to Atlanta, Ga.; Alva G. Erwin, to Denver, Colo., and Charles S. Bernard, to Washington, D. C.

Maryland and Virginia officials announced yesterday that 363 fathers were inducted in the two States in October. A breakdown of the figures were given as follows:

Virginia fathers: 152 white; 66 Negroes.

Maryland fathers: 103 white; 42 Negroes.

Draft Heads to Meet

As the country's draft boards surveyed the impending need to call increased numbers of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers to meet November and December quotas, National Selective Service headquarters announced that State Directors and regional field officers would meet here Thursday.

It will be their first joint meeting since the draft of prewar fathers began last month. Twenty regional officers, who convened here yesterday, will be at national headquarters when the 53 State directors open their three-day meeting November 11 to discuss Selective Service operations.

Zero Strafer

D. C. Marine Pilot 1st Ace In Squadron

LIEUT. JENSEN

Second Lieut. Alvin J. Jensen, 23, of 1236 11th st. nw., is the first Marine Corps pilot of his New Georgia Island squadron in the South Pacific to become an accredited ace, following the downing of six Zeros since April 5, a dispatch from Sergt. Pen T. Johnson, combat correspondent, revealed yesterday.

It was while strafing Kihili air field, a Japanese base on the southern end of Bougainville, however, that Lieutenant Jensen, who was commissioned from staff sergeant May, 1943, proved to his comrades he had the stuff that makes a great air fighter.

Jensen, separated from his squadron in a "thunderhead," found himself alone a few miles from Kihili. He went on in with his Corsair at tree-top level to set fire to two large bombers parked in a group of 12.

Guns blazing, Jensen saw startled heads of Nip pilots pop out of cockpits as he roared across the field. His tracers struck home, killing two pilots, and setting fire to two Zeros.

He made another run over the field, this time hitting every plane on the ground. Then he "scrammed" for home, looking back once to see two sky-towering pillars of smoke above Kihili.

Lieutenant Jensen enlisted in the Marine Corps in May, 1940, and earned his wings in August, 1942.

Grand Jury Indicts Mergner On 1st Degree Murder Charge

The District grand jury charged first degree murder, punishable by electrocution, in an indictment against Fred C. Mergner, 45, accused of the street-corner slaying of red-haired Mrs. Charlotte W. Robinson, 30.

The motive for the shooting of Mrs. Robinson was jealousy, according to police, who said Mergner admitted slaying her after she refused to return to live with him. Mrs. Robinson was found beside a sewer top at 7th and A sts. ne. She died shortly after being taken to a hospital.

Relatively Poor

Mergner, who resided at 3328 University pl. nw., was relatively poor, although his five children had a $590,000 trust fund which the former bakery employe could not touch. Mrs. Mergner died in 1939 after an abortion. Mrs. Robinson, a stenographer, resided at 325 East Capitol st.

In another indictment, five Negroes were charged with operating a lottery in the House Office Building, but the information filed with the court did not show that Congressmen played the numbers and race-track rackets with them. Those indicted were Bruce C. Reid, 41, of 221 F st. nw.; Thomas L. Robinson, 38, of 2012 13th st. nw.; Louis Hall, 53, of 1905 19th st. nw., Frances E. Tyer, 31, of 225 Virginia ave. se., and Preston Green, 72, of 801 P st. nw. All were Capitol employes.

Total of 44 True Bills

A total of 44 indictments was returned before Justice Edward C. Eicher in Municipal Court.

The others follow:

Mary Haworth's Mail

Home for First Visit After Month in the Army, Boy Calmly Tells Fiancee He Doesn't Want to Be Engaged to Her Any Longer; She Is Heartbroken

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been engaged to my boy friend for three years. He just entered the Army last month. Before he went away, it was understood that we would wait until after the war to be married, because we are so young. Sam is 20 and I am just 18. After he finished his "boot training," he came home for a 10-days' furlough. While he was home, he came to see me every night. But on the night before he was to return to camp, he calmly announced that he didn't want to continue being engaged to me. Naturally, I did not know what to say.

He gave no reason whatsoever. He told me he was not in love with any other girl and never could be. We are both of the same religion, so that isn't it. I live in Washington and he lives in Virginia, and I have visited his parents a number of times, and I know they are very fond of me. In fact, his mother was very upset when he told her this latest news; because she had been quite pleased when Sam selected me to be her future daughter-in-law. I have been staying awake nights trying to figure out the reason for his change, but I can't seem to think clearly on the subject.

He has written me since he returned to camp; but his letters are just formally friendly. I have answered them, asking for an explanation of his actions; but I get no answer to that question. I am just broken hearted over his attitude, because I know he is the only boy for me. Will you please try to help me in this situation? I am just about at my wits' end.

R. W. D.

Boy Shows Courage In Speaking Plainly

DEAR R. W. D.: In order to help you in this situation, one must give you some understanding of what is going on, so that you can make a philosophic adjustment to the turn of events, and begin to see daylight by realizing that your present heartache is only a kind of "growing pain." You have been engaged to Sam for three years. That means he took the pledge when 17;—in other words, at an age when he was too much of a kid to know what he would want in life, or in the way of a wife, when he was old enough to make the final choice. But now, at the age of 20, when he is in the Army and up against some of the sterner realities, he is maturing fast, psychologically speaking,—doing a lot of growing overnight, as it were,—and one of the first major conclusions he has arrived at, in process of falling on his feet as a man, is that he has definitely outgrown his yesteryear school boy crush on you.

IN MY OPINION, it is definitely to Sam's credit that he owns the decisiveness of character and the courage to "just calmly announce that he doesn't want to continue being engaged." It took real strength,—the strength of a man,—to face up to this painful issue so squarely; and with complete finality put you wise to the fact that the romance is over and done with, for him. It is not uncommon for the weakling male personality to "pick a fight" with a girl he has ceased to care for; and then fling off with a hypocritical show of hurt feelings, using that as his excuse for ending the relationship. Still another weakling technique is simply to drop the girl without any warning, and leave her eating her heart out with baffled anxiety. And still another,—to try easing himself off by the two-timing route, deliberately creating a rift by indulging himself in other fickle fancies, counting on her jealous anger or pride to cut him adrift when she learns of the deal she is getting.

Growth Oft Forces Change of Heart

WE OFTEN hear the term, "finding oneself." In order to find oneself, it is usually necessary to have an experience at living that takes one completely apart from, and leaves one temporarily independent of, lifelong family ties and old familiar associates. This experience of being transplanted at a distance, in a new environment among strangers, gives the individual a fresh look at life, along with his first big chance to test his independent judgment and preferences; enables him to lay aside the fetters of habit, in regard to his comings and goings; and, if he is free of neurotic sentimentality, allows him to gauge with honest objectivity the importance or value (if any) to himself, in an emotional sense, of his former close companions. Ordinarily, American youth has been given this opportunity in greatest measure through the experience of "going away to college;" although many youngsters without the means to attend college have claimed it by taking jobs some distance from home after leaving high school. And almost invariably, the "change of air" brings a change in the individual, through opening his eyes to the possibility of more desirable goals in life, more compatible associates, etc., than he had dreamed of in his earlier, hemmed-in environment.

DOUBTLESS Sam was ripe for that change when he entered the Army. It caught on immediately. And, as said before, it is to his credit that he lost no time in frankly reporting back such part of the change as involved and properly concerned you. So, since he wants to be free, don't try to hold him. Let him go, with your blessing. And don't delude yourself with the vain, uncomprehending hope that he might change back again to what he was at 17. Don't deal in the thought that such regression would be to his advantage or yours. Just remember this: You are barely one year older now than he was when, at 17, he first foolishly fancied you were to be the love of his life. Two years from now,—and maybe sooner than that,—you will in all probability have changed your estimate of him as radically, through the natural process of growing up to a more adult outlook on the opposite sex.

Your Baby And Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

When the baby stands up early in life and waddles perilously about its crib or playpen, mothers are always worried that this will result in bowlegs.

Let us remember that bowlegs are the result of rickets, and rickets is a disease advertising poor or inadequate feeding and lack of vitamin D. The child with such deficiencies seldom is the one who shows much activities demanding bony strength, so he would not be the baby who lifted himself to his feet and made attempts to walk, early in life.

No matter what the baby's age, when he begins to walk around, especially on the hard floor, he needs shoes to protect his feet. The best type is a soft, high shoe, with a flexible sole and fastened firmly to the foot by lacings. He should practice his walking in a playpen or crib rather than in a riding toy, which keeps him active but does not promote his ability to practice balance and thereby learn to walk.

Mrs. A. E.: Before this letter could appear here I am sure you must have seen the article on sleeping bags as the answer to children getting uncovered at night. That is for your baby who sleeps alone. The other children who sleep together and are restless should wear footed-nighties and, if very cold, an extra heavy kimona over this. Then if the covers get kicked off, the children won't get frigid before you discover it.

Our leaflet, "Sleeping Habits," contains a description of an envelope-type sleeping bag. Send a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of The Washington Post.

They'll Take Care of Him In a Hurry, If He's Wounded

Eighty to Hundred Patients Per Day Can Be Operated on at Front, From New Surgical Truck

By Elizabeth Henney

"What will happen if my boy gets hurt?" "How soon will he get medical attention?" If you've been asking yourself that question, reassure yourself that the medical department of the Army is keeping steady pace with the advance of our forces and not only in the matter of giving that boy medical attention in a hurry. Constantly working, they are making improvements in equipment to provide quick surgical aid for more and more men at the front line.

The newest development, so new in fact, that it is still called by the Army "in the experimental stage," though old models are already being converted into this new type, is "the surgical operating truck," which is so equipped that from 80 to 100 men can be operated on right behind the front lines in a space of 24 hours.

New Inventions Eagerly Received

Though the news may not seem to be of world-shaking import, every development that gives another wounded soldier a fighting chance of recovery, is greeted by as much enthusiasm by the medical men, as it is by those who hear of it at home and think "That may bring my boy back to me."

Prior to our entrance into the war a mobile surgical-hospital unit, calculated to go to the front lines was developed. It was a very splendid affair, with a large trailer attached, and space inside to perform three operations simultaneously. The unit consisted of seven trucks. It did a very efficient job. There was only one difficulty. It was so heavy that when it got off a fine macadam road it was apt to bog down in soft earth or sand. And unfortunately, the enemy was not thoughtful enough to stay near good roads.

And so, very shortly there was developed the surgical truck, a 2½ ton model with six wheels, in which one operation can be performed, and which is still in use to follow the armored forces and tank units in their swift advances.

Surgical Operating Truck Success

However, last May when the present Surgeon General of the Army, Maj. Gen. Norman T. Kirk, made an inspection trip through the North African battle area, he came back impressed with the need to take care of more men, faster and closer to the front lines.

One of the first jobs he did, upon his appointment to the post of Surgeon General, was to get his officers working on that idea —out of which has come the new "surgical operating truck."

It looks, at first glance like the old "surgical truck," but there's a difference, and how! Instead of a wide open space in the center for an operating table, that space is utilized for the supplies for operations, sufficient to care for that 80 to 100 casualties within a 24-hour period.

Operating Crews Follow Trucks

Then, in a light trailer behind is carried a double hospital tent, interlined with white duck, for better lighting and cleanliness. Following this sturdy truck as it bounces over the hills are two jeeps full of "operating crews." These crews, two of them to each truck, consist of seven to eight people each, including doctors, nurses and hospital assistants.

We follow the truck as it chugs along, reaching either an evacuation hospital that is so overcrowded it can't handle all its casualties or perhaps a quiet nook behind a hill right up at the front lines.

The truck pulls up and stops, out pops the staff from the jeeps, and in a matter of a few minutes, presto—the white-lined tent is up, an operating table set up on each side, the truck's back door opened at one door of the tent, and from the truck with its sterilizers, cabinets, scrub sinks, etc., nurses and assistants are passing equipment to the already busy doctors, and the job of saving that boy has begun.

"Guess My Age!"

New Kind of Face Powder Makes Her Look Years Younger!

ONCE this lovely girl looked quite a bit older. Some people actually thought she was rapidly approaching middle age . . .

For she was the innocent victim of an unflattering face powder! It was such an unkind powder—treacherous and sly. It showed up every tiny line in her face—accented every little skin fault—even seemed to exaggerate the size of her pores.

But look at her now! Can you guess her age? Would you say she is 20-30-35?

Why Lady Esther Face Powder Is So Flattering

Lady Esther Face Powder is extra flattering because it's made differently. It isn't just mixed, just sifted, in the usual way. It's blown by Twin Hurricanes—blended with the speed and power of hurricanes—to look clearer, smoother and more flattering on your skin!

Because of this patented, exclusive method of hurricane blending, the texture of Lady Esther Face Powder is much smoother and finer than ordinary powder. The first touch of your puff spreads a delicate film of beauty on your skin, hiding little lines, little blemishes. And Lady Esther Face Powder clings longer, too—clings four long hours!

But the most exciting difference is in the shades. Lady Esther shades have a subtle new quality—because the color is blown in by hurricanes. Many women say that the Lady Esther shades are so fresh and alive that ordinary powder shades seem dull and drab by comparison.

Living Proof—In Your Own Mirror!

Why choose a face powder because it is expensive, or because of a clever package? Judge it only by its appearance on your skin!

Try Lady Esther Face Powder! Get the smallest size box, if you like—but try it! When you see how much smoother and younger it makes your skin look—it's time enough to get the largest and most economical size. But to prove this is the most flattering powder you have ever used, get the small-size box today!

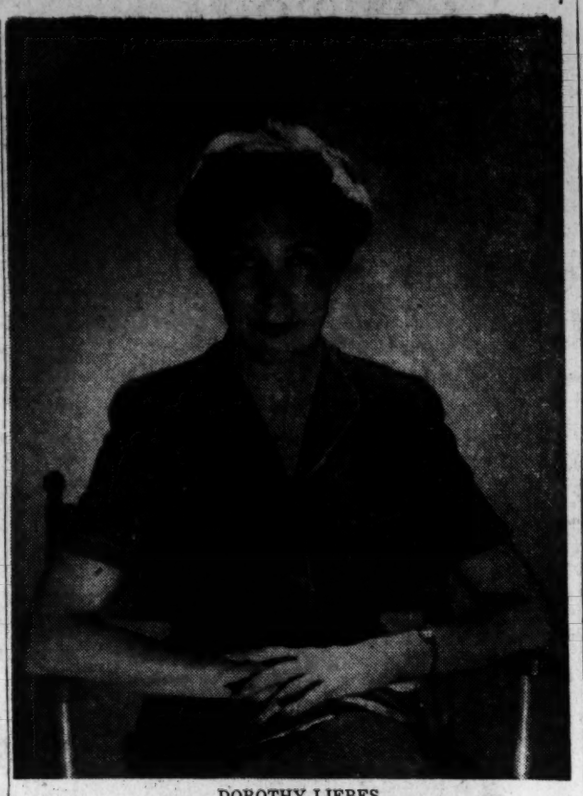
Noted Designer Tells Something of Her Wartime 'Brain Child' That Became a Red Cross Prodigy

SHE IS AN ARTIST . . . but not the type aspiring to an ivory tower. She believes the beautiful is even more so—if it is useful and ties in with everyday living. She feels that imagination coupled with systematic planning now will bring order out of a chaotic postwar world, and she is convinced that artists—particularly those who keep their feet firmly on the ground—can play an important role in that program.

She is Dorothy Liebes, internationally known textile designer, of San Francisco, who is now in the East for an extended stay. And it is to her and to Mrs. Dwight Davis and Mrs. Cass Canfield that credit should go for one of the most interesting of all rehabilitation projects for servicemen.

Of course I had heard about Mrs. Liebes long before I met her. Who hasn't? Her name and and fame hit the headlines frequently back in the days when she was touring America and 11 foreign countries on the trail of material for art exhibitions for the world's fairs in San Francisco and New York. Her textile shows have made art history for a number of years, and her name is one to conjure with in textile art circles both in America and in Europe.



DOROTHY LIEBES

BUT EVEN THOUGH I knew something of all that, I wasn't prepared to find her as inspiring and as attractive as she proved to be the other morning when I interviewed her in Mrs. Atherton Richards' apartment at the Shoreham. Tall, slim and smartly turned out, she came in with that brisk air characteristic of women who get things done; glanced at her wrist watch, and then settled down for a few moments to tell me about a brain child that turned out to be a prodigy.

The story really began when Mrs. Liebes was consulting with artists groups throughout the country relative to exhibitions for the world's fairs. Contacts she made then came to full flower in a way she had not anticipated; for after Pearl Harbor, she was besieged with queries from painters, sculptors and craftsmen—all wanting to know what they could do to aid the war effort. At the same time, Mrs. Liebes was asking herself that same question. But she is not one to waste time wondering—long. A woman of action, as well as imagination, she soon visualized a program whereby every artist in the country could have an important part in the wartime picture.

And she went further than that. Her mind's eye looked far ahead, and saw, in the work artists could do on the home front now, a definite contribution to the postwar world.

THEN TO MAKE a long story as short as possible—she joined forces with the Red Cross; or, rather, she conferred with Mrs. Dwight Davis, national director of Volunteer Special Services. In almost as little time as it takes to tell about it, the Arts and Skills Unit, functioning under the Red Cross Hospital and Recreation Corps, was established and under way. And Mrs. Cass Canfield, herself an outstanding sculptress, was in charge.

What happened then? The obvious thing. Artists all over America—about 25,000 strong—rallied to the cause and volunteered to spend several hours a week teaching crafts to the wounded in hospitals. All types of arts and skills were introduced—card weaving, fly tying, model making, pottery, bookbinding, proofreading and ever so many others. Pattern units, first established in the United States Naval Hospital, Halloran General and the United States Army station hospitals in New York and at Letterman Hospital in San Francisco, proved their worth in an amazingly short time.

In the enlistment and selection of artists, the San Francisco Museum, the Chicago Art Institute, and the Museum of Modern Art in New York were of great help. More recently the Brooklyn Museum and the Metropolitan Museum have been brought into the cooperative plan, and more and more hospitals throughout the country have requested that arts and skills units be set up for their patients.

MRS. LIEBES is proud of her brain child. And she should be. Her blue eyes shine as she talks about arts and skills activities now being carried out all over the country. In her trips from Coast to Coast, she has seen the lame, the halt and the blind finding their way back to a life of inferest and use—through what they are learning from artists at their bedsides.

"It is a gratifying experience," she said, "but there is much more to be done in its connection. We hope, you see, to tie our program in with postwar rehabilitation."

Although she is a busy woman ("a Tillie the Toiler, if you please," she says with a twinkle) and negotiates a full-time job and several sideline activities, Mrs. Liebes is national art director for the unit she founded, and manages to give several hours daily to that work as her contribution to the war effort. Her main job is still textile designing, however, and she comes East ever so often to work near textile manufacturing centers. The latter part of this month will find her in Maine, where she will be for a month. Meanwhile, however, she has been in Washington to confer with Mrs. Canfield and Mrs. Davis about further developments in the arts and skills units. She is now in New York for a brief stay before going on to Maine . . . But wherever she is, at any time, she is devoting as much time as possible toward looking after the wartime work that is her chief interest.

'Muley Bob' Is Honored on 80th Birthday

Robert Lee Doughton, Representative from North Carolina and head of the Ways and Means Committee, has had a busy three days of it.

On Sunday the illustrious statesman celebrated his eightieth birthday. But his scores of friends and admiring colleagues on Capitol Hill found that a single day had far too few hours in which to pay him proper homage. As a result his birthday salutes began on Saturday and were concluded last night when members of the Ways and Means Committee feted the Representative at dinner.

The informal stag dinner took place at the Hotel Washington at 6:30. Present were all the members of the committee he heads, as well as Speaker Rayburn of Texas, House Majority Leader McCormick of Massachusetts and Minority Leader Martin of Massachusetts.

Party lines evaporated into thin air as guests at last night's dinner rose to offer verbal tributes to Representative Doughton who during his years in Congress has been noted for his sound judgment and discernment.

Saturday night the Representative was entertained at a dinner given by the North Carolina congressional delegation and Sunday his day was passed in receiving telegrams, gifts and letters. Included was a letter from President Roosevelt.

Norwegian Ambassador and Mme de Morgenstierne Hosts At Fete for Delegate to Rehabilitation Conference

A. Frihagen, Minister Of Reconstruction Here From London

By Marie McNair

Anders Frihagen, Norway's delegate to the United Nations' conference on relief and rehabilitation which opens tomorrow in Atlantic City, was sped happily on his way at the reception yesterday afternoon given by the Ambassador of Norway and Mme. de Morgenstierne.

Today outstanding statesmen from all over the world will meet at the White House for the signing of the pact, and this afternoon they will be on their way to the seacoast resort for a series of conferences scheduled to last well into December. Yesterday they met at one of the pleasantest parties of the season when the Ambassador and Mme. de Morgenstierne entertained several hundred guests—diplomats, officials, the service set and residential Washington—in the group.

It was nice to come in out of the rain-swept streets into this gay scene where lights glowed and flowers bloomed and gay chatter was heard on every side.

Crown Princess Martha Among the Guests

Celebrities were to be found at every step. Who were they? Well, there was Crown Princess Martha of Norway, and Jan Masaryk, Minister of Foreign Affairs of Czechoslovakia and delegate to the conference, who accompanied the Czechoslovak Ambassador and Mme. Hurban.

Mrs. Cordell Hull was there holding her own court, with congratulations on every side for her distinguished husband's work at the Moscow Conference. Viscount Halifax, British Ambassador, came and went in the rain, walking the short distance to his embassy. From the Diplomatic Corps there were also Mme. Ertegun, wife of the Turkish Ambassador; the Cuban Ambassador and Senora de Concheso, the Polish Ambassador and Mme. Ciechanoska and the Minister-Counselor of the Embassy and Mme. Kwapiszenwska.

I saw Mme. Loudon, pretty blonde wife of the Netherlands Ambassador, silhouetted in the drawing room doorway and Mme. Fotitch, wife of the Yugoslav Ambassador, at the flower decked tea table; the Chinese Ambassador, Dr. Wei Tao-ming, with Mme. Wei, in a slim tunic of gray satin and a very modern veil draped from a headdress.

Lady Bajpai In Native Sari

Also contributing pictorially to the scene was Lady Bajpai, wife of the Indian Agent General, in a dark sari of a sheer material draped over her dark hair.

The Swedish Minister and Mme. Bostrom were there and the Portuguese Minister with Mme. Bianchi and her daughter, Miss Sibila Skidelsky; and the Minister of South Africa and Mrs. Ralph W. Close were being constantly greeted with "I'm so sorry you are leaving us," for the Minister will retire from his post here with the coming of the new year.

Mrs. Stettinius an Early Arrival

Mrs. Jesse Jones, wife of the Secretary of Commerce, came early and left before the next shower. Mrs. Edward Stettinius, wife of the Acting Secretary of State, was another early arrival and also in the gathering from the State Department were Mrs. Dean Acheson, wife of the Assistant Secretary of State; Mrs. Adolf A. Berle, Jr., whose husband has the same title, arriving in the midst of a downpour.

Admiral William D. Leahy found many friends as he made his way through the drawing room suite and in one or another conversational groups were Senator Millard Tydings and Mrs. Tydings, Senator Theodore Green, Senator and Mrs. Homer Ferguson, the Minister of Iran and Mme. Shayesteh, the Minister of Iceland and Mme. Thot Thors, and the Nicaragua Ambassador, Dr. Guillermo Sevilla Sacasa.

Baron Stackelberg With Wife, There

Still others were Mrs. Ernest Draper, the Misses Patten, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Burke, Baron and Baroness Stackelberg, Mrs. Martin Vogel, Mrs. Albert Dewey Mrs. James L. Houghteling, Mrs. Albert Dewey, Lieut. George Abell, Mrs. Harry G. Meem, Mme. Lombard, Mrs. Carrere Barbour, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lippmann, Mrs. Emlen Davies and her daughter, Mrs. Burdette Fitch, Miss Beatrice Phillips, Clarence Hewes, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph S. Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Dierssen.

Club Hears Alexander On Minority Problems

By Genevieve Reynolds

The way to save democracy is to practice democracy . . . . not just retain it for a select few and exclude the minority groups.

GENEVIEVE REYNOLDS

This is the opinion of Dr. Will Alexander, vice president of the Julius Rosenwald Fund and consultant on minority problems on the War Manpower Commission.

Guest speaker at the Woman's National Democratic Club's luncheon yesterday, the fiery Southerner—he hails from South Carolina—forthrightly and in no uncertain terms assailed race discriminations. He told about the discriminations against the Spanish group in the Southwest, declared that they not only had no decent living quarters but could not get a decent meal. Even after Corregidor, many firms in the United States refused to hire Filipinos in war factories. But he said he finally peddled them around until suitable jobs were located.

Dr. Alexander attributed the Detroit riots to bad housing, race discrimination and poor transportation. However, he pointed out that since then an interracial committee composed of representative whites and Negroes had been set up to study the tension areas.

Instead of suppressing the Negro race problem, Dr. Alexander advocated facing it honestly and intelligently. He pointed out that suppression will aggravate, not help, it.

Going on record against the poll tax and for the Negro vote, he declared that it could be regulated by any test the State chooses.

For example, if its a case of literacy, well and good, but the same educational test should be applied to illiterate whites.

Quizzed at great length by the club members in a question-answer period following his speech, he was asked how to solve the question of race minorities.

To this, Dr. Alexander replied: "More freedom, not less; more education and equal job opportunities plus better living conditions."

Mrs. Norman Littell, program chairman, introduced the speaker and Mrs. Francis B. Sayre, club president, presided.

Mrs. Thomas C. Mell, national president, came from her home in Atlanta, Ga., for the meeting. . . . Headline speakers for the Women's National Press Club's luncheon meeting, 1 p. m. today, are: Henry J. Kaiser, industrial genius and one of the most discussed war personalities, and Mrs. Eugene (Agnes E.) Meyer, whose report of labor conditions at the Brewster Aeronautical Corp. led to the special congressional investigation. . . . Theater News and Gossip In and Out of the Capital

AS DAVID WARFIELD was wont to say in "The Music Master," "the earth has revolved a few times" . . . A round decade ago it was that Joel McCrea was a minor figure in the films, playing "extra" jobs, "stunting" for stars in scenes requiring expert horsemanship and pooling his wardrobe and other material resources with Charles Farrell—who hadn't got going yet, either—all to scrape together enough money to buy and stock a cattle ranch . . . Frances Dee was working on location at Fort Myer, just across the river, with Walter Huston in an RKO-Radio item called "Keep 'em Rolling" . . . By some good fortune, Joel was assigned to a picture also working on location over on the Eastern Shore of Maryland . . . So while they were both in the East, they were married, and Washington claimed an important part in the nuptials . . . Now, 10 years later, Miss Dee has subordinated the screen to domesticity and her husband, under her urging, has become one of the top-flight stars of the screen . . . But no more, for the duration . . . McCrea leaves soon for a camp tour overseas and henceforth will devote all of his time and energy to the war . . . That ranch, of course, is secure . . . And in reaching his decision Joel McCrea turned his back on an earning capacity of something like $200,000 a year before the cameras . . . Both familiar adages are correct . . . Time not only marches on, but it flies. . . . That wedding, somehow, doesn't seem 10 years ago.

JOEL McCREA

That expert showman and companionable veteran, James M. Brennan, zone manager for RKO theaters—who long has included the Capital's RKO-Keith's Theater among the houses under his supervisory control—has just had a heavier pack strapped on his shoulders . . . His territory now has been stretched to embrace the entire Eastern half of the United States, extending as far as Boston . . . Like the Shuberts, Jim got his theatrical start in Syracuse, N. Y. . . . His present headquarters will continue to be Trenton, N. J. . . . Jim, jr., by the way, is a lieutenant (j.g.) in the Navy, on duty in Samoa, which is quite a spell from Trenton . . . The Washington Newspaper Guild has decided to dance out its tenth anniversary with a "Front Page Ball," in the Hotel Washington's Hall of Nations Ballroom, on Thursday night, December 2 . . . Washie Bratcher and His Orchestra will whip up the tunes . . . Not a private rout, tickets will be peddled by the working press to their lay friends and their friends . . . Details later . . . Director Edward Dmytryk will soon be turning on a considerable change of pace . . . Having recently made "Hitler's Children" and "Behind the Rising Sun," RKO Radio now has delegated him to direct "Elizabeth Kenny," life story of the famed Australian nurse . . . Leaves the Coast tomorrow to meet Sister Kenny and Rosalind Russell, who will have the name part, in New York for important huddles . . . They have been in Minneapolis attending conferences at the Kenny Foundation for the treatment of infantile paralysis.

Treat For the Boys in Uniform

Mme. Claude Alphand, New York night club singer of light French songs and wife of one of France's prewar financial leaders, now stationed in London with the French Committee of National Liberation, will arrive in the Capital tomorrow, especially to sing for servicemen at the Stage Door Canteen . . . The French Committee of National Liberation will stage tomorrow night's program, beginning at 9 o'clock, as part of the "Embassy Night" series at the Canteen . . . It will also bring along a band composed of sailors from a French cruiser berthed in an American port, to play "Madelon," "Mlle. d'Armentiere," "Sambre et Meuse" and the like . . . The goings-on will be opened by a short address by Henri Hoppenot, head of the Committee's Washington delegation . . . Jevver stop to think what a debt of gratitude the cinema owes for the pulchritude contributed to it by the swing bands? . . . Springing first to mind among the graduates of the bandstands now decorating the screen are Alice Faye, who first came to attention as songstress with Rudy Vallee; Betty Hutton, costarred with Bob Hope in "Let's Face It," now at the Earle, formerly with Vincent Lopez; Janet Blair, originally with Hal Kemp; Betty Grable, with Ted Fio Rita; Dorothy Lamour, graduate of Herbie Kay's, and Ginny Simms, long with Kay Kyser . . . So jitterbugging is a blight, is it?

In connection with tomorrow's observance of the 168th anniversary of the founding of the United States Marine Corps, Combat Correspondent Jimmy Dugan, former actor and the son of one, is reminded that the theater has contributed generously to the luster of the Corps in the present war . . . Thinks immediately of Tyrone Power, MacDonald Carey, Craig Reynolds—who saw service in the Guadalcanal campaign—William Lundigan, Glenn Ford, Jack Briggs, Louis Hayward, Stirling Hayden and John Monks, jr., all of whom have donned the Marine Corps uniform . . . Among the wives of these stalwarts, whose patriotism has been given a prod by their enlistment, are such feminine luminaries of screen and stage as Annabella, Eleanor Powell, Ginger Rogers, Ida Lupino and Madeleine Carroll . . . In order, they are the Mesdames Tyrone Power, Glenn Ford, Jack Briggs, Louis Hayward and Stirling Hayden . . . No wonder the Corps is celebrating!

The-Enthusiasm-Is-Catching Note

And so, tomorrow afternoon, away to Philadelphia to Mayor Bernard Samuel's banquet at the Bellevue-Stratford and premiere of the Twentieth Century-Fox picturization of the Tregaskis book, "Guadalcanal Diary,"—of which more later—in honor of the Marines.

Gossip From Gotham

New York, Nov. 8.

Dr. James Yen, head of China's Mass Education Movement, tells this story to typify the difference between the Chinese and the Japs:

MAXWELL ANDERSON

Many years ago two men went together from the Orient to London to study at Oxford University. At the end of their courses, the Chinese was rated the No. 1 student, and the Jap was No. 2. They both returned to the Orient together . . . "What do you intend to do with your new knowledge?" the Chinese asked. . . . "The British do not understand," said the Jap who had finished second. "They understand only the language of force. I intend to make my country strong and teach the world the language of force.

"And what do you intend to do with your new knowledge?" the Jap continued . . . "My country is rich in Literature, Art and the Sciences," the Chinese replied. "I intend to revitalize Literature and Art and the Sciences in my country." . . . The Jap fulfilled his promise. He became famous, did Admiral Ito, as the founder of the Japanese Navy, the man who took Port Arthur from the Russians." . . . The Chinese fulfilled his promise too. He also became famous—Dr. Yen Fuh, the scholar who translated for China the works of Darwin, Spencer and Adam Smith.

Dr. James Yen, incidentally, arrived from China a few days ago. On his first day here he was invited to attend a carnival given by the Maxwell Andersons, Helen Hayes, Henry Varnum Poor and the J. P. McEvoys. "What is the purpose of this celebration?" Dr. Yen asked . . . "Mr. Anderson is in charge of the air-raid service here," he was told. "The watchers in the air-raid towers have been working for a long time, without experiencing a single bombing. It's boring work, without a bombing. That's why this carnival, to relieve the boredom." . . . "I prefer boredom," said Dr. Yen. "I've been bombed 322 times."

The American fliers who bombed the Ploesti oil refineries flew extremely low during the flight. One of the men who completed this low-flying mission was Staff Sergt. Elwood Harbison, jr. of Philadelphia. He flew in a bomber which the crew had named "Ruth-less" . . . When Sergeant Harbison climbed out of the plane, an intelligence officer asked him: "Well, was it rough?" . . . "Damned rough," he replied. "This'll give you an idea." Then he pulled some cornstalks out of the bomb-doors.

Theodore Dreiser's "Sister Carrie," specially bound in white parchment, was selected by H. L. Mencken for his Time Capsule interred in Baltimore . . . Peggy Fears, the producer and night club singer, has turned playwright. She's finished an adaptation of a musical comedy, and plans to present it herself . . . Although Ann Corio and her husband, Emmett Callahan, are being divorced, he will remain the strip teaser's official business manager . . . Maggi McNellis, the society singer, will have a song published soon. It's "You Can't Walk Out on Me Now." The copies will read "Lyrics by Merle Close." He's the elevator-boy at her house.

Jerome Weidman, the novelist, now an instructor at the OWI's training center in Long Island, fractured his arm during a recreation period. Weidman can't convince any pro ballplayer that such a thing is possible—but he did break his pitching arm, a double fracture, while throwing a baseball

The American correspondents who captured the Italian isle on which Count Ciano and his Edda had their summer palace went through the building and discovered that for a summer's stay, the Cianos had only two books there. One of the books was James Joyce's "Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man"

Paul Douglas, the radio announcer, returned from England a few days ago. He and his wife—Virginia Field, who is featured in "The Doughgirls"—were standing in front of the 21 Club. They were about to enter, when they saw Lieutenant Putnam Humphries and his new bride, Beverly Paterno. The Douglases congratulated the Humphries, and the two couples stood there a while chatting . . . A girl suddenly walked between them, said "Remember me? Higgins," and continued on her way into the restaurant. The girl was Gerry Higgins, former wife of Paul Douglas, and also the former wife of Lieut. Put Humphries.

Hollywood, Calif., Nov. 8.—Jed Harris signed Virginia Gilmore for Nunnally Johnson's play, "The World's Full of Girls," which he's about to produce on Broadway. In the meantime, Nunnally's bedded down with "Ivanhoe." Has not read it since he was a boy. He's also reading three popular novels with "lady" in their titles, for Tallulah Bankhead.

TALLULAH BANKHEAD

. . . Tallu's companion, Paula Miller, tells me her husband, Lee Strasberg, has signed as a director for Twentieth Century-Fox. He'll be here in a couple of weeks. He introduced John Garfield to the stage, and put Tyrone Power and Annabella through their paces in "Liliom" in nine days, to fine notices. . . Ann Miller and Al Bloomingdale in their second blooming. . . . William Jeffers, boss of Union Pacific and former rubber boss, is seeing the town with Steve Hannagan and Ann Sheridan. He's seeing the town—Steve and Annie are seeing stars. . . . Bill Bendix's first when he returns to Paramount will be "Ready, Willing and 4-F," with Gil Lamb and Eddie Brackep. . . . Jeanne Rognan, in New York, has a deal on for a picture out here.

O Hooey!

Rene Clair, before deciding whether Lily Pons should sing for Nellie Melba in "It Happened Tomorrow," takes two days off to listen to more would-be Melbas. I'm amazed that Lily Pons would even consider doing it . . . Beulah Bondi, dressed to influence, but not in costume, met some visitors on "I Love a Soldier" set, who asked if she was the actress' sister or daughter. Beulah was never so flattered . . . Jack Haley jr., celebrating his tenth birthday, turned to his pappy and said, "After today I can no longer be a child prodigy." . . . Milton Berle's in the mood. He's written a song, "You're My Only Dream."

DECEMBER 1ST IS THE LAST DAY TO MAIL

WISH THEM THE MERRIEST CHRISTMAS EVER—LAVISH THEM WITH GIFTS FROM THE HECHT CO.'S SERVICE SHOPS

He might be Uncle Sam's for the present . . . but he's yours for keeps. You mean home and birthdays and Christmas to him . . . and that important thing known as morale. Maybe he's a thousand miles away . . . but you can send Christmas to his heart . . . the Christmas that means everything to him . . . packages from home and loved ones. So, let's make it a truly happy Christmas for all our boys in camp . . . and our girls in the service, too. Let's see to it that no one goes away empty-handed . . . when those long-awaited, exciting tissue-wrapped bundles are handed out to the eager throng. And remember, too . . . Uncle Sam asks you to mail everything by December 1st . . . so you must shop earlier this year.
